Will Rogers Remarks:

BEVERLY HILLS, Oct. 17. [To the Editor of The Times:] Just passed by one of our fine country clubs out here and there was a big crowd there. It was the woman's golf championship of America. We used to think going to see women play golf would be like going to see men crochet, but say, there is nothing effeminate about this golf thing as played by these champion women. Say, what a bunch of channel swimmers they are. I would hate to beat one of them to a parking space. They just lay that innocent little ball down, grit their teeth and swing like a wood chopper, and it takes one of our modern men in mighty good physical condition to even walk where it goes to. Miniature golf might be all right for men, but not for this humorously called weaker sex.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Rumania Arrests Sixty-two Spies

Telephoto Plant and Other Elaborate Equipment Used by Gang

Second Center in Vienna Reported to Involve High Officials

BUCHAREST (Rumania) Oct. 17. (AP)—Wholesale arrests have been made here in what is purported to be a gigantic espionage ring with Russia the benefiting country. Thus far sixty-two men and women have been taken in custody here and reports are that thirty-five others are under arrest in the provinces.

Government authorities maintained a reticent attitude, but unofficial reports are that police, in raiding the center of the ring's activities, found a complete telephoto station and many photographs of military value. Documents and other papers seized are reported to have been written with a chemical ink.

SEVEN DIE IN BLIZZARDS

Five Frozen in Marooned Car

Snow and Cold General in Midwest as Far South as Missouri

CHICAGO, Oct. 17. (Exclusive)—Snow was falling tonight in Central Wisconsin, Minnesota and Upper Michigan, while freezing weather and killing frosts which accompanied the Central States' first real winter weather prevailed as far south as Missouri and Kansas.

At least seven men are dead and numerous automobile parties were marooned in a blizzard which swept Northwestern States and parts of Canada. In the outskirts of Regina, Sask., six men in an automobile were trapped in snowdrifts and five were frozen to death.

In Great Falls, Benedict U. Moefer died in a Montana snowstorm, which sent the temperature down to 7 deg. above zero, while in Chicago Thomas Hartford, 65 years of age, was found dead of exposure.

The deaths were the first fatalities charged against the winter of 1930.

Chicago today experienced its first snowfall of the season, although the fall was too light to record officially at the Weather Bureau.

Freezing temperatures were general in North Dakota and Minnesota, with snow flurries in many places. Williston, N. D., reported the lowest temperature, 16 deg. above zero.

Missouri and Kansas had their first general frosts and sectional freezes last night.

FIVE FREEZE TO DEATH ALTHOUGH HELP NEAR

REGINA (Sask.) Oct. 17. (AP)—Five men marooned in a blizzard were frozen to death today, though had they known it, help was close at hand, and warmth and shelter.

In the past three days almost two feet of snow has fallen in this district. Last night the wind swept it into great drifts and the temperature dropped to within fifteen degrees of zero.

Ted Evoy, who has a farm on the outskirts of Regina, left his house lighted all night to guide travelers lost in the storm to safety. But this morning when he arose he found two automobiles stalled in the ditch 100 feet from the farm gate. In one were five men dead and another weak and hysterical. In the other car were four more men unable to move.

The survivors were carried to the house and a doctor, summoned by telephone, said they will recover. They told of a night so thick with swirling snow that they had not seen the farmhouse light.

The identified dead were G. R. Doswell, Leslie Hallsworth and Walter Tyndall, Thomas M. Houston and H. M. Savage of Regina.

Curtis Blames Business Slump on Idle Money

SPRINGFIELD (Mo.) Oct. 17. (AP) Unemployment and business depression in the United States were attributed to idle money by Vice-President Curtis in an address here tonight.

Speaking for the second time since he invaded the West to urge re-election of a Republican House and Senate, the Vice-President said the effect of world-wide trade depression will be overcome in this country as soon as the nation's money gets to work.

Reviewing past depressions, Vice-President Curtis said practically all of them have occurred under Democratic rule.

WARSHIP SPEEDS TO BRAZIL

Pensacola En Route to Insure Americans' Safety; Peace Negotiations Report Denied

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. (AP)—For the first time in two years an American warship is steaming tonight toward a Latin-American republic to protect, if necessary, American lives which might be endangered in revolutionary activities.

Ordered several days ago to Trinidad from Guantanamo, the cruiser Pensacola started down toward the Brazilian coast today on instruction from Washington.

The cruiser's orders are to touch at three principal ports, Para, Pernambuco and Bahia. It is estimated she will reach Bahia Tuesday.

Secretary Stimson, in announcing the movement of the Pensacola, said it is solely a precautionary measure. The commander will take off at any points the vessel touches, Americans who may desire to leave the country because of the revolt.

The last time an American war vessel was sent to a Latin-American country to protect American lives during a revolution was in 1928 during the troubles in Nicaragua.

No special importance is attached to the Pensacola's orders, since no Americans in Brazil have indicated their desire to leave.

RIVALS ISSUE COUNTER-CLAIMS OF VICTORIES

By the Associated Press

Brazilian insurgent leaders, claiming the capture in battle of Itarare, important railway point of Sao Paulo State, have called upon the Federal government at Rio de Janeiro to resign or to accept the responsibility for further bloodshed in the civil war.

The Federal authorities, issuing a counter-claim of victory in Itarare, and asserting the rebels have lost heavily, said they will refuse any proposal for dividing the country and that they have not entered into peace negotiations with the rebels.

Gen. Miguel Costa, rebel commander on the Sao Paulo front, asserted the Federal troops are disorganized and he predicted the early fall of Sao Paulo, commercial metropolis of Brazil.

President Washington Luis, in an interview, said Brazil is passing through anxious moments but he is convinced the insurgents will be defeated.

Both sides are agreed that the battle at Itarare was on a large scale.

The rebels also reported a rapid drive southward through the small State of Sergipe, north of Bahia, and asserted the surrender of two Federal regiments in Minas Geraes. The Federals, on the other hand, reported an advance "on all fronts" in Minas Geraes.

LAST DIARY OF ANDREE DECIPHERED

Scientist Reads Part of Illegible Record, Using Ultra-Red Light Rays

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 17. (AP)—Prof. Theodor Svendberg, Upsala expert, who attempted to make readable the second diary left by the Arctic explorer, Salomon August Andree, announced today he has succeeded in making one-third of the fragmentary text legible.

Prof. Svendberg said he has performed the work by using the visible spectrum and ultra-red light.

Prof. J. G. Anderson, speaking on behalf of the government's Andree committee, said the part deciphered deals with the life of Andree and his two companions on White Island, beginning in October, 1897, and contains notes regarding the nature of the frigid spot and preparations for a winter camp.

Andree and two companions, Nils Strindberg and Knut Frankel, attempted to fly over the North Pole in a balloon thirty-three years ago. Their fate became a mystery until the remnants of the expedition were found by an Arctic exploration party on White Island this summer.

FLYERS ON LAST LAP OF LONG RACE

LONDON, Oct. 18. (Saturday) (AP) The England-to-Australia air race between Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith and Flight Lieutenant C. W. Hill, which has thrilled the whole British Empire, today drew near its exciting close in the Antipodes. Both aviators appeared certain to beat Bert Hinkler's record of fifteen and one-half days for the flight, and barring accident, the principal point to be settled is by how much they will break it.

Kingsford-Smith was reported from Batavia, Java, to have left Sourabaya at 5 a.m., for Atamboea, island of Timor, a flight of 750 miles. Timor is only 500 miles from the coast of Australia.

In a radio telephone conversation picked up in England yesterday afternoon, Kingsford-Smith said he expected to be in Port Darwin, Australia, early Sunday afternoon, and in Sydney by Wednesday.

If he keeps to this schedule in his Southern Cross, Jr., the Australian ace will have made the distance from London to Port Darwin in nine days. He left Heston Airdrome, near London, on the 9th inst.

Hill expected to land at Port Darwin early this morning. Hill, who left England October 5, four days before Kingsford-Smith, has been doing much night flying in the attempt to beat Kingsford-Smith as well as Hinkler's record.

The last report of Hill was received in London yesterday morning and said he was leaving Bima, Sumbawa Island, for Atamboea, island of Timor. It is thought here, however, that he may have decided in the effort to save time to cut out the stop at Atamboea and fly direct to Australia.

Port Darwin dispatches said that half the population of the city had gone out to the airdrome to await his arrival.

Hunters Plan for New Type Flight

OMAHA, Oct. 17. (AP)—The Hunter brothers, of sustained-flight fame, are planning to take to the air for a second endurance try. This time their goal is a 100,000-mile progressive nonstop endurance flight that will include "stopovers" above the larger cities of North and South America.

Announcement of the brothers' plans was made here today by Walter Hunter, air-mail pilot on the Omaha-St. Louis air-mail route.

CHILE ROCKED BY QUAKE

One Known Dead and Score Injured as Temblor Shakes Cities Along Entire Andean Slope

SANTIAGO (Chile) Oct. 17. (AP)—A violent earthquake which apparently shook the entire Andean slope of Chile this morning caused at least one death and a score of injuries.

Apparently the quake caused widespread damage to buildings, and it was believed the casualty list might grow when all communities were heard from.

The one death reported was that of a woman, a hospital patient who left her bed in panic and died as she attempted to flee outdoors with others. Another woman at the same place suffered a broken leg. Six other persons were slightly injured.

Much material damage was wrought in the town of Llai Llai, hardly a house escaping some injury. The postoffice was nearly destroyed, large stores were damaged, a main street was closed by the falling of a masonry wall, and several houses were obliterated.

In Santiago the frightened inhabitants fled to the parks as they felt the shock.

Some injuries were reported at Valparaiso. Reports of some damage were received from the towns of Los Andes, San Felipe, La Ligua, Talca, Concepcion and Angol.

JAPANESE ISLAND HIT BY SEVERE SHOCKS

TOKIO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Two heavy earthquakes were felt early today on the western part of Hondo Island. The shocks occurred at 6:32 and 6:36 a.m., and were strongest in Ishikawa and Fukiu Prefectures. Osaka, Kyoto, Nara and Nagoya also felt the quakes.

No casualties were reported, although many buildings were slightly damaged and telephone and telegraph communication interrupted.

GAS BLAMED FOR BLAST AS INQUIRERS HINT PLOT

Forty-eight Persons Injured in Garment Building Will Recover; Damage Set at $1,000,000

Gas of unidentified form and origin was officially blamed last night for the explosion which shortly after 7:20 a.m. yesterday wrecked the height-limit modern Garment Capitol Building, 217 East Eighth street, injuring forty-eight persons and causing a property loss estimated in excess of $1,000,000.

While it is regarded as astonishing that no one was killed considering the violence of the explosion, official statements from hospitals where the injured were being cared for last night indicate that probably none of them will die. Burns and deep cuts from falling glass were described as the cause of most of the serious injuries suffered. Had the blast come half an hour later the casualty list probably would have been many times greater.

While none of the investigating agencies was ready last night to announce definite conclusions as to the cause of the explosion, it is known that the theory of a premeditated plot in connection with union-labor troubles involving a number of tenants in the building is under investigation.

Here's List of Those Injured in Explosion

Following is a list of those injured in the explosion. It does not include some thirty persons given first aid at the scene of the blast who were not taken to the hospital for treatment:

While it was learned, too, despite the secrecy surrounding the official investigation, that a focal point was the discovery of an open gas valve on the floor where the explosion originated, a valve which connected a three-quarter inch outlet pipe to one of the building's main gas lines.

A strange feature of the open valve was the fact that the Beverly Hills Frocks, Inc., which was the only tenant on the fifth floor, used no gas in its work and that, therefore, there was no reason for the valve to have been opened. Tenants who used gas were supplied with submeters and paid their bills to the office of the building, which had a master meter. The frock shop was operated by electricity and had never used gas during the eighteen months it occupied the fifth floor.

The open valve was discovered near a supporting column of the building, just inside the partition which divided the frock shop from the main entrance to the elevators. Leading from it was a pipe that extended to and across the ceiling to a central point in the shop. No stopper or plug was in the end of the pipe.

With these facts in mind, investigators then sought all the immediate circumstances surrounding the explosion and the history of the Beverly Hills Frocks shop, believing that a clew to the blast, if it was of criminal origin, might thus be ascertained.

These are some of the things they learned:

That the shop was opened about eighteen months ago by Hyman Schulman, 1811 Taft avenue, as a dress manufacturing plant. The place employed about sixty women and fifteen men. Originally the women were largely union members, but after six months trouble developed with their union and Schulman decided to run on an open shop plan. He dismissed his union help and employed all nonunion workers, and no further labor trouble was experienced.

One of the customs of the shop every two months was to fumigate the women's dressing room, cubes of sulphur being placed on pie plates in a pail of water and ignited. One of these fumigations took place Thursday night. All the doors and windows of the place were closed to keep the sulphur fumes in.

BLAST OCCURS

As was his custom Schulman arrived at his place of business at 7:20 a.m. yesterday. He was accompanied by I. Chavin, a presser. They opened the door of the manufacturing shop and Chavin hurried to the rear to open the windows

MANY BUILDINGS DAMAGED

Windows Shattered for Blocks Around Scene of Explosion and Glass Fills Streets

The terrific power of the explosion which wrecked the interior of the Garment Capitol Building, at 217 East Eighth street yesterday morning reached out and shattered windows, knocked down partitions, ripped plaster from the walls and tore things up generally in buildings for blocks around the point of detonation. The usual freakish features attended the explosion, some buildings in the affected area escaping with only a few broken windows while others farther distant suffered greater damage.

Every window was blown out, including great plate-glass show windows in the shops on the ground floor.

In places the concussion created a vacuum which caused great plate-glass show windows to bulge out and crash. In other buildings only windows here and there were blown out. In one place on the eighth floor of the Textile Building a lone transom window over the door to the W. & J. Sloane Company was blown out. Glass all around was untouched.

A tour of inspection of the damaged area revealed the following as among those suffering damage from the explosion:

Directly across the street to the south of the wrecked building is a five-story building which received the full force of the concussion.

Adjoining the Garment Capitol Building to the west is a three-story brick building in which all windows were blown out. The building is vacant. Plate-glass show windows were pulverized and the heavy wooden front door frames were torn asunder.

All windows in the south wall of the building at the northeast corner of Eighth and Los Angeles streets were blown out. Skylights in the roof of this building were ripped off and plaster knocked down.

GRAPHIC STORIES RELATED AFTER TERRIBLE ORDEAL

Sheets of Flame Engulf Fleeing Workers as Terrific Explosion Follows Turning of Switch

First investigation of the Garment Capitol Building explosion centered on the account of Hyman Schulman, proprietor of the Beverly Hills Frocks, Inc., factory located on the fifth floor. Schulman declared that the explosion occurred at the instant that he turned the switch which controls the burglary alarm system, giving investigators reason to believe that the breaking of the electric current set off the blast. This was corroborated by Irving Chavin, assistant to Schulman, who entered the building with him.

"I remember distinctly," Schulman said, "that we were let out of my car at the curb in front of the building at exactly 7:20 o'clock by my chauffeur, Arthur Hanson. I looked at my watch to see what was the time of our arrival.

EXPLOSION DESCRIBED

"Hanson drove the car away and Mr. Chavin and I walked into the building and went immediately to our factory by the elevator. As is our usual custom Chavin and I first made a thorough inspection of the shop. Now that I recall it I am positive that there was not a trace of the odor of gas in the place. In fact we noticed nothing unusual.

"Chavin then, according to habit, went to open the windows and I went to turn off the burglary alarm system. This is done by simply turning a knob which controls the switch.

"Simultaneously with the click of the switch a terrific explosion rocked the building and a blinding flash of flame filled the rooms. The sudden shock of the thing left me momentarily speechless. I was conscious of a searing pain on my face and arms and hands. And I could smell the horrible odor of my own hair burning.

"I saw concrete partitions cracking, furnishings strewn about the place, and glass flying from the windows.

"Then I yelled, 'Irving, Irving, where are you?' I thought maybe he had been killed. He answered me from one of the other rooms and shouted to me to come to the fire escape. Then the reaction set in and I don't remember exactly how I got out of the building."

Schulman was the most seriously injured of the two-score victims.

SIMILAR ACCOUNT

Chavin gave a similar account of the entrance to the building.

"After making our usual inspection of the shop Mr. Schulman and I came together in the front office," he said. "Everything was in order so he walked over to switch off the burglary alarm as he customarily does while I went to open the windows.

"I had opened one or two and was about to raise another when I heard the roar and felt the shock of a terrible explosion. I was looking out through the window at the time and it seemed to me that a great blast of fire came from below up the side of the building as though from the windows below. It seemed to strike me in the face and burn the breath out of me. The hair at the back of my head burned to a crisp. I felt it and my hand came away full of it.

"I cannot say just what my impression was as to where the force of the explosion came. I think it was from within the building for the sound seemed to come from the hallways.

"Then I heard Mr. Schulman yell and I called to him to come to the fire escape. We scrambled down this to the street where firemen helped us into an ambulance."

Chavin, while not as seriously injured as Schulman, suffered second-degree burns of the face, neck, arms, hands and chest.

Chavin also declared that he is certain there was no leaking gas in the shop.

TERRIBLE SHOCK

Nathan Ostrove, employee in the shop of M. Silbert, manufacturer of women's cloaks and suits on the twelfth floor, gave a description of the effect of the blast on the top floor.

"I had just gone to work when it happened," he said. "Four other employees had just gone in ahead of me. I thought for a moment that it was an earthquake, and the building shook so I feared that it was going to collapse. I don't know why we did not all rush for the stairs or elevator as a way out. I guess we all figured that the interior was wrecked, for that is where the sound of the explosion seemed to come from.

"Instead we ran for the windows to get to the fire escape. That is, four of us did. I yelled to the other man but could not find him. When we got to the fire escape I could see clouds of smoke coming out of windows on the lower floor, and fearing that our way would be cut off by fire we all rushed down the fire escape as fast as we could."

Ostrove suffered chiefly from shock.

FLASH OF FLAME

Sam Sobel, employee of the M. Guest cloak shop on the seventh floor, told a story similar to that of Chavin.

"I had just gone to work and was standing near an outside window when the whole building rocked with the explosion," he said. "Glass flew from the windows and water bottles in the place crashed to the floor and smashed. I saw a flash of flame come up from below outside the window. The shock threw me to the floor and before I could get to my feet a piece of concrete smashed from a partition struck me in the chest. For a moment it knocked the breath out of me. I got down the fire escape."

A. Coleman of 1461 South Westmoreland avenue related: "Say, I don't know what happened. I wasn't in the building and don't work there. I was just walking by on Eighth street when I heard the sound of the explosion. I don't remember knowing where it came from. It just seemed to be all around me, the sidewalk seemed to heave and glass seemed to be flying everywhere. I didn't have a chance to notice much for a heavy stone or brick or something struck me on the head and I fell dazed."

WINDOWS CRASH

George Wibrew, employee of the Stewart & Dawes shoe store at 214 East Eighth street, directly opposite the Garment Building, said: "It all happened so suddenly that I don't remember wondering what it was. It just seemed like the whole block was being wrecked. I was knocked down and as I fell I saw the windows of our store crashing and the stock was thrown from the shelves. The back door was blown right out off its hinges."

Mrs. Wanda Slawenskie of 4429 Gleason street, employed in the Snyder & Case clock shop on the eleventh floor, declared: "Oh, it was awful. I thought I was never going to get out. I had been to work only a few minutes when it happened. It just felt like the whole building was going to collapse. Everybody was panic-stricken and I don't know how the others got out from our place.

"I ran into the hall and down the stairway. I got down as far as the second floor and there everything seemed to be cut off by fire. It was burning everywhere and the smoke strangled me so I couldn't breathe. I guess I lost my head completely, for I ran all the way back to the eleventh floor again. I saw some other people going out on the fire escape and I joined them and so got to the bottom."

RESCUED BY FIREMEN

Mrs. Luella Bailey of 11120 Romeo street, who is the most seriously burned woman, said: "I was on the fifth floor and had just left the elevator when the whole building rocked and as I heard the roar of the explosion the hallways filled with flame. I was knocked down and for a time I guess I lay there unconscious. When I came to there was still a lot of fire and smoke and I could hardly breathe. My head and arms and hands pained terribly and I couldn't seem to close my eyes. I couldn't get up and I had a terrible fear that I was going to be burned to death. Then two firemen came up the stairs and they picked me up and carried me out to the ambulance."

Mrs. Ida Klaus of 5318 Third avenue recounted: "I had been waiting for an elevator in the Aristo Building across the street and just walked out to the sidewalk when I heard the explosion. It knocked me down and before I could get up I was showered with glass from broken windows."

BUS SHATTERED

Mrs. Minnie Phillips of 1105 South Ferris street said: "I was in a motor bus and we were just going by the building when the explosion threw everybody off their seats and the glass from the car windows shattered and flew in all directions. I was so stunned that I can't remember exactly just what happened. I heard people yelling to get out the door and then I found myself lying in the street. I don't know whether I was carried there or fell out one of the broken windows."

Morris Stravitz, 1352 East Twenty-first street, suffered head injuries when he was hurled to the sidewalk as he walked on the outer edge of the sidewalk near the building. Stravitz, who was only slightly injured, told police that the street was a bedlam of running persons after the blast.

WOMEN SCREAMING

In the building at the time of the explosion was Harry Saks, a tenant of Room 1008. Saks said that he had arrived at the office at 7:15 a.m.

"The explosion came so suddenly that I was unable to determine what had happened," he said. "At first I believed it to have been an earthquake or a cyclone.

"I looked out of the windows and saw huge billows of smoke coming from the building. Women were screaming. I hurried to the fire escape. Other tenants also were hurriedly descending it.

"We reached the bottom in safety. Firemen and police soon arrived. Ambulances also came and the injured were taken to hospitals for treatment."

A miraculous escape from possible death or serious injury was made by Phil Hamblin, worker for Beverly Hill Frock Company.

"I had gone up the elevator to the fifth floor in company with Hyman Schulman, the proprietor," Hamblin related.

"Suddenly I remembered that I had not bought my cigarettes. I left Schulman to unlock the door to our room and took an elevator going to the lower floors.

"When we had gone down to the second floor we heard a terrific explosion followed by a steady rumbling roar.

"We arrived at the main exit and rushed out of the building. The entire fifth floor was on fire and glass was falling all over the streets.

"Had I stayed with Schulman but a minute more I would have been seriously injured or probably killed. I certainly consider myself lucky."

"SHEET OF FLAME"

"There was a thunderous explosion followed by a great sheet of flame," Edward Sleeper, manager of the K. & S. Auto Park, 740 South Santee street, said in giving an eye-witness account of the tragedy.

"Workers came rushing down the fire escapes. Glass was flying all about us.

"Everyone was shouting and screaming in terror. Policemen rushed to the building and helped carry out those who were caught.

"The steadily falling glass had injured many of those who were walking in the street, cutting them about the head and shoulders.

"Doors flew open and excited employees rushed to the scene, adding to the great confusion already existing.

"Women who had fainted were brought to our lot and revived. For a time our parking station was changed into a hospital. Later the ambulances came and all those who were injured were taken to receiving stations for treatment."

BUSY SCENE AT HOSPITAL

Georgia-Street Institution's Doctors and Nurses Care for Forty-six Blast Victims

Speed and precision marked the task at the Georgia Street Receiving Hospital yesterday morning as the victims of the Garment Capitol Building explosion arrived for treatment. The first alarm for ambulances reached the station at 7:30 a.m., a fortune hour as explained by Supervisor W. J. Pearce.

"The night staff was just preparing to leave at 7:45 a.m., and the daytime staff was just arriving," he said. "Orders were immediately issued, and by the time the first patients arrived four surgeons and fifteen nurses were prepared for the emergency. Both day and night shifts were on duty."

Ambulances were dispatched to the scene from University, Newton, Hollenbeck Heights, Lincoln Heights and Georgia-street stations, but attendants at the Receiving Hospital had no idea of the extent of the disaster.

Four rooms quickly equipped as receiving wards were used to handle the rush as the ambulances poured their human cargo into the building and hurried back to the scene for a second load. Some of the ambulances made three trips before the injured were all at hand for treatment. A few patients were placed on temporary cots, but most were able to stand to await their turn.

The first ambulance load arrived at 8:10 a.m., according to the records, and within three hours, forty-six patients had been treated, passed through for examination and were on their way.

Three went to other hospitals and forty-three to their homes. Hundreds of calls from anxious relatives and friends flooded the hospital telephone board.

Doctors at the hospital included Wallace Dodge, J. R. Dean, I. Lopisich and Charles Sebastian. Nurses, in addition to Supervisor Pearce, Chief Nurse Whitehead, and Supervising Nurse Haguewood, who were on duty and aided in treating the injured, included Haguewood, Austin, Schuller, Birdwell, McDonald, Calvelediee, Rich, Stuart, Beauchamp, Willry, Stuart, Whittaker, Herboltzheimer, Bergman and Tucker.

Thunderous Roar Resounds as Building Spews Flames

How Explosion Rocked Downtown Los Angeles

DAMAGED AREA SURVEYED

the explosion all the west windows, 120 in number, of the six-story building occupied by the Graybar Electric and Southern California Telephone companies were blown out. Two great steel curtain doors were warped and jammed on this wall. Show windows in this building along Eighth street were shattered.

Big show windows on the ground floor of the Textile Center Building were shattered. These included those of the New York Hi-Grade Button Works, the Beaver Textile Company and the W. Marchbank Drug Store on the corner of the ground floor. J. M. Thurman in one of the damaged shops, heard the explosion at his home near Ninth and Vermont avenue.

Thomas Haverty Plumbing Company at Eighth street and Maple avenue had all its show windows blown out, as did the Arthur Maas Chemical Company at 308 East Eighth street.

TRICK PLAYED

The explosion played a trick on George F. Pearce, manager of the Beacon Water Heater Company, 420 East Eighth street. He and the Armstrong Electric and Manufacturing Corporation in the same store had their adjacent windows signed recently. Pearce's window was blown out. The other was untouched. H. L. Boyd in the same store felt the explosion at his home on Citrus Way.

Two big plate glass windows in the D. N. & E. Walter Company seven-story building were blown out. Here the concussion drew the windows outward as evidenced by the bulging leaded panes above the plate-glass windows.

Mrs. H. T. Feiler, cashier at Lou Feiffer's lunch room, 767 Maple avenue, had what was considered a narrow escape. As she stands at the cash register she is hemmed in by two big plate-glass windows. Feiffer said he was cutting bread when the explosion came, and he looked up in time to see what he termed a regular rain of heavy glass falling all around Mrs. Feiler. She was not even scratched. The big wired-glass window on the north side of this store was cracked and bent in like a chunk of cardboard.

The Postal Telegraph station at 769 Maple avenue had all the front windows blown in.

In the block on Los Angeles street from Eighth north to Seventh big plate-glass show windows were blown in, as well as many of the windows on upper floors. Buildings on the west side of the street appeared to suffer most damage.

Vacant store at 755 Los Angeles street, show window blown out.

The nine-story McComas Building on the Southwest corner of Eighth and Los Angeles street, furnished a spectacular feature of the explosion. The building towers up a block from the explosion and apparently got the full force of the concussion on the north and east walls, where every window from the ground floor up was shattered.

DOORS BLOWN OFF

Maxfield Building, 819 Santee avenue, twelve stories; windows cracked and doors blown off hinges. On side facing the explosion the plaster was cracked, but windows escaped damage.

Stewart Dawes Building, southwest corner of Eighth and Santee, five stories; all windows broken.

Throughout the day firemen and workers shoveled glass from the streets and sidewalks. Glass was put in boxes and barrels, stacked on the sidewalks, and the city engineering department sent emergency trucks to haul the debris away.

By noon word of the disaster had spread and crowds came pouring in from all over the city. Before midafternoon repair crews were at work and the trucks from glass concerns were on the ground with crews at work replacing plate-glass windows. Throngs trooped up and down the streets to the tune of tinkling broken glass.

Heflin was arrested today at a downtown hotel. Heflin telegraphed an uncle for the money. He said he was released yesterday from a hospital at Smyrna, Ga.

INVESTIGATORS HINT PLOT AS THEY EXAMINE RUI

Gas Given as Cause, but Theor as to Nature of Explosion Differ Water Causes Much Damage

while Schulman went to the center of the plant to throw the switch on a burglar alarm which operated electrically and which was disconnected during the day time.

As Schulman threw the switch the blast came. Neither man later could give an adequate description of what happened. They recalled a searing blast and their hurry to escape but just where the explosion centered or what caused it they could not say.

A sidelight on activities in the shop, however, was given by Carroll Hasbour, salesman for the frock manufacturers, who was in the plant Thursday at the time the fumigation began.

"I told them I thought I smelled gas then and that they had better wait to fumigate, but the idea of gas was dismissed because we did not use any gas on the floor," said Hasbour.

THEORY EVOLVED

Linking the various facts together, investigators who entertained the theory that the blast might have been premeditated by an enemy of Schulman or a Communist or radicals labor sympathizer, said the explosion might have been a cleverly thought-out plot by some one familiar with the workings of the dress factory. The gas valve, they declared, was concealed behind some filing cabinets and Schulman's custom of throwing the switch on the burglar alarm as soon as he arrived every morning was well known. They also pointed out that the gas valve was a device that could not ordinarily be turned by anything hitting against it but required the application of a wrench.

In line with the theory that union trouble may have had something to do with the wreck of the building, it was learned that sixteen concerns which are tenants of the edifice were affected by a strike called by the coat workers' union of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, September 4, last.

PLACE GUARDED

Acting Captain Hynes, in charge of the police radical squad, said yesterday the strike called out 900 workers and was directed against fifty-nine coat - manufacturing plants. The Garment Capitol Building was one of the central points of this unrest. Picketing on the part of union labor adherents, which in some cases resulted in physical combat, caused the place to be guarded by a picked squad under Hynes.

Since the strike was called, Hynes declared, all but four or five of the coat shops in the Garment Capitol Building have reached a satisfactory settlement with the unions, but nevertheless, the police squad was kept on the job to prevent any further demonstrations. This squad car was in front of the building when the blast occurred and was badly damaged by falling glass, plaster and other objects. Two officers seated in it narrowly escaped injury.

Some of the employers of labor and proprietors of the establishments in the Garment Capitol Building, however, scoffed at reports that there might be a relationship between the explosion and union troubles.

Harry Schnider of the Schnider-Kay Company on the eleventh floor, was most emphatic in his views that union-labor troubles had nothing to do with the explosion.

"If anyone should feel that way," he said, "I should. But I don't. All of my help walked out on strike and I had only nine left. They even beat up one of my workers. But I am positive that the strikers had nothing to do with the explosion. Such talk is nonsense."

Mack Pearlman of the Belmont Cloak Company, who also had trouble with strikers, but who settled with one group, expressed views similar to Schnider's.

"The union-labor troubles had nothing to do with the explosion, absolutely," Pearlman said.

OTHER THEORIES

There were various other theories advanced for the explosion. Chief of Detectives Taylor, who led a squad to the scene, said he thinks it possible that the entire building might have been filled with gas from a leak on a lower floor, but that the fifth floor became a focal point because Schulman may have been the first man to cause a spark in the gas-filled edifice when he threw the switch on the electric burglar alarm.

Police Chemist Welch and Ballistic Expert Moxley consider it possible that chemicals may have been used to generate an inflammable gas. Moxley also said it is remotely possible that TNT might have been thrown in the building.

The District Attorney's office took a hand in the inquiry. Chief Deputy Stewart, under Dist.-Atty. Fitts accompanied by Chief Matthews of the bureau of investigation, visited the scene an hour after the blast.

HELP TENDERED

They merely made an inspection of the scene and offered the co-operation of the District Attorney's office in the event the Police Department should need assistance.

Both Stewart and Matthews declined to express a definite opinion as to the cause of the explosion. It was noted, however, that Stewart ordered several pieces of linoleum removed from the floor at the scene of the blast. These pieces of evidence probably will be turned over to expert chemists for analysis because it is believed the explosion centered at the spot where the floor covering was removed.

Representatives of the Fire Department also took specimens of the floor covering at this point and will make independent tests to determine whether an explosive was used or whether it was an accidental detonation of gas.

HOW TIME WAS FIXED

The time of the explosion was approximated by police examining clocks on other floors of the building which had been stopped by the detonation. One on the fourth floor was a time-clock punched by employees. This had stopped at 7:23 a.m.

In an office on the sixth floor a wall pendulum clock had stopped at 7:20 a.m.

Police believe the time when the fourth floor was the most accurate and that the explosion before, occurred at the time noted by it.

The blast on the fifth floor started a fire which was confined principally to the floor on which it originated. Throughout the building, however, practically every partition constructed of glass was damaged, partitions were blown down, everything movable hurled to the floor and broken. Both sides of the wrecked structure in some instances many lights of glass; windows and doors were damaged.

IMMENSE DAMAGE

Forced to fight the blaze with water, the fire department necessarily drenched much of the stock upon the first to the fourth floors. Insurance adjusters who visited the building shortly after the blast estimated a damage of $500,000 to the Garment Capitol Building.

The wrecked interior of the building was a tumbled chaos of broken partitions, office fixtures and machines and a jumble of the contents of the numerous factories on the floors above the explosion was on the fifth floor, but the damage was general throughout the building and inspectors declared blistered paintwork on the upper floors convinced investigators that a fire department that a fire of some flame had flared through the upper stories.

Fire damage was general on the fifth and sixth floors and on the floors below the seventh, but damage from water.

An indication of the force of the explosion within the building was given by the number of heavy partitions blown down and twisted and warped askew. All the windows on the fifth floor of the building were broken, some of them by the outward rush of the blast, but a group on the southwest wall were shattered by the vacuum created and were blown inward.

GUARD NEAR BUILDING

Officer Phelps of the police department reported to Lieut. Hynes that he was standing in front of the building at the time of the blast.

"There was a great deal of confusion. Glass and fragments of concrete and steel rained down. A police car standing at the curb was run through a hail of flying debris to send in a call for assistance," he said.

Phelps was stationed near the building as a guard when the blast came.

Many of the persons injured were pedestrians on their way to work along East Eighth street and Los Angeles street. They were struck with glass falling from shattered windows far above street level, were carried to hospitals by a corps of ambulances recruited by the general call for help. The Georgia street Receiving Hospital received the brunt of first-aid work.

Throughout the day squads of police kept curious thousands back by use of ropes. An emergency police detail of twenty police policemen in charge of Sergeants was stationed in the building within a radius of two blocks of the scene by order of Chief of Police Steckel for the protection of merchants and other property owners in the vicinity, the workers whose buildings have been ordered. The squad will be maintained until the windows are repaired.

DETECTIVE REPORTS HEARING PLOT HINT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17. (AP)—(Exclusive)—The Costello Detective Bureau of this city tonight forwarded a report of one of its operatives indicating the Garment Capitol Building explosion in Los Angeles was caused by radicals.

The operative declares that in front of a known group of radicals on Market street, he heard two men talking and one of them said to the other:

"Gus and Tony left for Los Angeles today. Hell ought to break loose there tomorrow."

The detective's dispatch went on to how the men came to his attention, which has been left out in the report to District Attorney Fitts, along with a description of the men, as follows:

"October 16, 1930, 4:10 p.m. leaving the lobby of the Costello Theater attention was attracted to two Italians. One of the men was carrying a package about 10 inches long and four inches wide. The package was wrapped in newspaper. Suspecting they were going to crash a window I followed them. Just as they were passing Fifth and Market street they were joined by two other men who were standing in the doorway of the building. Gus and Tony and a few casual remarks were passed when I heard one of them say:

INDUSTRY QUICK TO OFFER HELP

Relief Committee Formed by Apparel Makers

Competitors Tender Space to Blast Victims

Lost Concerns Will Reopen Plants Within Week

Several hours after the explosion in the Garment Capitol Building Saturday the garment-manufacturing concerns which were affected by it were offered the services of a relief committee formed by the Associated Apparel Manufacturers of Los Angeles, Ltd., in devising means whereby they can continue operations and fill orders.

This committee not only obtains the co-operation of virtually all of the garment manufacturers in the city, but also that of wholesale and retail distributors having understandings with the affected manufacturers, the distributors agreeing to extend the time for the filling of the orders and to any other measures which might be found advisable to aid the stricken manufacturers. Eastern mills, which supply materials to the manufacturers, also were quick to offer their co-operation in business relief measures.

COMMITTEE PERSONNEL

Ben J. Turok of L. F. Dommerick & Sons is chairman of the committee. Its other members are: Joseph Bette, president of the Associated; T. W. Pepler, managing director of the organization; Carl T. Fox, Textile Banking Company; Oliver J. Murray, William Iselin & Co.; Paul A. Neuschaefer, Union Bank and Trust Company, and Harry Thompson, Clayburgh Brothers.

The committee's first action was to conduct a speedy survey of the extent of the damage done and the condition of the concerns affected. It found that the only concern whose plant is a total loss is the Beverly Hills Frock Company, where the explosion occurred. Of the other seventy-three garment companies in the building there was none that suffered so much that it will not be able to resume operation in the same plant within a week, at the most, the committee found. In addition to the main damage done by the broken glass, but several of the companies also suffered from smoke and water damage.

NOT OUT OF WORK

For the time being, however, it is estimated that about 1200 persons employed by the garment companies have been thrown out of work. The companies affected, in addition to those where the explosion occurred, are:

Dress Manufacturing Company, Angelus Cloak Company, Davis & Co.; Bernice Frocks, Avant Cloak Company; Lewis-Mc. Commodore Cloak House, Cloak and Suit Company, Finesse Frocks, M. Gerber, Severance, Milton House of Youth, M. Kaplan Co., Kingmade Dresses, Martin & Co., Needle Cloak and Suit Princesse Frocks, Saks Brothers, Schneider & Kay, Style Garment Company and John H. Wilson & Co.

As the condition of the building makes it necessary to defer an early resumption of operations by these companies they will be able to use their machines being placed at the disposal by other manufacturers. By yesterday afternoon more than 200 machines had been placed at the disposal of the relief committee for this purpose.

Through a subcommittee every effort will be made to effect a speedy insurance adjustment, using the combined services of Sam Behrendt of the Behrendt-Levy Insurance Agency.

DETONATION TIME FIXED BY OFFICER

Policeman Romer Hurled to Sidewalk by Force of Blast at 7:22 a.m.

Definite time of the mysterious blast yesterday was placed by Police Officer V. R. Romer of Georgia-street division, who was hurled to the sidewalk while standing at Eighth and Main streets when the explosion took place.

"The first thought that entered my mind when the blast echoed through the streets, showering glass to the pavements, was that a large shell had exploded," he said. "It was very similar to that of exploding shells that I had heard in France.

"I was knocked to my knees and then the terrific noise came, deafening me. As I regained my feet I glanced at my watch and it was exactly 7:22 a.m. I then ran to Eighth and Santee streets where the screams and shouts of the injured and spectators were ringing through the streets."

Officer Romer, who was among the first to reach the scene, battled hysterical men and women for several minutes before help came to him.

"It was terrible," he said. "The injured were lying on the sidewalks and those who had just left their friends were running about wildly in their efforts to locate them. Before the ambulances came we were powerless to handle the injured and the women who became hysterical."

Romer aided other officers in throwing a fire line about the smoking building, all of them fearful that the structure might contain many bodies. They aided the first engine company to battle their way to the building in an effort to seek injured.

Lien Placed on Daugherty Home

COLUMBUS (O.) Oct. 17. (AP)—A lien for $40,000 today was placed on the home of Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney-General of the United States, by the Franklin County Recorder on orders from the Clerk of Fayette county.

The lien resulted from the signing several days ago by Daugherty of a bond for that amount to obtain release of Mal S. Daugherty, his brother, who is under indictment in Fayette county on fifty-seven counts of mishandling funds of the defunct Ohio State Bank, of which he was the head.

BUILDING HELD REPAIRABLE

Engineers Find Structure Damaged in Blast Has Only Two Floors That May Be Weak

Preliminary investigation by the Los Angeles Building and Safety Department of the Garment Capitol Building immediately after the explosion and throughout the day disclosed that the building can be repaired, according to Supt. Backus, who dispatched five engineers to the scene to gather data.

Examination of the structural damage was made by Charles Makutchan, research engineer; H. M. Wagner, assistant chief of the building division, and A. F. Miller, chief structural engineer.

Makutchan reported that the building structurally is sound but that there is some slight cracking of the concrete slabs of the fifth and sixth floors. Window frames were blown out and tile partitions demolished. He said there was some damage to the elevators, principally at the entrance to the shafts.

He said he would hesitate to estimate the strength of the fifth and sixth floors unless a test load is placed thereon.

George Sexton, chief inspector of maintenance, and A. A. Bennett, chief of the plumbing division, made an investigation of the damaged gas lines but were unable to determine whether gas caused the explosion.

They plan to make more detailed investigation today.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Prohibition agents last night raided the Crickett ranch near Stockton, where they seized an equipped 1000-gallon still, confiscated 200 gallons of alcohol, 10,000 gallons of mash and a truck, and arrested M. Giovanni.

FIRST-AID KITS USED IN STREET

Many Persons Treated for Minor Injuries After Building Blast

While police and private ambulances were carrying the more severely injured to hospitals for attention following the explosion, Dr. Elmer Degero and Ambulance Driver Edwin Malone used first-aid kits at Los Angeles and Eighth streets to treat those found with minor injuries.

As the surgeon and his assistant treated the more than thirty persons injured by flying glass, tales of heroism and realistic accounts of the blast were recounted to them.

Women were pulled to safety by men and hysterical women were taken into doorways out of the danger of falling debris by passing citizens.

The first-aid workers and police and firemen united in their praise of the co-operation and aid of the citizens who arrived shortly after the blast. Few persons were found interfering with the rescue work and ropes were not put up until more than an hour after the blast.

EXPLOSION DESCRIBED BY JANITOR

Blast Blows Him Through Door and Into Street; No Gas Odor Noticed

Christian Mathisen, janitor of the Garment Capitol Building, told investigators that shortly after 7:20 a.m. he was leaving the front door when the blast swept the building.

"I was just opening the door when the blast swept me from my feet through the door onto the sidewalk. Before I could get to my feet falling plaster and ornamental marble fell about me in showers, some parts striking me on the head," Mathisen said.

"When I finally reached my feet the street was covered with glass and shouting men and screaming women were running through the fallen wreckage like cattle. They seemed to mill about, not knowing what to do next. Others were coming from other buildings cut and bleeding."

Mathisen then told investigators that a short time before he had started to leave the building he had gone through most of the floors and had not noticed any gas odors.

The building is open, he told police, for early workmen about 6:30 each morning. He had noticed several persons on different floors but could not tell police any actions on the part of them that gave him any idea they were not employed in the building.

A.F.L. WANTS DRY LAW KEPT

Repeal Opposed But Unions Again Ask Modification

Delegates Reaffirm Policy of Political Neutrality

Convention Hears Walsh in Administration Attack

BOSTON, Oct. 17. (AP)—The American Federation of Labor in today's session of its annual convention here recommitted itself to the policy of modification of the Volstead Act to permit manufacture and sale of beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content and rejected resolutions favoring repeal of the act and of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The delegates also reaffirmed the federation's policy of nonpartisanship in politics and cited proposed legislation against the issuance of court injunctions in labor disputes as a predominating political issue.

WALSH HITS G.O.P.

The convention heard Senator Walsh of Massachusetts denounce the national administration for what he described as evasion of the unemployment issue and its failure to recognize publicly the seriousness of the current situation in industry.

The part of the report of the executive council which approved modification of the Volstead Act was accepted by the delegates without debate. The resolutions advocating repeal were killed by voice vote after addresses by their sponsors, Arthur J. Beauregard of the Providence Central Federated Union, whose resolution urged repeal of the Volstead Act, and Edward Flore of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' and Beverage Dispensers' International Alliance, who favored repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

OTHER RESOLUTIONS

Other resolutions adopted included:

Indorsement of the appeal of actors and musicians for support of a popular movement against the mechanizing of cultural arts.

Urging employment of civilian workers on mechanical work for the Army and Navy.

Indorsing House Joint Resolution 334 proposing radio broadcasting rights for the departments of Agriculture, Labor and Interior for apportionment to radio stations of the most representative groups.

Favoring independence for the Philippines.

The convention referred to the executive council for such action as might be necessary two resolutions calling for legislation for the disposition of the Muscle Shoals project.

The action of the past three conventions in urging pardons for Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings, who are serving prison sentences in California, was reaffirmed today.

Representatives of the federation in the Pan-American Federation of Labor were instructed to oppose any move for American intervention in Cuban affairs.

RED QUIZ MAY CROSS BORDER

Chairman Fish Announces Mexican Trip Planned

House Group Would Seek Facts on Propaganda

Communists' Activities on West Coast Told

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. (AP)—The possibility that a group of the House Communist Investigating Committee may visit Mexico to inquire into asserted soviet propaganda directed at the United States by agents in that country, was discussed today by Representative Fish of New York, the committee chairman.

Fish said he had been assured by Ambassador Tellez of Mexico of the close co-operation of the Mexican government in watching the activities of Communists and added he expected the documents reported seized in that country will be turned over to his committee.

GO IN NOVEMBER

If a subcommittee makes the trip to Mexico City, he said, it probably would sail from New Orleans about November 20, after the full group completes hearings in several southern States. Fish said he did not plan to make the trip.

Both the Mexican Ambassador and the State Department today said they had no information regarding the reported seizure of the documents in Mexico.

Asked if the authority granted the committee by the House permitted it to go into foreign countries, Fish said it did.

ACTION IN WEST

Chairman Fish returned to Washington today from hearings on Communist activities on the West Coast. He said it is apparent that the "principles advocated by the Communists in the far west are identical to those in the eastern industrial centers, and are directed by the Third International at Moscow."

"The activities of the Communists," he continued, "have been increasing in the past few years on the Pacific Coast, and they are taking advantage of the business depression and unemployment situation to spread their propaganda and revolutionary doctrines."

Inman pledged himself to vote for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment if given the opportunity.

Vatican Offered Olive Branch

ROME, Oct. 17. "Everything should be avoided which may alienate woman from her natural and fundamental mission—maternity."

During the past two years the Pope often has protested against feminine Fascist gymnastic displays, not only on the grounds of modesty, but because he deems such overexertion harmful to girls and young women.

RUSSIAN SPIES TAKEN IN RAIDS

by automobile and motorcycle to Sibiu, which road was unguarded.

VIENNA EXPOSE

It also was learned the persons implicated in the espionage system here collaborated with a second center in Vienna and their task was to collect political, military and economic secrets for Russia.

Reports from Vienna said many governmental officials are implicated and that arrests are imminent.

It leaked out through guarded channels tonight that one of those held here is Victor Arady, Hungarian author, a native of Transylvania, but now a Rumanian subject.

Also it became known that the accused spy gang was in very close touch with the Rumanian Military Geographical Institute and with a large governmental airplane factory at Brasov.

ENGINEERED BY GERMANS

Police, while maintaining guarded silence, did announce that the ring was the greatest political and economic conspiracy ever hatched against Rumania in favor of Russia. They said it was engineered by Germans with conspirators of various nationalities and owning an elaborate equipment worth in excess of $150,000.

Officials learned of the ring a month ago and shadowed members, hoping to get them all into their net at once. They were compelled to take quick action today, however, when a letter, destined for the Vienna center of the ring, was posted for air mail.

The letter inquired if the Vienna center suspected Rumanian police were investigating the gang's movements. Fearing to lose all if they dallied further, the police took immediate action.

Officials learned that the Bucharest center worked in three independent sections and that the gang had at its disposal, in addition to its telephoto establishment, a mechanical workshop situated near the main railway station here.

ROYAL PAIR GOING TO SEA

Boris and Giovanna Planning Honeymoon Afloat; Doubts on Relative Status of Rites Cleared

ROME, Oct. 17. (AP)—Announcement by the Bulgarian Legation today that King Boris and Princess Giovanna of Italy will leave on their honeymoon a few days after their marriage at Assisi next week is accepted here as meaning the King regards the Roman Catholic ceremony as the principal marriage rite.

Despite the fact that he and his subjects are traditionally of the Greek orthodox faith, he is believed to consider the marriage at Assisi complete and binding.

The constitution of Bulgaria requires that the soverign be of the orthodox faith. Since there is no civil registration of marriages there, the function is in the hands of priests of the national church, and in the eyes of the Vatican the Bulgarian ceremony will have no significance beyond this legal one

POST-HONEYMOON PLANS

Boris and Giovanna will leave for Bulgaria together a few days after a honeymoon aboard the Bulgarian ship Ferdinando, which is of the yacht type. This was announced today by the Bulgarian Legation and was taken as a denial the royal couple would depart for Sofia immediately after their Assisi marriage for the purpose of a further ceremony at home.

The ceremony at Sofia, according to the Bulgarian Legation, will consist simply of a nuptial benediction.

PROGRAM CURTAILED

There has been a decided curtailment in the program of the royal wedding. Even the elaborate wedding breakfast appears now to have been abandoned. Nevertheless, many persons are arriving at Assisi and the fortunate thousands, who can crowd into the town will view remarkable pageantry.

The wedding cortege will proceed in a setting of rare quaintness, with the population garbed as in centuries ago, and the town, as well as a wide neighboring area, will be decorated by day and lighted by thousands of incandescents by night.

ROME, Oct. 17. (AP)—In order that he may attend the royal wedding of King Boris of Bulgaria and Princess Giovanna of Italy at Assisi the 25th inst., Premier Mussolini today postponed the meeting of the Federal directors of the Fascist party until two days later.

Those killed were Fireman Henry A. Sprouse, Flagman Charles Graff, and Conductor Jerry F. Dixon, all of the west bound train.

GANGSTERS KILL WOMAN, WOUND MAN

Reputed Gambling House Owner and Wife Trapped by Peoria (Ill.) Killers

PEORIA (Ill.) Oct. 17. (AP)—Mrs. Cora Garrison, 37 years of age, was killed and her husband, Clyde, a reputed gambling house operator, was wounded by an assailant who opened fire upon them tonight with a machine gun as they were entering their home from the garage.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrison had just returned from an automobile ride. As they left their garage a man stepped from the shadows and ordered them to raise their hands. Instead, Garrison jerked a revolver from his pocket.

As Garrison fired, a spurt from the machine gun struck Mrs. Garrison in the head. She fell, dying instantly. Garrison emptied his revolver at the machine gunners, then ran toward his house. Another volley of machine-gun bullets struck his legs and he fell.

Garrison, reputedly the operator of a gambling house known as "The Windsor," could give no reason for the attack.

The assault was regarded by police as a continuance of efforts of Chicago gangsters to cut into the profits of Peoria gambling. Police learned that Garrison had received several threatening calls.

Slump Laid to Market System

CHICAGO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Sam R. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, laid business depression to "the speculative system of marketing farm produce" today.

TEUTON FASCIST RATTLES SWORD

Versailles Pact Repeal and Even War Advocated

Reichstag Session in Tumult While Capital Seethes

Poll, However, Discloses Government Strength

BERLIN, Oct. 17. (AP)—Abrogation of the Treaty of Versailles and, if necessary to Germany's salvation, war were proclaimed by Gregor Strasser, Fascist party spokesman, before the Reichstag today, to be key points of German Fascist policy.

Herr Strasser's declarations were made after his fellow-partisans had howled down others speakers, who were forced to bellow their arguments for and against the government's program of economic reform, which, expounded yesterday by Chancellor Bruening, was up today for debate.

At one point in the proceedings, Socialists, sitting on the left of the Reichstag plenary hall, shouted, "throw them out," "throw them out." The Fascists replied, "Come and do it!" The bedlam lasted for hours and did not cease even when Herr Strasser took the floor.

It was the first time since the dissolution of the previous Reichstag on July 18, last, that the opposition parties, particularly the Left and Right, had opportunity to air their grievances.

GOVERNMENT STRENGTH

The government's strength, however, was shown in the fact that not only did the government's bill authorizing a foreign credit of $125,000,000 pass its first and second readings, but former Chancellor Mueller's guarded statements showed the Social Democrats, at least, with their 143 members, are willing to help the government over the pending nonconfidence crises, and possibly also with adoption of its financial program in a somewhat modified form.

Strasser declared that the Fascists are not seeking to embroil their nation in war, "but won't shrink from it if it should become the last means of bringing about German independence and social freedom." As to the Treaty of Versailles, he commented that it is "immoral and hence void."

The Reichstag session was held while working-class sections of the city, such as Wedding, seethed with disorder. In early morning rioting by Communists, who fought with police, three persons were injured before the disorder was suppressed. During the lunch hour police again had to use clubs to disperse the crowds in the Wedding district, and this afternoon the streets were heavily patrolled by mounted police in anticipation of possible renewal of the rioting after factory closing hours.

After Strasser's address the Fascists introduced a motion in the Reichstag demanding "expropriation without indemnification" for the benefit of the German peoples of the entire capital of bank and Bourse magnates, of East European Jews and others of foreign race who have migrated to Germany since August 1, 1914. To make the motion more sweeping, it was extended to "the families of relatives of these and to moneys invested and increased since that date through war, revolution, inflation, deflation and profiteering."

The motion also demanded the government take over all large banks, including the Reichsbank.

COMMUNIST'S TIRADE

The Communist, Wilhelm Pieck, used the forum chiefly for a tirade against metal manufacturers, but he also delivered a bitter attack against the government, while his colleagues cried "red front!" He spoke before an almost empty house.

The Centrist, Joseph Joos, declared that his party supports the government's declaration. He said, "By the very fact of remaining in office, our government has strengthened the confidence of foreign countries in Germany."

A highlight of the opposition attitude came when the Fascist spokesman, Strasser, turning to the Social Democratic benches, shouted: "The time is not distant when we will use law for protection of the republic against you.

"We are for the constitution and we shall maintain ourselves in power on the strength of it. Just wait until the day for squaring accounts with you comes."

YOUNG PLAN ATTACKED

Ernst Oberfohren, Nationalist, launched into a bitter attack on the Young plan, which he said must be revised. He demanded a special reparations duty on all imports into Germany.

Foreign Minister Curtius next became the target of an attack by Oberfohren, who found everything that Curtius recently did at Geneva was wrong, especially his indorsement of the Pan-Europe idea.

The atmosphere became so tense at one time that Chancellor Bruening rose brusquely and walked out. That was when Strasser was paying acid compliments to Cabinet members.

Any idea that Strasser was talking at random about the Fascist aspirations was dissipated by the way he read, point by point, from a carefully prepared manuscript.

When he finished his fellow Fascist Reichstagers cheered wildly for several minutes, winding up with shouts "Hail Strasser" and "Germany, awaken."

FASCIST PLATFORM

(1.) Abrogation of the "immortal and therefore invalid" Versailles Treaty.

(2.) Revision of the Young plan, before, not after, the reform of Germany's finances.

(3.) Restoration of universal military service and adoption of compulsory work for all citizens.

(4.) To work for peace but to resort to war if that should become necessary to achieve Germany's independence and social liberation.

(5.) Laws making the export of capital treasonable.

(6.) Use of the law for protection of the republic "to square accounts" with the Social Democrats. (This was where Strasser referred to the Fascist aim of dissolving the Prussian Diet, remarking the future is with the Fascists and they can wait until they are able to use the law to even up with the Social Democrats.)

(7.) Elimination of Jews from German life.

The Cabinet's only speaker today was Dr. Hermann Dietrich, the Finance Minister, selected last spring to try to lead Germany through its business troubles, but by the time representatives of the government coalition had reached their turn to talk interest in the Reichstag proceedings was on the wane.

It was agreed the debate would be resumed Saturday forenoon and it was expected a vote then would be taken on some of the impending measures.

A hopeful sign of the day's proceedings was noted on the Bourse where, with the apparent probability of the government loan going through, stocks rose 4 to 7 points.

AID TO HITLERITES BY EX-KAISER REPORTED

BERLIN, Oct. 17. (AP)—The newspaper Achtuhr Abendblatt today stated American financial support for Adolf Hitler's Fascist movement has ceased and it is reported the former Kaiser from his exile at at Doorn, Holland, has helped to finance the Fascist election campaign.

In an article carrying the caption "Is William II one of the big financial backers of Fascism?" the paper says earlier support from Hitler's American admirers apparently has run dry.

The Jewish Telegraph Agency also reports learning from reliable sources that the ex-Kaiser was the financial "Angel" of the Fascists. The former Emperor has a huge fortune at his command.

Reported Capone Graft-Payment Records Seized

CHICAGO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Records of reputed graft payments of "Scarface Al" Capone's Northwest Side beer boss were seized in a Loop hotel raid today.

The beer boss, Frankie Lawler, was arrested, along with his wife. On him were found the records said to show payments to detective squads and policemen. One item was a $27.50 donation to a church.

There was another blow aimed at the Capone forces.

The Business Men's Crime Committee dragged out of the "quashed" heap, an old indictment charging the scar-faced gang leader with complicity in the murder several years ago of William McSwiggin, assistant State's Attorney. The State's Attorney's office planned to seek a new indictment.

Mather Tree Planting Set

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. (Exclusive)—The Department of the Interior announced today that in memory of the late Stephen T. Mather, first director of the National Park Service, an oak tree will be planted at the old Mather homestead at Darien, Ct., on Sunday.

REPORT BURSTS ARIZONA CLAIM

Colorado River Commission Findings Stated

Revenue Rather Than Water Declared Objective

Yielding to Demands Means Irremediable Loss

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 17. (Exclusive)—Arizona's demands for water from the Colorado River are declared to be exorbitant in a report of the California Colorado River Commission, which was filed today with Gov. Young. The report is in printed form and contains maps, plats, statistical data and a history of the river development.

"Arizona has insisted," says the report, "that California is developing more rapidly and consequently if allowed to go ahead unhampered will use an amount of water which Arizona claims will hamper Arizona in her development.

FACT OTHERWISE

"As a matter of fact, Arizona is developing new agricultural land faster than California; the reason being that Arizona development is being done by the United States Reclamation Service, while in California it is being financed by private capital.

"In California there has been considerable apprehension over the possibility that this State might accept some of the proposals made by Arizona and thereby condemn acreage which is known to be capable of irrigation to remain forever dry.

"The California commission feels that Arizona's demands for water are exorbitant and not justified by surveys and engineering reports. What Arizona is really contending for is something besides water; probably principally revenue.

MEXICO WAITING

Referring to the large acreage of productive land lying south of the international boundary that is in need of water, the report says:

"It should be noted that there is no possibility of storage of water in Mexico. All of the normal flow of the Colorado River has been utilized and any additional amount of water made available for Mexican lands will of necessity have to come from, and be available on account of, water stored somewhere up the river in the United States.

"The construction of Boulder Dam and the consequent regulation of the river will permit the irrigation of vast tracts of land in Mexico if Boulder Dam water is not allocated among the lower basin States in such a way as to permit logical and reasonable development in the various interests.

TROUBLE AHEAD

"Allocation of water to one State where it cannot be used, thus preventing the use of such water in another State, will permit extra water to flow down the river to Mexico, where it will almost certainly be put to use and lead to future international complications and embarrassment."

Members of the commission who signed the report are John L. Bacon of San Diego; W. B. Mathews of Los Angeles, and Earl C. Pound of Brawley.

IMMIGRATION SHARPLY CUT

Drop Attributed Almost Entirely to New Rule Requiring Consuls to Bar Undesirables

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. (AP)—A sharp reduction in the number of immigrants coming to the United States as the result of new regulations recently promulgated by the administration was reported today by the Labor Department.

Definite figures on the decline will be issued within a few days in a report on September immigration. The drop in the number of immigrants was attributed almost entirely to the order sent to American Consuls to use discretionary powers in withholding visas from persons who might become public charges in this country.

The order was issued at the direction of President Hoover as a result of the unemployment conditions in the United States.

"We know the check in immigration is being most felt in Canada and Mexico," said Harry E. Hull, Commissioner-General of Immigration. "Nevertheless it is also affecting markedly the movement from Europe."

The new regulation was in effect only during part of August, but it was considered by immigration officials as largely responsible for the reduction of immigrants that month to 34,350, as compared with 41,785 in August last year.

Canada's total was 4137, against 7408 last year. Entries from Mexico were reduced to 425 from 1640 last year; Great Britain sent 1663 against 1910; Germany 1425, against 2301; and Italy 1341, against 2030. The totals apply only to persons coming to the United States to reside.

NOW NOBODY WANTS CARE OF DIAMOND

Hospital Seeks to Get Rid of Gangster but Police Refuse to Take Him

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. (Exclusive) The only fireworks today in the investigation of the shooting of Jack (Legs) Diamond developed in a fight between the police department and Polyclinic Hospital over who should take him.

Alive and on the road to good health, despite the lead cargo of four bullets his enemies pumped into him last Sunday morning at the Monticello Hotel, Diamond became a red-hot patient nobody wants.

The board of directors of the hospital fought to get rid of Diamond and Chief Police Inspector Sullivan fought just as fiercely against taking the notorious Broadway killer away.

A warning that Diamond's enemies intend to bomb the hospital tonight led to the fight by the hospital authorities to get rid of the gangster. Supt. A. A. Jaller was so impressed by the warning that he immediately sent a hurry call for protection to police and many reserves were sent to the hospital.

Jaller insisted Diamond is well enough to be moved, but Inspector Sullivan said the police have no charge against him and cannot move him.

Meanwhile Diamond's show-girl sweetheart, Marion Roberts, remains in jail, held as a material witness to the shooting. She was with Diamond a few minutes before two gunmen attacked him last Sunday.

X-ray examination showed that the two gunmen kicked him around considerably after they felled him with four bullets of the eight they fired. Three of his ribs were found broken—by boots, not bullets.

GRAND JURY TO RECEIVE BLAST CASE

Sacramento Prosecutor Will Seek Indictment of Unionists as Plotters

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Dist.-Atty. McAllister announced today he will lay before the Sacramento county grand jury evidence to show that four members of the local motion-picture operators' union and W. R. Federolf, its business agent, conspired to dynamite the Mission Theater here Thursday, and planned other acts of violence in their dispute with theater owners.

McAllister indicated he will ask an indictment against Joseph Apathy whom the police apprehended with an unidentified "investigator" in the Mission theater, assertedly in the act of planting a stick of dynamite.

Federolf and the other union men are accused by McAllister of not only having knowledge of the asserted plot but with conspiring to carry out the actual dynamiting.

McAllister said he possessed evidence to prove the men planned to dynamite the home of Emil Heber, owner of the Mission showhouse, and that they conspired to burn the California Theater, another playhouse in dispute over elimination of assistant projection-machine operators.

Federolf and Apathy are at liberty on $5000 bonds. Efforts are being made to obtain bail for the other men, H. W. Reynolds, George Dalton and Leo Smith.

WOMAN GIVES CLEW TO KILLER

Deserted Texas Bride Says She Wed George Perry

Tale of Being Drugged on Honeymoon Related

Suspect Wanted for Murder of Former Wife

MIDLAND (Tex.) Oct. 17. (AP)—Mrs. L. E. Remington, Midland, formerly of Fort Worth, said tonight she married a man believed to be George (Jiggs) Perry, wanted in Wisconsin for the asserted slaying of his "want ad bride" several months ago. She said he tricked her out of more than $4000 and disappeared.

Perry has been sought for several weeks as the slayer of one of five women he is asserted to have married and abandoned.

Mrs. Remington said that last April she began corresponding with a man who gave the name of George A. Adams. She met him through a matrimonial agency, she said, and kept up the correspondence "principally for fun."

PERSISTENT WOOER

In letters from Michigan City, Ind., the man urged her to marry him, telling her he owned valuable property in Jacksonville, Fla., and that a marriage would make him independent for life. He was very insistent, she said, and deluged her with special delivery letters and telegrams.

She explained to him that under a Texas law a license could not be obtained without three days' notice and was told that the man's vast business would not permit him to spend three days in Texas. Thereupon, she said, she consented to meet him in Durant, Okla.

BELIEVED DRUGGED

She was met by the man in Durant and found he already had obtained a license. After the ceremony, she stated, her husband took her for an automobile ride and he gave her a drink of orange juice, which she now believes had been drugged.

From that time until the man deserted her in Chicago about a month later, she said, she never was allowed to recover from the influence of drugs. She never suspected, however, she said, that she was drugged, until later.

After several days in Durant, she related, her husband induced her to return to Fort Worth and presently began urging her to dispose of valuable property which she owned there, saying his business required a certain amount of cash. He told her, she said, he would be able to repay her many times.

DESERTED IN CHICAGO

Finally she agreed to disposal of her property. She said she learned subsequently he had sold it for $4800 property worth several times that amount.

After the sale, the couple went by automobile to Chicago and on May 14 the man registered at the La Salle Hotel and took her to a room where he left her. Mrs. Remington said she never saw him again.

She returned to Fort Worth and instituted an investigation to determine whether she could recover her property. Attorneys told her they believe the property can be recovered because of a technicality in signing the deeds, namely, the failure of the man to sign his own name.

After the body of Mrs. Cora Hackett was found in Wisconsin, pictures of Perry were printed in Texas papers and Mrs. Remington saw one of these. She said she saw a resemblance between Perry and the man who said he was Adams.

SIGHTLESS MURDERER EXECUTED

Condemned Man Blinded Self to Blot Out Vision of Electric Chair

HUNTSVILLE (Tex.) Oct. 17. (Exclusive)—Joyce Shepard, a murderer, stepped into the oblivion of eternity here early today blind.

Fearful that the sight of the electric chair would weaken his resolve to die gamely, Shepard, who also was known as Bill Smith, two weeks ago, gouged out his eyes to blot out the hideous specter of the chair.

He tore a nail from the ventilator of his cell, sharpened it on the concrete floor and without uttering a sound plunged it first into one eye ball and then the other.

The knowledge of his blindness became known for the first time Thursday, when reporters were admitted to his cell on the eve of his execution.

"Why did you do it?" reporters asked Shepard.

Staring straight ahead with his sightless, disfigured eyes, Shepard mumbled a biblical quotation: "If thine eye offend thee, pluck it out."

Cell-mates were of the opinion that Shepard dreaded the sight of the chair so much that he believed he could go to his death more composed if its outstretched arms did not greet his eyes when he entered the death chamber. Shepard was executed for the slaying of Sheriff Bob Smith and Deputy Jake Owens of Fisher county in 1927.

UNITED STATES MAIN DOPE USER

Austrian Police Trace Huge European Shipments

Illicit Trade Keeps Large Factories Busy

Report Expected to Arouse American Government

GENEVA, Oct. 17. (AP)—A report by the Austrian Federal police to the League of Nations today said all the big European narcotics factories at present appear to be working to supply the illicit narcotics traffic in the United States.

Their report was based on an extensive inquiry in European countries manufacturing narcotics. The Austrians were principally interested in discovering what was becoming of the opium products now being manufactured in Europe.

Summarizing the findings, the report concludes:

"There is no denying one fact—that is, the illicit traffic in narcotics puts the regular traffic in the shade.

TRACED TO AMERICA

"The alkaloid industry would appear to be working solely for the illicit traffic, and this applies whether the firm has a world-wide reputation or whether its producers do not enjoy any special repute in the circles concerned.

"All the big cases of smuggling with which the narcotics branch at police headquarters has had to deal in recent years have pointed eastward. All could be traced as far as Turkey or Egypt, and in most cases farther still, to Shanghai and Japan, and ultimately to America.

EFFECT OF REPORT

"The United States is the final goal of the big consignments of narcotics. All the big European alkaloid factories appear to be working for that country."

Well-informed quarters in Geneva suggested the disclosures in this report might encourage the Washington government to participate in the League's world conference for the limitation of manufacture of opium products. This is scheduled to meet in Geneva May 27, 1931.

The League has invited the United States, as well as Russia and Turkey, to participate.

FISH CANNERS DRAFT MASON

Angeleno to Manage State Organization

Announcement of Selection Made by Chief

Will Take Over New Duties Next Monday

BY WAYNE B. CAVE

The drafting of Harry S. Mason of Los Angeles as first manager of the newly formed State-wide California Fish Canners' Association was announced yesterday by Bismarck Houssels, of Van Camp Sea Food Company, who is president of the State body. Mason will assume his post Monday.

The association comprises executives of more than a score of canneries throughout the State, whose packed output of canned fish alone, exclusive of fresh market fish, yields to California $35,000,000 of new wealth yearly. It was organized in the early summer, but of all the applicants for manager, the members could agree on no one.

Finally a search was made for executives who did not seek the job, and Mason was induced to accept the post. He is not experienced in fisheries, but he has a record as an organizing executive and is expected to inject highly progressive business methods into the industry, Mr. Houssels said.

Mason was president of the Los Angeles Automobile Trade Association in 1921-22, president of a similar State body the following year, president of the Los Angeles Rotary Club in 1923-24, and district governor of Rotary for California and Nevada the following year. For a decade he has been an executive of the Electric Equipment Company. He lives at 122 North Oxford, but whether the association's headquarters will be in Los Angeles or San Francisco hasn't been decided. Mr. Mason will visit packers at Monterey Monday, and meet with the association directors at San Francisco two days later.

The Coast Guard's newest cruising cutter, the U.S.S. Sebago, is in port on her voyage of delivery from San Francisco to New York, to which port she has been assigned for offshore patrol. She will sail for the east coast Monday.

In command of Commander H. R. Searles, the Sebago represents the last word in the Coast Guard's development of the large cruising cutter. Like the U.S.S. Tahoe, on local station, she is 250 feet long and was built at the Oakland yards of the General Engineering and Dry Dock Company. Her turbo-electric power plant has been increased, however, to 3500 horsepower, so that she has a top sea speed of nineteen knots and an operating radius of 9000 miles. Next summer she is scheduled for assignment to the North Atlantic ice patrol, off the Newfoundland coast.

John C. MacQuiddy, marine superintendent of the Standard Oil Company at the port, returned to his desk yesterday after a fortnight's vacation in Northern California.

Imminent reorganization is expected to bring into the United States intercoastal conference the nonconference lines of Dimon, Isthmian and Argonaut and the Calmar, according to word from New York. The threatened withdrawal of three Class A lines, because they must pool earnings with Class B lines, has been set over till the 27th inst., and a peace meeting will be called before that time, with compromises reported assured. One local executive of an intercoastal line said yesterday the intercoastal trade had recuperated greatly in the last six weeks and is almost normal.

One hundred and fifteen bales of Japanese silk are due today on the Klaveness motorship Somerville, for transshipment to New York in cars of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines. The ship will discharge 1900 tons of oriental cargo. Another silk shipment, more than 1000 bales, is due here late this month on the motorship Kwanto Maru, on her maiden voyage as the third of six new, fast Osaka Shosahen Kaisha freighters to touch Los Angeles on the run between Japan and New York.

Hearings on the fatal gassings on the tanker Tascalusa at a local shipyard two months ago, were reopened at the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce Building yesterday by Warren H. Pillsbury, deputy commissioner for the Federal Longshoremen's Compensation Act. Two men were killed and a dozen injured by a gas-emitting paint in an interior tank.

IRISH TEST SKIBOS ON GRID TODAY

Rockne to Start Regulars if Coach Steffen Puts in His First-Stringers

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Oct. 17. (AP) The trails of two of the potential national football championship elevens drew closer to a cross-road tonight as the Skibos of Carnegie Tech and the Ramblers of Notre Dame finished preparations, physical and psychological, for the important encounter tomorrow.

Knute Rockne was planning to start his regulars, if Walter Steffen starts Carnegie Tech's first string. But if Steffen uses his first-string line and second backfield, at the start, Rockne wants to do the same thing. The problem was Steffen's as well as Rockne's.

Rockne, disregarding doctor's orders, went on to the practice field in uniform today and participated in a dummy scrimmage against Skibo lateral and forward passes, in a last-minute effort to add a little to the knowledge his men already possess. He worked long with jumping Joe Savoldi, who will see plenty of service at fullback. Larry Mullins, regular fullback, is definitely out with his track knee.

TIGERS TRIPPED BY SAN DIEGO

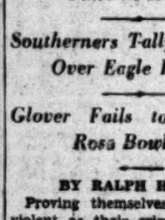
Occidental Bows for First Time in History

Southerners Tally 14-7 Win Over Eagle Rockers

Glover Fails to Score in Rose Bowl Tilt

BY RALPH HUSTON

Proving themselves every bit as violent as their crimson-hued jerseys, the Aztecs of San Diego State College battered their way to a 14-7 victory over Occidental in the Rose Bowl last night, and became pre-eminent favorites to take the Southern Conference football title.



The Aztecs not only proved themselves most capable on both offense and defense, but in winning from the Tigers made it two victories in two starts over conference rivals, and those two victories were scored at the expense of the two leading teams in the loop—Pomona and Oxy.

All of the scoring was done in the second half. San Diego got two legitimate touchdowns, and the Tigers scored on a blocked kick. The Aztecs ran up eighteen first downs to six for the Tigers. And Oxy failed to score, when the Tigers had a first down on the 4-yard stripe. That's how good Coach Walter Herreid's outfit is, in the new mentor's first year at the helm of the Border City eleven.

GLOVER STOPPED

"Dashing Dick" Glover, Oxy's leading touchdown manufacturer, was pretty well bottled up. He got away for one 33-yard gallop, and another of 42, in the second quarter, to put Occidental well down in San Diego territory, but he was unable to gain when the goal line was in sight. "Dashing Dick" wasn't alone in that particular lack, however, for none of the Tiger backs were doing anything worth mentioning when within scoring distance.

There was great jubilation in the San Diego rooting section, and quite a goodly crowd was there, too. Not only did it give the Aztecs the inside track on the conference crown, but it was San Diego's first victory in history over the Tigers.

The first quarter was strictly a punting duel, with neither team making any threats. Early in the second quarter Glover raced 33 yards to the San Diego 32-yard stripe, but in four downs Oxy lost the ball on the 35-yard line, losing 2 yards in four plays.

After a few more punts, San Diego worked up to the Tiger 38-yard line, but was forced to punt. It wasn't long before Glover got away again, and he blazed his way 42 yards up the field to the San Diego 28-yard line where he was run out of bounds by Dilley.

The Tigers gained just a yard in two plays at the line, so they resorted to the air, and the Aztecs' backs knocked down a couple of overhead attempts to regain possession of the ball on their own 28-yard line. The Aztecs punted out of

HUFFORD OUT OF OREGON TILT

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 17. (AP)—An argument started back in 1928 between Jimmy Phelan and Dr. Clarence Spears in the Big Ten Conference will be continued on the Pacific Coast tomorrow when the Universities of Oregon and Washington football teams tangle on neutral ground here.

The two coaches were lured to the Pacific Northwest almost simultaneously last spring—Phelan to Washington and Spears to Oregon.

In their first and only meeting in the past, Spears's heavy Minnesota eleven conquered Phelan's Purdue team, 15 to 0.

Oregon has been doped as a stronger team than Washington but no official comparison can be made as neither eleven has had the same competition yet this season.

Both elevens have been hit by injuries. Spears lost his brilliant sophomore halfback, Don Watts, when the Pennsylvania Dutchman suffered a broken collar bone and Phelan is without the services of his triple threat ace, Merle Hufford. The Husky halfback is recuperating from an infected leg.

TROJANS MEET AGGIES TODAY

Utah Eleven Opposes S.C. at Coliseum

Jones Absent; Hunter Runs Trojan Eleven

S.C. Freshmen Face Bears in Preliminary

BY PAUL LOWRY

Leaders of the Rocky Mountain Conference, the Utah Aggies, face Southern California today in the Trojans' last game before the Stanford battle at Palo Alto next week.

The Aggies, some twenty pounds lighter to the man than the Trojans, arrived here yesterday and had a light workout in the afternoon at the Coliseum.

The Aggie-Trojan fray is one-half of a double bill at the Coliseum this afternoon, the first portion being the annual struggle between the California frosh and the Southern California frosh. The peagreen game starts at 12:30 o'clock and the varsity affair at 2:30.

ONE-SIDED

Two years ago the Utah Aggies opened the season against the Trojans, and were defeated, 40 to 12.

However, this year's team is said to be a much better aggregation than the 1928 outfit, and has already met two of the best teams in the Rocky Mountain Conference.

The Aggies defeated Colorado College and played a scoreless tie with Colorado University last week. Colorado U. defeated the University of Missouri at Columbia the week before meeting and playing the tie game with the Aggies.

Formerly a star player at Utah and later with the Ninety-first Division team at Camp Lewis during the war, Dick Romney has been a successful coach with the Aggies for the past eleven years.

Not always blessed with the best of material nor wealth of reserves, Romney has kept the Aggies in the winning column in their own conference, their average for the eleven-year period being .666.

This year the Aggies are said to be well fortified with reserves at every position except center, and there Vranes, sophomore, has given nobody else a chance to shine. He is heralded as a sensation.

WELL FORTIFIED

There are two pairs of guards, either pair of which may start the game; tackle reserves which are effective as substitutes, though light; two pair of equally fine ends, and two complete backfields.

The Aggies have two co-captains, and each heads a backfield, the quartet of Co-captain Remund, Thompson, Young and Childs having a slightly higher rating than the foursome of Co-captain Gillespie, Sparks, Forgeson and Parkinson.

Remund is said to be the ace of the team, offensively and defensively. Gillespie is the speed burner of the outfit.

Southern California's starting squad probably will not be known until game time. It has been shifted around considerably since the Washington State debacle, and will see at least three new starting faces in Black at guard, Mohler at quarter and Shaver at fullback.

Howard Jones went north last night to see Stanford in action against Oregon State at Palo Alto today, and the Trojan squad will be in charge of Bill Hunter, as-

HELEN HICKS DEFEATED BY DEFENDING CHAMPION

BY EDWARD LAWRENCE

History repeats itself down the well-worn fairways of the Los Angeles Country Club this morning when the finalists of 1928, Glenna Collett of New York and Virginia Van Wie of Chicago meet over thirty-six holes for the thirty-fourth annual women's championship of the United States.

Casting aside the cloak of indifferent golf that has featured her game for the past week, Glenna burst forth in the true colors of a champion yesterday to defeat Helen Hicks of Inwood, L. I., 5 and 3.

No with less brilliant was the play of Miss Van Wie to defeat Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, the medalist, 2 and 1.

And what is in store for today as these two sterling young golfers tee off at 10 o'clock and again at 2?

There is Glenna, picking up speed as she presses steadily on toward a fifth women's championship, against the girl she defeated, 13 and 12, at the Virginia Hot Springs Golf and Tennis Club two years ago. Now don't sentence Virginia to defeat without a fair trial. Two years is a long time when a girl comes along as rapidly as Miss Van Wie has and today she is a polished, seasoned veteran with a golf swing that is a thing of beauty.

But after all that indefinable championship spark is Glenna's.

GLENNA GREAT

True, she played an impotent Billy Hicks yesterday, whose every shot was an agony of indecision, yet Helen at her best would have had her hands full defeating a Glenna who was 5 under women's par when the match ended at the short fifteenth.

Before we go further, however, here's word of praise for Billy, tomorrow's champion of champions. She was the color of this championship, and out of yesterday's gallery of 4000, you couldn't have found a half-dozen who didn't want to see her win. Billy has the personality, the golf game, and the sportsman-

New Faces Will Be Seen on California Squad in Contest Today

BERKELEY, Oct. 17. (Exclusive) New faces will parade on the memorial stadium greensward tomorrow afternoon when Coach Clarence (Nibs) Price sends his University of California "B," or second squad, against the San Francisco Olympic Club football team. It is fortunate for Price that the University of Washington game is next Saturday instead of this week, for he would probably have to play the second string whether he wanted to or not. Trainer Charlie Volz today admitted a list of sixteen players who are on the injured list and should not be used in heavy action.

Many notable changes will greet the bleacher coaches tomorrow. The outstanding innovation, perhaps, will be the substitution of Bill McCutcheon for Ed Griffiths and Ed Kirwan. The last two are regular first-choice quarterbacks. Kirwan has some cartilage torn away in the region of the ribs, and Griffiths is hobbling along on a bad ankle like a barefoot boy with blisters. McCutcheon is a strong running halfback with lots of power and speed. His debut as a quarterback should prove successful, to judge from

CARDINAL FROSH FACE BRUIN YEARLINGS TODAY

The undefeated and highly touted U.C.L.A. freshman eleven will have its first big chance to show its ability this afternoon when it plays the Stanford University first-year team on the Westwood gridiron, the game to be called at 2:30 o'clock. The Cardinal yearlings, also undefeated, but tied once by Sacramento Junior College, are the pregame favorites, but the Bruin frosh are counting on a victory.

The big hopes of the local eleven are Joe Keeble, stellar fullback, and Bill Robb, punting and passing ace. Wesley Kasl, who has demonstrated as a first-class pass receiver, is also counted upon heavily in the Bruin frosh offensive. The Bruin line is husky, weighing slightly more than the Cardinal forward wall, and if the locals' line play clicks as it did last week against Oneonta Military Academy when outweighed twenty pounds to the man, a Westwood victory may be chalked up.

Former prep stars of Southern California are the big shots in Coach "Rabbit" Bradshaw's Stanford eleven. In the backfield is Johnny Hillman, younger brother of Harry of the Cardinal varsity, a former Hollywood High School flash, at quarterback, and Charles White, formerly of Los Angeles High School, at one halfback. In the line is Donn Tatum, tackle from Los Angeles High School.

STANFORD WARRIORS TO MEET OREGON STATERS

PALO ALTO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Stanford and Oregon State football teams rested tonight in readiness for their clash at Stanford Stadium tomorrow.

The Oregon State team, headed by Coach Paul J. Schissler, arrived today and warmed up at Stanford Stadium, familiarizing themselves with the feel of the turf and accustoming themselves to the warm weather.

The players left their train in San Francisco and were brought here in busses. After practice they had luncheon here and then left for Castlewood Country Club, where they will remain until the game tomorrow.

Wayne Harn was taken to a Palo Alto hospital shortly after their arrival and was operated on for a slight knee infection. Coach Schissler said he will be definitely out of tomorrow's game.

Schissler said the team was about as good as last year with the exception of a stronger backfield. He said the hot weather here today seemed to affect them little. Beyond this he declined to make a statement, saying he would let the team speak for him on the field tomorrow.

Coach Pop Warner and Coach Schissler went to San Francisco tonight.

VANDALS RUIN GRID GAME

LODI, Oct. 17. (AP)—The annual football game between Lodi and Sacramento high schools was called off today and declared forfeited to Lodi by the California Interscholastic Federation because of vandalism on the part of Sacramento students.

Students came to Lodi from Sacramento last night and burned a large S on the lawn in front of the high school, another near-by, and painted the pillars and doors of the building.

The boys, 16 of them, confessed and were brought to Lodi today by Principal Burdick. They offered a formal apology to the student body and the matter was considered closed.

Under C.I.F. rules, Sacramento could be prevented from taking part in any more competitions this year, but Lodi officials said the point would not be pressed and future games will be played as scheduled.

TOILERS UNCORK POWER TO WIN

Bill Howard Tallies Two Touchdowns

Gordie Easton Blocks Pair of Pathfinder Kicks

Blewett's Outfit Chalks Up 14 First Downs

BY IRVING ECKOFF

Uncorking the power that lay dormant last week against L. A. High, Coach Jim Blewett's Manual Arts Toilers swept to a 29-0 victory over the Fremont Pathfinders yesterday afternoon. The game, which was played on the Pathfinders' gridiron, was witnessed by a capacity crowd of some 7000 fans.

The outcome of the rather uneven struggle was never in doubt, the Toilers tallying twice in the first quarter, once in the second and third periods, while a host of substitutes on both sides kept them from the Pathfinders' goal in the last period.

Bill Howard was the outstanding ball packer for the Toilers, making two touchdowns and converting three for a grand total of 15 points.

Howard tallied the first two Manual scores, both of them coming after straight line drives. The first one started from the Fremont 40-yard line, while the second one began on the Pathfinder's 40-yard strip. Both were made in the first quarter.

Early in the second period, Louis Lazarovitz scored for the Toilers on a spin play from the 3-yard line. Howard started the touchdown march, when he intercepted Spindel's pass on the Manual 45-yard line and galloped to the Fremont 35-yard marker.

Coach George Dirck's Pathfinders made a much better showing in the second quarter, however, than they did in the opening period. Manual made 104 yards from scrimmage in the first quarter to Fremont's 39 and 35 of that was a gallop by Keith Lee.

In the third quarter Gordie Easton blocked two of Spindel's kicks, the first being recovered by Bell for the fourth Toiler touchdown. The other was recovered by Spindel for a safety which added two more points to Manual's already large total.

Walter Clark, the Pathfinders' injured star, got into the contest in the second quarter and played a whirl wind game until he and Wilmer Mathews collided. Mathews, stocky Toiler backfield man, tackled the galloping Pathfinder, while Clark was under full sail speeding around right end. Both went down in a mess with Mathews getting up tougher than ever, while Clark was pretty well slowed up.

Manual made fourteen first downs to Fremont's six. The Toilers moved the yard sticks eight times in the first quarter but took it easy from then on.

SAN BERNARDINO BOWS TO COVINA COLTS

Shoving over a touchdown in the last minute of play Coach Ted Gorrell's Covina Colts defeated San Bernardino, 6 to 0, in an opening Citrus Belt League game yesterday on the victors' field. Near the close of the game the Colts gained possession of the ball on the Cardinals' 30-yard line and Doug Fischer, regular Covina quarterback who was kept out of most of the contest because of injuries, was rushed in. In six plays Fischer lugged the oval to the 1-yard marker, from where Happy Rauschenbach, sub fullback, smashed it over. Line-ups:

SANTA ANA WALLOPS COMPTON, 19-0

Alvin Reboin, quarterback and captain of the Santa Ana team, was the whole show as the Saints won their second Coast League game, defeating the Compton Tartars on the losers' field. Reboin smashed the line, ran the ends, passed and punted the Tartars dizzy to account for two of his team's touchdowns. Higashi, left half, scored the first touchdown for the Santa Ana squad, smashing over in the second quarter. Leo Lawrence was the outstanding Tartar, playing a nice offensive game. The Compton team had the ball on the 1-yard line, but Boone, who attempted to smash it over, fumbled.

Baer Accepts Kennedy Bout

Max Baer and Les Kennedy will meet in a rematch in Oakland. The bout was closed yesterday when Kennedy accepted a flat guarantee of $4000 for the northern bout. No date is named since Baer is still under suspension, but since he was cleared of all charges in the tragic death of Frankie Campbell it is believed he will be permitted to work. Promoter Louis Parente has both fighters signed.

COLONIALS DEFEATED BY ROMANS

Chuck Cheshire Stars as L. A. High Romps to 28-0 Victory Over Fairfax

"Chuck" Cheshire, flashy Roman halfback, was just about the difference between Fairfax and Los Angeles high schools yesterday afternoon in the grid battle on the Colonials' field. Cheshire scored two touchdowns himself, and converted one of them, and generally was the spark-plug in the 28-to-0 triumph of the Romans.

Fairfax was weak on the ends, and in the backfield, with one exception, and were easy marks for end runs and reverses. The one exception in the Colonial backfield was Bill Spaulding, Jr., son of the U.C.L.A. varsity coach, who did some excellent passing and good defensive work. In fact, the only thing that made the game one-sided was the failure of Fairfax receivers to hold on to young Bill's accurate heaves.

In the first quarter, Melo Almada scored from the Fairfax 25-yard line on a reverse from Cheshire, the conversion failing, and soon after the Romans added two points on a safety. Cheshire punted out of bounds on the Fairfax 5-yard line, and on a bad pass from center, Carlton was tackled by Capt. Hathaway of Los Angeles. The second period was scoreless.

In the third quarter, Cheshire scored on an 8-yard pass from Funk and then kicked goal. About eight minutes later, he jaunted thirty-one yards on a cut-back play for another score, and in the same period went over the goal line again, but L. A. was called back for a holding penalty. McClain, Roman quarter, scored the final touchdown in the last quarter on an intercepted pass, traveling thirty-eight yards. The extra point was added.

CALPREP SWEEPS TO 13-7 VICTORY

The California Preparatory School eleven defeated the Southern California Military eleven yesterday afternoon, 13 to 7, on the victors' gridiron. The first touchdown for the winners came in the first quarter, David making the score. Jones intercepted a pass to score for Southern California in the third quarter, but in the last minute of play a twenty-yard pass from La Pronbois to Jasper won the game, Roth converting.

HARVARD SMEARS METROPOLITAN, 12-0

Pacing a team much better than their own the Metropolitan eleven went to defeat, 12-0, at the hands of Harvard School on the victors' grounds yesterday. GARFIELD HUMBLED BY LINCOLN, 14-0

Displaying a brand of football seldom seen in City League ranks, the Lincoln High eleven was lucky in putting across two touchdowns against the Garfield High footballers in a game held yesterday afternoon on the Poly High gridiron. The Bulldog eleven, considered the weakest team in the league, put up a valiant fight against the heavy favored Tigers. The final score favored the Tigers, 14-0.

The first touchdown came in the second quarter, Joe Aprato, Lincoln Tiger half, going over the goal from the 4-yard marker. The Tigers again scored in the third quarter, Tunzi, Lincoln signal caller, taking the ball over on an off-tackle play.

REDSHIRTS WIN OVER JEFFERSON

Hollywood Triumphs, 13-0, in Second League Game

When the smoke of battle cleared away on the Hollywood High gridiron yesterday the Foothillers found themselves on the heavy end of a 13-0 score over the Jefferson Democrats, thus chalking up their second City League victory.

The first half ended in a 0-0 tie, but a new spirited Hollywood team took the field at the opening of the second stanza. The Redshirts kept the pigskin in their possession throughout the entire third quarter with the exception of two Jefferson plays, one of which was fumbled, and the other, intercepted by Capt. Merrill. The charging trio of Scott, Bradley and Verdugo plowed its way from its own 35-yard line to the shadow of the Green and Gold goal posts and Scott went over center for the first tally. Scott went over for the extra point.

The fourth quarter was a duplicate of the third with Bradley and Verdugo going off tackle for large gains and Scott pounding the center. Scott again went over on a line buck, but his attempt to convert was stopped.

The fans received a thrill when Laurie Oliver, flashy Jefferson back, jaunted around right end for sixty-nine yards on the second play of the game only to be dragged down on the 1-yard line. The Crimson forward wall held for four downs and Judson kicked out of danger.

Important games are scheduled in the Pacific Coast Conference. One sends the University of Washington eleven to the University of Oregon at Portland while the other finds the Oregon State College at Palo Alto.

There is a great football bill in the East this Saturday. The Army with a new attack meets Harvard. Last year these teams battled to a 20-20 tie. The Army, though minus the services of Cagle, has a well-rounded offense and a fast-charging line. Harvard has a brilliant lateral-passing attack and the best forward passer in the East. I favor the Army by a close score.

Brown, with a powerful line, meets Yale at New Haven. Yale has a strong team. It will be a case of the Brown line against the Yale backfield. I look for a close game, but I believe Yale has the power and reserve strength to win.

Bucknell will have no difficulty with St. Thomas. Carnegie Tech, after its surprise showing against Georgia Tech, undoubtedly will give Notre Dame a close game.

Colgate, with a high-scoring team, meets Michigan State at East Lansing. Columbia and Dartmouth meet at Hanover in their first test.

Cornell comes to Princeton with the best team Dobie has coached in several years. Cornell has a fine running back in Viviana and an excellent passing attack. Princeton is untried and undeveloped but will fight hard. I look for a close game, even though scores of this fall favor Cornell.

his performances during weekly practice sessions. Clarence "Moose" Garrity has been doing so extraordinarily well in practice this week that Price today gave out his name as one of the starters at halfback. If the "Moose" shows up against the Winged O as he did all this week, he will stay in the game a long time.

Solons Make It Four in Row

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Sacramento won its fourth straight game here tonight from Portland, 9 to 3. Walter Mails, after hurling no-hit, no-run ball, blew up in the fifth and was knocked out of the box with a six-run splurge. Vinci was also knocked out, Ortman and Hubbell finishing the game.

CLAREMONT WINS COLTON CONTEST

Claremont won a 14-13 game from Colton High School yesterday, thanks to the C.I.F. ruling that the team making the most first downs wins, in case the score is tied at the end of the regular playing period. The score, after the timer's gun barked, was 13-13, but Claremont had made twelve first downs and Colton ten, so the former got the verdict. Line-ups:

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Sammy Santos, Filipino lightweight, won a decisive ten-round victory over Billy West, Pittsburgh, here tonight. Santos won eight of the ten rounds.

TURNER TWIRLS 7-3 WIN AS STARS CHASE BAECHT

BY BOB RAY

With big Jim Turner on the mound and pitching effectively, the Hollywood Stars ended the Angels' three-game winning streak by taking yesterday's Wrigley Field clash, 7 to 3.

Ed Baecht, ace of Jack Leivelt's chucking corps, started on the mound for the Seraphs, but the Sheiks battered him to the showers after five innings, during which they hammered him for all seven of their runs. Chuck Moncrief took the mound in the sixth and blanked the Stars for the remainder of the contest.

Turner, who is expected to be Oscar Vitt's mound choice in the pennant play-off opener against the Angels next Wednesday, held the Seraphs to eight hits to chalk up his twenty-second victory of the year. All of which is pretty fair for a youngster just out of the Piedmont League, a Class C circuit.

Of those eight hits off Turner, though, three of them were home runs that accounted for the trio of Seraph tallies. Wes Schulmerich parked one over the left-field wall in the fourth, Carl Dittmar duplicated the stunt in the seventh and George Harper dropped one into the bleachers in the eighth inning.

Tony Governor provided the wallop that knocked Baecht off the Christmas tree in the fifth when he tripled with the bases bulging to give the Vittmen five runs for the inning. The side should have been retired with only two runs scoring in that round, however, for Harper dropped a fly ball that, had it been caught, would have completely changed the complexion of the contest.

Hollywood scored first in the third when Lee walked, took second on a balk and counted on Brannan's single. Schulmerich's homer evened the count in the Angel fourth, but the Stars also scored in the fourth and had two men thrown out at the plate. Heath walked and took third on Bassler's hit only to be run down between third and home on Governor's grounder to Haney. Turner's single brought Bassler home, but Governor was out at the plate, Moore to Baecht to Hannah.

Then came the wild and woolly fifth. Gazella doubled and Lee singled infield for a starter. After Brannan went out, Jones singled infield to score Gazella. Lee stole third and counted when Harper dropped Carlyle's fly for a two-base error. Heath walked to fill the bases but Bassler fanned. Then came Governor's three-bagger to right and the ball game was over, for a six-run lead was more than enough for Turner to breeze in on to victory.

CASANOVA, HERRERA TO BOX TONIGHT

Two popular Mexican boxers will appear in the double main event at the Main Street Athletic Club tonight. Sandy Casanova, Mexican light-heavy, will meet Paul Drake, and Al Herrera, Mexican welterweight, will take on Mickey McLoughlin. The two Mexicans will be favorites, although Herrera figures to have a tougher bout than Casanova. The latter has had two bouts since returning to the ring a month ago and won both by knockouts. He is boxing and punching better than ever.

Santiago Lujan and Clifford Campbell, 115-pounders who box the four-round special event, are the smallest pair on the card. They are a fast little pair and both are club fighters.

DAN O'LEARY WALKS TODAY AT BELL GAME

Dan O'Leary, the 93-year-old pedestrian, is scheduled to walk again this afternoon preceding the baseball game between the L. A. Nippons and the Bell All-Stars on the latter's diamond. Dan walks six times around the bases in five minutes, and instead of slowing up as the years roll by, Dan actually believes he is getting faster.

O'NEILL STOPS RUIZ

Three Jaysee Games Today

Three important games will draw the attention of Jaysee football fans today. The undefeated Compton and Santa Ana teams will meet on the latter's gridiron in the game that is being picked as the feature encounter of the day. Los Angeles and Glendale will stage a battle on the Vermont-avenue field of the local school. Pasadena will travel to Fullerton, while Long Beach draws a bye to complete the day's schedule.

The Compton-Santa Ana fracas is a toss-up, with slight odds favoring the Dons. Compton's offensive star, Tom Yancey, is out with a broken nose, and their star guard, Howard Clark, will probably not be able to play because of a charley-horse. Coach Bill Cook has his two big guns of the backfield, Wayne Garlock and Clarence Hapes, ready for duty.

The Los Angeles-Glendale affair should be another close game, with the Cubs favored to cop the decision. Both of these teams met defeat in their opening games last Saturday and probably will be out for revenge. Fullerton is favored to down the Pasadena Bulldogs, because of a surprise victory over Glendale last week.

HELEN MOODY CALLS OFF JOURNEY SOUTH

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, women's tennis champion, today affirmed her intention of remaining in California the next few months and playing only exhibition tennis. She set at rest reports she had intended playing in matches in South America, saying she had received an invitation too late to accept.

WOMEN'S PLAY IN FINALS

Now for the sordid details.

Glenna was out in 38, one under perfect figures, against a 41 for Helen and was 2 up at the turn, as Billy time and time again committed the cardinal sin of golf—that of being short.

In traps on the first three holes Billy was 3 down before she could get under way and the handwriting was plainly to be seen on the wall.

Helen drove a long ball down the first fairway, but was outdistanced by Glenna. Her second was hooked into a trap and her third was over the green just off the putting surface in deep grass. She laid it stiff, however, for a sure par. Glenna in the meantime slammed two long woods down the middle and chipped eight feet past the pin, and then ran the putt down past a partial stymie for a winning birdie 4.

THREE DOWN

Billy trapped her drive, had rather a poor out, and then poked a brassie to the left of the second green in tall grass. Glenna again was right down the heart of the fairway with two and laid a chip shot six feet from the pin. Helen's chip was short and she missed the putt to lose the hole.

A great iron shot after a 250-yard drive netted Glenna another birdie and a win at the 350-yard third when she holed an eight-foot putt after Billy had found a trap with her second. Helen gained a brief respite when Glenna 3-putted the short fourth from thirty-five feet. Five was halved in pars when Glenna's eight-footer stopped on the lip of the cup, and the four-times champion then went on to the sixth hole to show the caliber of her game. Off line with a pitch shot that rolled into a hollow to the right of the green, and thirty feet past coming back, Glenna holed the putt for a half to maintain her lead.

Seven was halved in pars, when both had chip shots within a ten-foot area, but Glenna went 3 up at eight when she put her third nine feet from the pin. Helen was over in four and left herself a ten-foot putt coming back.

Billy rallied sharply to win nine and ten with a birdie and a par, when Glenna was twice in traps, but it was her final effort. On the 225-yard eleventh, the defending champion was in deep grass on a hillside, only to chip five feet past the hole for a birdie 3. Billy was also in deep grass, and her chip was weak, twenty feet from the hole. She missed the putt and Glenna was down for a win.

BILLY FALTERS

From that point on Helen's game went completely haywire, Glenna was on the twelve in two for a winning par, when Billy hooked her drive, pushed her second shot into the rough, and was forty feet short with a chip shot. She only got a half at thirteen by taking three putts, and then lost both fourteen and fifteen to birdies. Glenna played the final hole in championship form, laying her tee shot six feet from the pin and holing the putt.

Par (out)	554	354	463	—39
Collett	453	454	454	—38
Hicks	565	354	463	—41
Par (in)	544	563	555	—42—81
Collett	534	542
Hicks	446	563

Mrs. Hill was far off her usual form as she went out in 44 to be two down at the turn. Virginia started poorly when she dubbed a niblic into a trap after getting off two 250-yard wood shots, and the first hole was halved in 6's, Mrs. Hill putting a spade clear over the green.

A twenty-foot putt gave Virginia a birdie 4 to win at the second hole. Mrs. Hill was trapped on the third hole, but exploded out ten feet away and holed the putt to square the match. Virginia drove into deep rough, had a nice out, but it drifted into a trap and after getting on twelve feet from the pin in three, two putted for a 5.

They halved the next three holes, Virginia going 1 up again at the seventh when Mrs. Hill drove into the barranca, and took three to get on, Mrs. Hill was still shaky at eight, three putting after getting on in four, while Virginia was on in three and down in two putts from 20 feet away for a winning birdie 5. The medalist again three putted from 80 feet, and Virginia got a half, although driving a trap.

Virginia clicked off birdies at ten and eleven to take a 3 up lead. Her second at ten was 50 feet past the pin and her putt coming back rimmed the cup, just missing an eagle. She almost bagged another eagle at eleven, driving 10 feet from the pin and again having her putt barely miss dropping.

STAGES COMEBACK

Twelve was halved. Virginia winning thirteen with a par to all but cinch the match. Mrs. Hill came back gallantly, however, to win fourteen and fifteen and halve sixteen. At fourteen her fourth out of a trap stopped 2 feet from the pin, and Virginia took three from the edge at fifteen.

Virginia pulled herself out of trouble on seventeen in great style. Mrs. Hill was on in 3, 30 feet from the flag. Virginia's pitch was off line and rolled half way down the barranca to the right of the green, stopping in tall grass. Playing a looping niblic, she sent the ball high in the air to drop 3 feet from the pin. Mrs. Hill putted past, and Virginia holed hers for the victory.

The Cards:

Van Wie (out)	645	364	454	—41
Hill	654	364	574	—44
Van Wie (in)	435	574	45
Hill	535	653	45

George C. Thomas, Jr., who created the championship north course, is going to give the finalists something to shoot at today. George is always more than fair and he is going to make the long eighteenth a real finish hole for the finals. The eighteenth tee has been shortened, and the pin will be placed in the middle of the green to give the girls a chance to get on in two, a feat which has not been possible from the long tee. His placing of the tees has been splendid throughout the tournament.

EDITH QUIER WINS

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd entertained the women at their Beverly Hills home yesterday afternoon. Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., won a nine-hole tournament with a 35. Earnings for Recent Months Show Improvement

Third Quarter Profits Hold Below 1929 Levels

While third-quarter earnings of the Los Angeles Investment Company continued to run behind last year's results, operations over the past two months indicate the business of the company has definitely turned the corner for the better, R. P. Ingold, vice-president, announced yesterday with the issuance of the nine months' operating statement.

Net earnings of the company in July, Mr. Ingold pointed out, were below $20,000, but in August and September profits ran in excess of $47,000 and $48,000, respectively. "This showing together with current operations leads us to believe that profits for the remainder of the year will run between $45,000 and $50,000 a month," he said.

Net profits for the September quarter amounted to $115,237.41 after all charges, equivalent to 23 cents a share on the 500,000 shares of capital stock outstanding. This compares with $233,072.69 earned for the same period a year ago, equal to 46 cents a share.

Sales for the same period totaled $264,354.65, against $459,899.50 a year ago, a decrease of $195,544.85.

Net profits for the nine months ended September 30, amounted to $345,805.25, or nearly 70 cents a share as against $796,210.92 for the same period of 1929, or $1.59 a share.

Sales over this period amounted $834,769.16, which compare with $1,210,661.02 for the first nine months last year and represents a decrease of $375,891.86.

Income from oil royalties for the nine months accounted for $312,-167.45 of the earnings. Royalty income for the same period last year amounted to $373,732.75.

Based on the indicated earnings of from $45,000 to $50,000 a month for the balance of the year, the company will wind up 1930 with profits of from $480,000 to $500,000, which would be equivalent to approximately $1 a share. No allowance has been made in the statement for earnings of the various subsidiary companies.

Tone of Trade Shows Little Change in Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. (AP)—Dun's review tomorrow will say:

Many complexities continue as disturbing elements in the trade situation. Higher temperatures in some sections have naturally had a deterrent effect on retail distribution and there has been a slight recession gain during the past week.

Such a condition, however, is necessarily only a passing influence. While trade movements are still somewhat uncertain, there is less hesitancy in a number of branches. Salesmen on the road are encountering a highly selective demand from retailers, but are booking fair orders, business apparently responding quickly to any betterment in the employment situation. Industrial conditions are not marked by any appreciable forward movement, a sharp disappointment being experienced at the showing even of those industries which revealed a moderately better trend in September. Steel operations have not fulfilled the promises made and price pressure has been renewed. Automobile output has been further reduced chiefly in the low-priced car divisions.

Weekly bank clearings, $9,087,664,-000, a decrease of 33.4 per cent from a year ago.

Silver Output Shows Decline

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. (Exclusive) Silver production by companies which in 1929 produced 87 per cent of the world's output amounted to 16,513,000 fine ounces in July, latest month for which figures are available, against 18,607,000 in June and 21,657,000 in July, 1929.

September production in the United States amounted to 3,710,000 ounces, against 3,835,000 in August and 4,634,000 in September, 1929. Canadian output totaled 2,486,000, against 2,685,000 in August and 2,437,000 in September, 1929. July Mexican production totaled 7,905,-000 ounces, against 10,276,000 in June and 11,943,000 in July, 1929.

AVIATION CHIEF CONFIDENT

Grosvenor Believes Holding Company Will Break Even in 1931; Tells of Economies Now in Effect

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Aviation Corporation of Delaware, holding company for American Airways, Inc., operator of the new Los Angeles-Atlanta mail route, should at least break even financially in 1931, Graham B. Grosvenor, vice-chairman, predicted yesterday.

With F. G. Coburn, president, Mr. Grosvenor is in Los Angeles in connection with the inauguration of operations over the new line. In discussing financial prospects of this venture, he expressed the opinion that air mail revenues will nearly pay the cost of operation from the start, leaving passenger travel to make up the deficiency and furnish the initial profits.

VETERANS IN MAIL

Aviation Corporation is the owner of twelve of the twenty-six government mail contracts and is a thoroughly experienced operator in this end of the transportation business. From some of its contracts the company has made money in the last few years and some have been unprofitable, but Mr. Grosvenor believes the new Watres law will equalize the whole question of compensation.

Anticipated income from the twelve contracts may possibly show the company a profit next year, he said, although the management will be satisfied if revenues offset expenses, particularly under the existing state of business in this country. For the first six months of this year Aviation Corporation reported a loss of approximately $3,000,000.

Mr. Grosvenor referred, in connection with current operating losses, to the financial condition of Aviation Corporation which he believes is outstanding in the aviation industry. The company has approximately $7 in current assets for every share of capital stock. This amount consists of cash, marketable securities and call loans. No financing will be required.

Under the direction of Mr. Grosvenor and Mr. Coburn, both of whom are technical men, Aviation Corporation has utilized the depressed state of business to write off losses, eliminate unprofitable operations and consolidate operations. The result, said the vice-chairman, is a well organized, soundly intrenched and amply financed corporation prepared to take advantage of the opportunities in aviation.

ENGINEERS AT HEAD

Mr. Grosvenor's background includes an engineering education, the Pacific Coast managership of the Otis Elevator Company and executive experience with the Fairchild Aviation Corporation, now a unit of Aviation Corporation. Mr. Coburn, also an engineer, was formerly a construction engineer with the Navy and later with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Realizing the necessity of conforming to the changing trends in a new industry, these executives in the last year have withdrawn the corporation from active airplane manufacture, from the operation of flying schools, airports and taxi services, and from the merchandising of parts and supplies.

From the operation of thirty-one flying schools, Aviation Corporation has retired, Mr. Grosvenor said. Its Fairchild division, deciding that profitable sale of private airplanes is still some years distant, is making only a cabin plane for rough duty flying. Its engine division he regards as one of the leaders in the industry, while in aerial photography Fairchild is easily the ranking company.

By concentrating on mail and passenger operation, Aviation Corporation, as Mr. Grosvenor explained, has built up a network of lines radiating in a funnel-like shape from Atlanta through the southern, Middle Atlantic and New England States, with feeders from Los Angeles and Texas. At Brownsville, Tex., the company turns over a large volume of mail to Pan American Airways destined for Mexican and South American points.

Aviation Corporation, he added, is relying heavily on the expectation of a tremendous growth in express business by air. He predicted the time is not distant when transport carriers will run special express planes as the railroads run express cars.

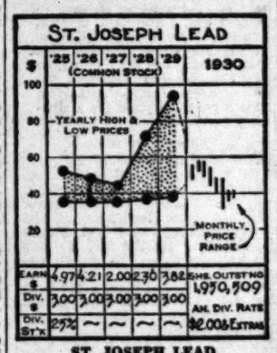
WHAT'S BEHIND YOUR STOCK



ST. JOSEPH LEAD

The mining properties of this important lead producer are located chiefly in Southeastern Missouri, although smaller mines in New York, Montana and Oklahoma are also being operated or prepared for production. Mineral lands in Argentina are also being developed by a subsidiary for silver, lead and zinc production. About two-thirds of the company's output is smelted and refined under a long-term contract with the American Smelting and Refining. Some 275 acres in Pennsylvania have recently been leased, and it is planned to build a $2,000,000 zinc mill on the property.

In 1927 and 1928 the company earned less than the dividend requirement of $3 per share, but 1929 results were more satisfactory with $3.82 reported for each share of common stock. The interim earnings statement as of June 30, 1930, showed a profit of $1.04 a share, down considerably from the $2.22 returned in the 1929 half-year period. Lowest lead prices since 1922 largely account for this 53 per cent decline in profits.

Current data: President Crane stated that the company's mining costs were now lower than last year, following the downward trend of the last few years.

Conditions in Bond Business Held Brighter

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. (Exclusive) The mills of the gods have been grinding unusually fast in the security business, and so many of the surplus stock and bond dealers have been eliminated this year that those still remaining in business are in a much stronger position.

In the first six months of this year more than 600 security dealers closed shop in four of the largest cities. As the same process of adjustment has been going on in hundreds of smaller cities, the securities industry has undergone rather a drastic housecleaning.

From January to July it is estimated that 472 stock and bond dealers went out of business in New York.

In the same period Chicago lost sixty-three dealers and in Boston thirty-eight fell by the wayside. In the Philadelphia territory there were fifty-eight casualties of which thirty-seven were in the city. The last six months of the year show a still greater shrinkage in those cities. It is thought that such cities as San Francisco, New Orleans, Seattle, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Buffalo, Cincinnati and Cleveland as well as numerous others have had the same experience.

FIVE-CENT LOAF RETURNING

Decline in Flour Price to Lowest Level in Past Twenty-four Years Paves Way

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

[Copyright, 1930, by the North American Newspaper Alliance]

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Flour prices are lower now than they have been in twenty-four years, and bakers all over the United States are announcing reductions in the price of bread.

One chain of stores has gone back to the old 5-cent loaf.

Tom Smith, secretary of the American Bakers' Association, says that from 40 to 50 per cent of all bread flour goes into commercial bakeries.

"Although no accurate data exist for the industry," he adds, "the overhead for pay roll, machinery, modern equipment and distribution is by far the larger part of the cost of a loaf of bread; the wrapping of loaves alone costs from one-third to two-thirds of a cent."

Henry Strude, president of the same association, gives another reason for the decline in flour prices. He says Americans are not eating as much bread as they formerly did. Before the war they consumed 5.30 bushels of wheat per capita annually, and today but 4.26 bushels.

Anyhow, Chicago standard grade flour has dropped from $7 a barrel in January, last, to $4.60 now.

Insurance companies have given more thought to farm mortgages in the last ten years than they have to any other form of investment.

Millions of dollars have been loaned in this way—loaned when land prices were high and hogs were selling at $22 to $23 per 100 pounds, corn about $2.15, and wheat $3.50 per bushel.

Now wheat, from which the farmer must get his money to pay interest on his mortgage and taxes, is 78 cents at Chicago and corn 84 cents. Even sugar, which sold at 2.30 cents a pound wholesale, a year ago, is selling at 1.20 cents now; cotton, 18.42 cents a year ago, 10 cents now.

The price of land is directly affected by the price of farm products. When the prices of farm products are high, the farmer makes plenty of money, and it shows immediately in rising farm values.

The post-war decline in farm values has been very severe. It has bankrupted hundreds of thousands of farmers. Millions more have left the farms for the city. In no industry has adversity been so severe. Many farms in the Middle West that sold as high as $350 an acre can now be bought for less than $100—less than the first mortgage in many cases. Naturally the mortgage companies have been affected by such a situation.

Now the Department of Agriculture reports that the estimated value of all farm lands as of March 1 is considerably lower than it was a year ago.

The department gives this reason: "Abnormally large supply of available lands and a readjustment of values to earnings."

World Copper Output Gains

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—World production of copper in September amounted to 151,005 tons, against 149,843 tons in August and 143,997 tons in July, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

United States production in September was 68,487 tons against 66,698 tons in August. Mexican output was 5078 tons against 4812 tons in August. Canadian production was 12,015 tons against 12,850 tons in August. Output of Chile and Peru in September was 26,374 tons against 26,937 tons in August.

ART METAL WORKS PASSES DIVIDEND

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Art Metal Works voted today to pass the quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share due at this time. Three months ago the quarterly dividend was reduced from 75 cents. The company is in a strong financial position, L. V. Aronson, president, stated, and is able to pay the dividend but the board deemed it wise not to do so. Sales late in August turned definitely better and September sales were 61 per cent above September, 1929.

TRADING ON WOOL MART VERY QUIET

Weekly Survey Reports Sales Light and Prices Favoring Buyer

BOSTON, Oct. 17. (AP)—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

The domestic wool market has been very slow and, in spots, soft. The National Wool Marketing Corporation has this week reaffirmed its policy of stabilization of wool prices, so far as possible. For the moment it is a buyers' market, despite more or less resistance from dealers.

Merinos in the foreign markets are steady. Crossbreds, however, are weak. Advance offerings from Montevideo of the new clip wools are being made at prices very close to importing parity.

The manufacturing position, especially with reference to worsteds is disappointing. Woolens are in slightly better position.

The rail and water shipments of wool from Boston, according to the same authority, from January 1, 1930, to October 16, 1930, inclusive, were 108,135,500 pounds, against 141,237,000 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from January 1, 1930, to October 16, 1930, inclusive, were 294,817,612 pounds, against 268,871,285 pounds for the same period last year.

The Bulletin will publish the following quotations:

Erie to Place Order for Rails

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Erie Railroad will shortly order 40,000 tons of rails for next year's requirements, Charles E. Denney, president, stated here today.

The railroad is spending $30,-000,000 this year for additions and improvements to its operating facilities and its maintenance condition now is the best in its history. The southwestern part of the United States has felt the effects of the business depression less than the rest of the country, Mr. Denney observed.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Selling Again Breaks Out in Local Stock Market to Set Up New Record Bottom Prices

Uneasiness regarding the extent security deflation will discount current business uncertainty was displayed yesterday on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange when all of the major issues gave way to lower depths and failed to attract any appreciable buying power. Selling was general throughout the list and as the session approached the closing hour there was no inclination on the part of traders to enter the market on the long side at the new low prices.

New bottoms were established for such issues as Southern California Edison, Pacific Gas, Standard Oil of California, Union Associates, Transamerica and others. Declines in excess of a full point were broadly scattered throughout the list and fractional recessions of similar proportions for the lower-priced stocks were equally numerous. The exchange averages for thirty common stocks hit a new low, more than 23 per cent under 1929 bottom levels.

Transamerica traded in excess of 20,000 shares and broke 1 3-8 to 17 1-8 and closed at 17 1-4. Standard Oil of California dropped 1 1-4 points to 52. Union Oil and Union Associates, the combined trading of which accounted for a turnover of 10,400 shares, fell off 4 points each. While both stocks went ex-dividend yesterday the amount of the dividend accounts for only 3-4 point. Union Associates ended at the new bottom of 28 1-4, while Union Oil recovered 1-4 to end at 29 1-2 for a net loss of 3 1-2 points.

Other oil shares were not affected to the same extent excepting Bolsa Chica, which fell off 1 1-4 to 10 1-2. Rio Grande, Richfield, Macmillan and Republic Petroleum recorded fractional recessions, the last marking a new minimum at 1.95. Signal sank to a new low at 17 1-2, but rallied to end at 18 1-4 for a net gain of 1-4.

A total of 6600 shares of Edison crossed the board to depress the stock 1 7-8 to 49. Pacific Gas dropped 2 5-8 to 48 3-4, and Pacific Public Service, 1 1-8 to 25.

Byron Jackson, yielding 1-4, set a new bottom price at 8 3-4. Claude Neon sold off a point to 19 1-8.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

Foreign bonds, particularly Latin-Americans, shot upward under the influence of a strong demand that has shown no diminution.

It was a different story with domestic bonds. United States governments were very firm, making further progress toward duplicating their highs of the year, but among corporation issues the preponderance of changes was on the downside. While their movement is influenced principally by conditions in the money market, bonds reflect to some degree any sharp reaction in shares. They did today, particularly railroad issues.

While highest grade issues fluctuated narrowly, second and third grade bonds sold off rather sharply, and stock privilege bonds lost ground. Total sales exceeded $11,000,000.

The gold shipments by both Argentina and Brazil to support their exchange was regarded as a favorable factor in the effort to stabilize conditions in those countries. Virtually every Argentine and Brazilian bond improved as did those of Uruguay, Peru, Colombia, Chile and Bolivia.

If last price omitted, low and last are same. If low and last are omitted, high, low and last are same.

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. (AP)—The curb market crumpled under light but persistent selling pressure today, which, reaching a climax in the last hour, drove many shares down 1 to 5 points or more to new lows. Trading was dull until late and total sales aggregated only 575,100 shares.

Electric Bond and Share was actively sold, dropping nearly 5 points to 82, a new low for the year, and only 2 points above the low of last November. American Gas and Electric dropped more than 4 to a new low at 92. American and Foreign Power warrants lost 3.

Oils were depressed by further weakness in crude oil price. Gulf and Vacuum declined about 3 to new lows, although the latter recovered slightly. Humble sagged about a point to a new minimum, and Cities Service lost as much.

Missouri Kansas Pipe Line sagged below 10 for the first time in the mining issues. Newmont dropped 3, and Marlower, an investment trust with extensive mining stock holdings, 2 points to new lows.

Some of the less active industrials broke sharply. Aluminum Company dropped 11½ to a new bottom at 180½. Driver Harris tumbled 7 to a new low at 32.

Allis Chalmers, Bigelow Hartford Carpet, and Cooper Bessemer penetrated new low ground. Penick & Lambert closed 2 points higher, and United States Playing Card mounted 3.

The closing price is omitted when same as the day's sale both bid and close when same as the bid.

Loss of Records in Fire Delays Utility Hearings

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. (AP)—Destruction of records in the recent fire at the Federal Trade Commission Building has so hampered the investigation of power utilities that it will not resume hearings until some time in November.

The commission advised the Senate today a check-up of the damage showed reports prepared for use in hearings on eight companies were destroyed altogether. These concerns were to have been examined publicly in the near future. The commission also lost exhibits and field reports concerning five other companies. At first it was believed the fire which destroyed the commission building had caused virtually no damage to utility records.

BOYS BACK WITH MANY MEDALS

Trio Honored at St. Louis Dairy Show

Hanford Union High School Put on Map

EIGHT gold medals, three bronze medals, two $100 gold watches, one trophy, twelve special de luxe books and numerous certificates of honor constituted the prizes of three California high-school boys who arrived here yesterday on the Southern Pacific from St. Louis, where they were winners at the National Dairy Show contest last Saturday.

The boys, all students at the Hanford High School, are Lloyd Logan, 17 years of age; Ray McGinnis, 18, and Charles Kagle, 18. They were accompanied by Herman Harper, director of agriculture for the Hanford Union High School.

Taking second prize in dairy cattle judging, Logan was acclaimed second best junior farmer in the United States, missing only 1.6 points out of a possible 800 in the contest. McGinnis won fourth prize, adding to past honors won as president of the Hanford chapter of Junior Farmers. Kagle was tenth in the list of national winners.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING VALUE TOLD

Agency Executive Talks at Round-Table Meeting of Los Angeles Club

Newspapers as standard media of advertising were discussed at length yesterday by August J. Bruhn, Southern California manager of McCann-Erickson, Inc., advertising agency, in an address before the round-table meeting of the Los Angeles Advertising Club, held at the Commercial Club. They are now at such a state of development, he declared, that their trade practices and trade terms are universally known and understood.

"In judging the value of newspapers," said Bruhn, in part, "a number of considerations, aside from circulation, lineage record and other matters, must be reviewed; as, for example, the time of publication. If you wish to sell a high-class bond issue to business men you might find that a conservatively edited morning paper is of far greater value than an evening paper which caters to the popular taste for novelty features and sensational stories.

"If a paper has been established fifty years and sold at 5 cents a copy, a younger paper with greater circulation should not blind you to the fact that the older paper has an entirely different influence."

NOVELIST RETURNS FROM TRIP TO EAST

Wilson Collison, novelist and playwright, has just returned to Hollywood from a two weeks' business trip to New York, where he completed arrangements for production of three new plays and publications by Robert McBride & Co., of two new novels, "A Woman in Purple Pajamas," and "Blonde Baby." Won by the climate, he and Mrs. Collison now intend to remain here permanently. They live at 1300 1-2 North Harper avenue. Collison's latest book, "Diary of Death," has just reached the bookshops.

SLIDE AREA EVALUATED FOR PARK

Point Fermin Terrain in Motion Appraised by City Experts at $315,676.60

First movement toward acquirement by the city as a park of a small residential tract at Point Fermin was completed yesterday when city appraisers made public their evaluations. Earth cracks a year ago made the tract undesirable for residence but without buildings it should be utilizable as a park, according to the appraisers, Dwight A. Baker, Harry A. Cole and Alex McKee Williams.

Appraisals totaled $315,676.60, of which $134,886.60 is for buildings, and $180,790 for land. Values have depreciated 50 per cent south of the crack and 25 per cent north to Shepard street, the appraisers found. The area is bounded by Gaffey, Shepard and Pacific streets and the ocean and comprises sixty parcels.

Maintenance of streets, water and sewer lines and such is costing $100 a day, much of which, it is believed, could be obviated if the tract were a park. Appraisers said no sudden or disastrous movement is anticipated.

FILM CAPITAL'S PAVING RUSHED

Sunset Boulevard Project Well Under Way

Court Fight Delays Part of Five-Finger Plan

With approximately ten miles of streets in the area torn up or being cut through, Hollywood is in the midst of the most extensive street improvement program yet carried out in the film colony. Chief among the projects are the Sunset Boulevard widening and repaving program and the five-finger improvement plan.

The Sunset Boulevard project, which includes the area between Normandie and Havenhurst avenues, consists principally of widening the street to a seventy-foot width, laying of a six-inch cement base and topping it with a two-inch layer of Warrenite. The work, being done by the H. W. Crawford Construction Company for a contract price of approximately $500,000, was started July 16 and is expected to be completed by the middle of next April.

READY IN DECEMBER

Less than one-half the concrete has been laid on the south side of the boulevard and that side of the street is expected to be open to traffic by the first of December. The north half of the thoroughfare, which is being kept open to traffic while the south half is being completed, will then be paved.

In addition to the widening and paving work, the Sunset Boulevard project includes a six-foot storm drain from El Centro street and Selma avenue to Vine street and Sunset. A sewer, laid at a depth of from fifteen to twenty feet, has been installed along the entire length of the boulevard.

PLAN PROGRESSES

The five-finger plan, which includes opening, paving and widening work on Argyle, Cole, Wilcox, Ivar and Yucca avenues and Cahuenga Boulevard, is also progressing rapidly. Started July 23, the project is scheduled for completion by the middle of next April. The contract price for the work approximates $829,000, of which the city has agreed to pay $406,000.

Laying of paving has already been started on Cole avenue and Cahuenga Boulevard and work is progressing on those two streets north of Melrose avenue. Cole avenue has been completed as far north as Santa Monica Boulevard and curbings have been poured on Cahuenga for approximately the same distance. All paving from Melrose avenue to Sunset Boulevard is scheduled for completion within the next four weeks. A sixty-inch storm drain has been laid on Cahuenga, Cole and Wilcox, between Sunset Boulevard and Melrose avenue.

IN COURT FIGHT

Court litigation has held up work on Ivar avenue, Leonard Woodruff, owner of property at Hollywood Boulevard and Ivar, having carried to the United States Supreme Court his battle to preevnt the city from condemning a forty-foot strip of his land. The condemnation was confirmed by the State Supreme Court but Mr. Woodruff appealed to the highest court. He has also taken to the State Appellate Court an order of immediate possession, granted the city by the Superior Court, about six months ago.

During the last five years, approximately fifty miles of paving have been installed in Hollywood, according to Carl Bush, secretary of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce. The work represents a total cost of more than $20,000,000 and has been made necessary, according to Mr. Bush, by the rapid growth of the district. While the film capital now has a population of 153,000, the number of residents in the area in 1910 was only 10,000. The estimated population in 1920 was 50,000.

Council Rejects Acreage Offer in Owens Valley

The offer of the Eaton Land and Cattle Company to sell the city 12,000 acres in the upper Owens River Valley, the land carrying with it 52,000 acre-feet of water, for $2,300,000, was rejected yesterday by the City Council. The Council acted upon the recommendation of the Board of Water and Power Commissioners and its own Water and Power Committee.

The Council approved the purchase by the board of seventy-nine acres of water bearing land in the valley from Minnie I. and W. S. Miller for $64,000.

ANTI-RATS ORDINANCE PROTESTED

City Council Urged Not to Pass Proposed Legislation for Harbor Region

With the approval of the Health Commission a communication was sent to the City Council yesterday by M. S. Siegel, chief of the city sanitation division, requesting that the rat-proofing ordinance, as reported by the Building and Safety Committee of the Council, be not passed, on the ground that it would provide the harbor district with no protection against rats and would be an imposition on the harbor department.

Siegel said that the rat-proofing ordinance for buildings in the harbor district was suggested by the Harbor Commission. The Health Department readily agreed to the plan and held a number of conferences with the Fire Commission, Building and Safety Commission and harbor board.

What was considered a suitable ordinance then was placed in the hands of the Building and Safety Committee of the Council, Siegel said. Then, he pointed out, chambers of commerce and improvement associations were informed of the proposed ordinance, with the result that many protests were filed on the ground that the legislation was aimed at the harbor district and not for the whole of Los Angeles.

The Council committee, Siegel said, had cut the ordinance down so that its provisions applied only to the harbor department, which had suggested the ordinance for the whole harbor district. If the ordinance applied to buildings three or four blocks back from the water front it would be of some value to head off the rats, he said.

The communication to the Council urges that unless three or four blocks are included with the water front in the enforcement of the proposed ordinance, it should be dropped.

Fund Allocated by County for Street Viaducts

Los Angeles county yesterday allocated $300,000 from its good roads fund to help defray the cost of grade separation of the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railway tracks at San Fernando Road and Avenues 19 and 26, a $900,000 project which is now under way.

The money, which was appropriated on motion of Supervisor Shaw, is a portion of the city's share of the gasoline tax. The city of Los Angeles is paying for one-third of the improvement and the two railways are paying two-thirds.

The improvement consists of concrete viaducts over the three street crossings, and will be completed in about six months.

KENTUCKY Boy III, Hollywood dog hero, returned to his kennel here yesterday from Long Beach, wearing modestly the laurels conferred on him at Long Beach the day before by the State Humane Association in recognition of his extraordinary service to mankind. Munching an especially choice bone thrown to him proudly by his owner, Robert M. Byrne of 3814 Sunset Boulevard, the signally honored Airedale disdained to be interviewed, summing up his feelings in the matter with a guttural sound, which his master translated as follows: "It was nothing; that is, nothing more than any good dog would have done under the circumstances!"

The Airedale was acclaimed for having sounded an alarm when fire broke out in a Hollywood studio a year ago and threatened destruction of a near-by theater, in which sat hundreds of persons. Two other canines received similar recognition at the same time, namely, Taki, German police dog, for his war record, and Lady, German shepherd, for leading the blind. Taki is mascot of Battery F, National Guard, and Lady is owned by Charles Brown, Long Beach Junior College student.

TRADE CHIEFS IMBIBE TONIC

Healthier Tone Created by Service Clubs' Meeting

Edison Company Head Says Conditions Excellent

City Urged to Set Example for Rest of Country

Business confidence was promoted yesterday at a combined service club luncheon at the Biltmore at which R. H. Ballard, president of the Southern California Edison Company, delivering the principal address, urged Los Angeles to set an example for the rest of the country by going ahead optimistically and constructively in its plans.

Declaring that an examination of the facts shows that conditions are much better than they have been painted, Ballard went into an analysis of building permits, banking statistics and other business reports, proving, he declared, that money is as plentiful as ever but that it has been frozen by fear.

PERSPECTIVE WRONG

Undue importance has been attached to market fluctuations, he asserted. The spectacular nature of the break in stock quotations, he continued, focused widespread public attention upon it, causing a wave of pessimistic discussion that has penetrated all lines of business and interfered with the currents of commerce.

"It cannot be repeated too often," the speaker said, "that depressions are only relative. The valley comes after the hill and the mistake we make in these times is to look back at the higher elevation over which we have just passed and to forget the great normal plane of comparative good times which not only lies ahead but also which stands behind the hill. We fool ourselves by comparing the present level of prices and the present rate of sales with the abnormal height which just preceded them, rather than with the level of normal good times."

SAVINGS INCREASE

Ballard declared that basic financial conditions in Los Angeles and California as a whole are good. He pointed to an increase of about $150,000,000 in savings bank deposits this year in California, to a 20 per cent increase in the amount of insurance written by a local firm and to other favorable business indices, but declared that these facts have been overlooked.

Much of the responsibility for such business let-up as is in evidence may be placed at the doors of persons who are taking part in a vicious game of gossip to the effect that the country is in a crisis and that people should safeguard their resources, he continued. He declared that numerous concerns which have ignored nervousness in Wall street and gone ahead with advertising and merchandising programs have prospered.

"We should all examine our budgets carefully with the view of spending our money where it will do the most good," said Ballard, mentioning maintenance, advertising, replenishment of stocks by mercantile establishments and the like.

CURE SUGGESTED

There are two things, he asserted, which his listeners can do right now which would contribute greatly to improved public sentiment. First of these, he said, is to give somebody a job. The second, he went on, is to change the tone of our conversation, giving it a more optimistic coloring.

"If we will all do that and do it consistently," he said, "we can start a wave of optimism through this town that will remind us of old times and we can do it without in any way tampering with the truth."

The meeting was presided over by Luther Mack, president of the Lions' Club, who said that similar meetings will be held throughout the country, wherever Lions' Clubs are established. The gathering was made possible through the co-operation of such clubs as the Rotary, Kiwanis, Exchange, Optimists', Civitan, Business Men's Co-operative, Advertising Club of Los Angeles, Chamber of Commerce, Realty Board, Downtown Business Men's Association and others.

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

I SAT at luncheon the other day next to Senora Gloria Star de Enriques, wife of the Governor of Chiapas and the girl who made a fiery and forceful speech to the highway convention.

She told me much of her life as the wife of a high official.

EDUCATED IN LOS ANGELES

She was educated here in Los Angeles at the Polytechnic High School. During her years in Los Angeles, however, she lived very much the life of a Mexican girl; at 17 she had never gone out alone with a beau.

After graduation she went back to Mexico and at 18 was married to an engineer, Senor Raymunda Enriquez, who had become Governor of Chiapas.

A LOVELY COUNTRY

Chiapas is at the extreme south end of Mexico—on the borders of Guatemala. At one time it was a part of Guatemala.

It is a very beautiful State, she says, with picturesque old towns, ruins and temples that date to a period before the Mayans came up from the South . . . old cities, haciendas half hidden by jungles, high mountains capped by perpetual snows.

HER HOUSE

She lives in a town called Tuxpanguitteriez, the capital of the country. The house in which she lives is built like the old casas on the haciendas of California—before the gringo came.

It comes out flush to the street, with barred windows. The front of the house is taken up with the family living-rooms—opening at the rear into a great patio, a flower garden. At one side of this patio are the bedrooms. At the rear of the patio the dining-rooms; behind the dining-rooms there is another patio opening upon which are the kitchens and servants' quarters.

RIBBONS IN THEIR HAIR

She has seven servants—two footmen who stand at the doors; a cook, a man waiter, a chambermaid, a nurse and a chauffeur.

The girls have a very attractive way of dressing. Hair bobbing not having invaded Chiapas, they tie a long ribbon about their hair at the back of the neck, then braid the two ends of the ribbon into the two braids of their long black hair. The effect of this bright ribbon woven in and out of the jet-black hair is very fetching and quaint.

MONKEYS

At some distance from the capital her husband has a hacienda of 6000 acres. On one side it touches the railroad. At the other end it comes to the sea.

Coffee has been almost the only resource of Chiapas; the coffee market being in bad condition, her husband has set the hacienda out to bananas. Eventually it is their intention to live on this place six months of the year and to travel six months.

The ranch is alive with great troops of monkeys and strange tropical birds sing in the trees. One of these birds is called "Food of the King." In the reign of Moctezuma it was reserved for the king's table. Exactly the same bird was reserved for the tables of the Pharaohs in ancient Egypt.

SEWER BONDS DRIVE BEGUN

City Officials Outline Six Purposes for $6,000,000 Issue on November 4 Ballot

A meeting to launch the campaign for the $6,000,000 sewer bonds on the November 4 ballot was conducted yesterday in Mayor Porter's office, attended by the Mayor, Public Works Commissioner Eldridge, Councilmen McAllister, Martin and Williams, City Engineer Jessup and Assistant City Engineer W. T. Knowlton.

The issue will be distributed throughout the city, and is for six specific purposes. Relief sewers in the downtown area, and including practically all of the business district and most of the residential region, will cost $3,237,000; to the harbor area will go $303,200 for a collecting system and $1,130,500 for disposal and a treatment plant; sewers in the San Fernando Valley will cost $863,400; improvements to the central outfall sewer will cost $98,100; improvements to the north outfall treatment plant will cost $98,100, and $269,700 will be expended on the Hyperion treatment plant.

Reasons given for the necessity of the bond issue include the fact that present facilities are overtaxed, as the city has doubled its population since the last bond issue, the Hyperion plant must be modernized to prevent pollution of the beaches, unemployment will be reduced, and the improvements to the treating plants will eliminate odors objected to by the southwestern portion of the city.

Councilman Williams pointed out that if the bonds fail, the work must be done by assessment district, which will increase the cost by 25 per cent, with a higher interest rate and a shorter period to meet the charges.

HOTEL MAN'S RITES SET FOR TOMORROW

Funeral services for Wolf Blasberg, 65 years of age, owner of the Hotel Soto here, will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Glasband & Groman chapel, 901 West Washington street, with Rabbis S. M. Neches and H. Singer officiating. Interment will be at the Mt. Zion Cemetery. Blasberg, formerly a realty man of Cleveland, O., had lived here for three years and was active in charitable organizations. He died suddenly last Tuesday at his home, 735 North Soto street. He leaves his widow and three children.

THRILL-SEEKING YOUTHS BACK HOME AND BROKE

Glad to be back, but disinclined to regret the experience, Robert Splane of 1747 Gardner street, Hollywood, and Foster Evans and John Needles of Glendale, who had to invoke the aid of the Supreme Court after finding themselves stranded in Africa last month, have returned home. They came straggling in singly from New York by the hitch-hiking method, Needles arriving Sunday, Evans Monday, and Splane Tuesday.

The three youths—all are under 18 years of age—shipped from this port early in the summer aboard the Norwegian tanker Litiopa, signing on as deck hands for a vacation thrill. Forbidden by the skipper to go ashore at Borneo, they were taken to Cape Town, Union of South Africa, where they faced destitution and the predicament of being unable to get back in time for the opening of school. They then appealed to the Supreme Court there and the master was ordered to post a $1500 bond to insure their passage.

With the cash thus obtained the youths embarked for London aboard the Armondale Castle, then transferred to the Olympic, on which they reached New York on the 1st inst. Outside the metropolis they solicited free rides from motorists, but were separated on the way here.

Splane attends Hollywood High School, Evans Glendale High School, and Needles the University of California at Los Angeles.

NEW AIR LINE TO EXPAND

Southern Fast Express Will Have Large Force Here; President Coburn Tells of Plans

That the Southern Air Fast Express, the new air mail and passenger line operating between Los Angeles and Atlanta, will establish a sizable organization here, was announced yesterday by Frederick G. Coburn, president of the Aviation Corporation of Delaware and American Airways, Inc., the latter a holding company for operating subsidiaries, including the S.A.F.E.

Business in sight and greatly increased business expected to develop in the future make this step necessary, Coburn said at the Biltmore. W. T. Kingsley has been placed in charge of the western organization, Coburn said. Ed Sharpe, former official of the Southern Pacific and now assistant to President Coburn, will also make his headquarters in Los Angeles.

Trans-Pacific service is also in the minds of the officials of the company, Coburn stating that his concern wishes to be in position to operate craft across the Pacific when progress in aviation makes such a program possible.

Coburn said that much remains to be done in aviation, particularly in the development of express business.

"There isn't any real air express business now," said Coburn, "and there won't be until all operators get together and make arrangements whereby packages may be

Research Work in Preventive Medicine Urged

Southern California is in serious need of a foundation similar to that created by John D. Rockefeller in the East to institute special research work in preventive medicine, Dr. J. L. Pomeroy declared yesterday afternoon in an address before the Women's Auxiliary of Los Angeles County, which convened in Severance Hall.

The recent outbreak of parrot fever in Southern California demonstrated the need for some institution sufficiently endowed and equipped to carry on research work in special laboratories separate from city and county health laboratories, the health chief said. Many health conditions of the West need much research to devise methods of treatment and prevention which are as yet unknown, Dr. Pomeroy said.

HARRON'S DEATH VOTED SUICIDAL

Coroner Conducts Inquest in Incinerator Case

Actor Son Says Father Had No Known Enemies

Relatives Insist Upon Murder Theory

Death of John Harron, father of Johnnie Harron, motion-picture actor, whose burned body was found in an incinerator last Thursday, was declared in the verdict of a Coroner's jury following an inquest conducted yesterday afternoon at the Coroner's office to have been suicidal.

Relatives of the dead man, however, decline to accept the suicide finding, declaring evidence uncovered by N. H. Peterson, manager of the Universal Detective Agency, strengthens their conviction that it was a murder. Peterson told newspaper men he had found blood spots near the incinerator, indicating Harron had been struck down by an assailant before being placed in the flames. The detective added Harron wore a watch when last seen alive but that it was not on his body when taken from the furnace.

Identification of the charred body of his father was made by the younger Harron, who gave his address as 1008 North El Centro street. Under the questioning of Deputy Coroner Monfort Harron stated he knew of no enemies or financial difficulties in his father's life. He at first declined to answer concerning his father's habits as to drinking, but later asserted he was not a habitual drinker.

Details of the finding of the elder Harron's body in a large incinerator on the lot of his service station at 5074 South Broadway early last Thursday morning were told by Otto Welsh, radio man and friend of Harron's, who occupied sleeping quarters in another building on the lot.

DAUGHTER TESTIFIES

Agnes Harron, daughter of the dead man, who lived with him and her mother at 737 South Kingsley Drive, testified that her father followed his usual routine on the morning of his death by leaving home about 5 a.m. Throughout the inquiry Monfort quizzed witnesses concerning money Harron might have had on his person at the time of his death. Several witnesses testified that he was in the habit of concealing money on his person beneath his outer garments.

Bearing out the testimony of one witness to the effect that Harron affixed the money to his underwear with a safety pin, Detective Lieutenant Stevens of the police homicide detail stated that a safety pin was found on a leg of the dead man. Other witnesses testified that Harron had not been drinking, to their knowledge, within the last several weeks.

GASOLINE IN STOMACH

Harron, it developed, was seen about 6 a.m. on the morning of his death by E. J. Kerber, 328 West Eighty-fourth street, who passed the service station on a street car. At that time, the witness testified, Harron was walking from the service station pump to the building proper with a glass container filled with a liquid, in his hand.

Stevens stated that the interior of the incinerator bore evidences of gasoline, papers being piled about the body, which was in a sitting posture partially facing the entrance of the inclosure. He expressed the opinion that Harron was not carried to the incinerator and said that no marks of a body having been dragged to the incinerator were visible.

It was brought out at the inquiry that about one-half a pint of gasoline was found by Assistant Autopsy Surgeon Schaefer in the stomach of Harron. He reported also that the right leg of Harron was fractured in two places when it reached the morgue, the bones being brittle from their burned condition.

A BAZAAR, to be given at Patriotic Hall, South Figueroa street, today and tonight is expected to add a considerable sum to the convention fund of the Women's Overseas Service League, which is sponsoring the affair.

Luncheon will be served during the day and a dinner during the evening. Covers will be laid for 500 persons.

The affair is in charge of Mrs. David McCulloch as chairman of the committee, assisted by Miss Florence Crosier and others. Proceeds of the bazaar will be divided evenly between the national fund for the disabled members of the league and the fund which is being raised to bring to this city in 1932 the national convention of the organization. Miss Jessie Brown is president of the local unit, which is the second largest in the association, being surpassed only by the New York aggregation.

MEXICO BAN ON HUNTING ANNOUNCED

Sportsmen Barred From Northern Tier of States for Year by New Order

Hunting has been forbidden to nonresident aliens throughout the northern tier of Mexican states for a year, effective the 15th inst., according to an order from the Department of Agriculture and Fomento of Mexico, received yesterday by J. C. Casillas, new Mexican fish and game deputy chief stationed at San Pedro.

The forbidden area includes the northern district of Baja California, the line of which runs east from about Turtle Bay; and the states of Sonora, Chihuahua, Coahuila, Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas.

No explanation accompanies the order. Some believe it is the forerunner of a new policy intended to conserve wild life, and that later licenses may be issued, closed seasons established and limits of catches and kills fixed.

Baja California has been an increasing lure for hundreds of Southern California sportsmen in recent years; gun clubs have been established around Ensenada and inland, and new hotels have arisen with expectations of much business from alien hunters of quail, ducks and deer.

FORMER GUARDIAN SUED BY PRESENT ONE

A suit to recover $4550, instituted by Mrs. Kathleen M. Adams against Ralph Martin, yesterday was taken under advisement by Superior Judge Bowron. Mrs. Adams, as guardian of Clyde Lindsay, elderly incompetent, asserts the latter's estate shrank from $72,000 to $64 in less than nine years while Martin was guardian. Martin is a cousin of Lindsay. Mrs. Adams charged Martin represented falsely that he gave Lindsay $120 a month for expenses, and that Lindsay asserts he never received more than $3 from Martin at any one time.

VOTERS OF TOBIAS FAVOR ANNEXATION

By a vote of 8 to 7, the voters of Tobias decided yesterday in favor of annexation to the city of Los Angeles. The territory known as Tobias is 7.52 acres in extent, lying between Ninety-first and Ninety-second streets and Compton and Main avenues.

BIGAMY CHARGED WHEN WIVES GET TOGETHER

Robert Ferguson, 34 years of age, president of the Inxet Chemical Company at 4332 Sunset Boulevard, was in the City Jail on a bigamy charge yesterday because his two asserted wives found they were married to the same man.

Mrs. Katherine Swope Ferguson, whom Detective Lieutenants Grover Armstrong and James Bligh say, admits she is wife No. 2, reported the case to the police after she had done a little investigating on her own behalf. She called on Mrs. Hazel Ferguson, 1631 Hi-Point street, and learned that she had been deserted two months ago. Wife No. 1 is the mother of a boy 3 years of age and a girl 18 months.

Ferguson was arrested when he called at wife No. 2's home at 811 North Occidental Boulevard. The second marriage is said to have taken place in San Francisco on September 1, last, a short time after Ferguson is asserted to have deserted his first wife.

He also was booked on suspicion of issuing bad checks and on suspicion of robbery. He refused to make any statement other than "I'm a friend of Al Capone."

MRS. HORIX WINS PLEA FOR DIVORCE

Heiress to Wine Fortune of Late Douglas G. Cook Charges Cruelty

Mrs. Carrie Cook Horix, heiress daughter of "the champagne king," the late Douglas G. Cook, yesterday obtained a divorce from Carl Horix in Superior Judge Hazlett's Court, on charges of cruelty. Her husband lives in Chicago.

"On May 16, 1928, he said he was going to cut my heart out," testified Mrs. Horix. "My husband was jealous and suspicious and given to sudden rages. He would become violent and threaten to choke or kill me."

Mrs. Horix added that Horix wilfully neglected and failed to provide, and that she furnished all their support.

Her daughter by a previous marriage, Edwina Preetorius, corroborated her mother. Miss Preetorius testified that on one occasion she saw Horix trying to choke her mother, and that at another time he threw a book at her. Attorney George B. Webster represented Mrs. Horix.

The Horixes were married in Lutherville, Md., March 18, 1924, and separated May 26, 1928. Mrs. Horix's father was founder and president of the American Wine Company, makers of Cook's Imperial Champagne. She married Edward L. Preetorius, publisher of the St. Louis Times and the Westliche Post. Following his death she married Horix.

PLANE SALUTE TO HONOR DEAD

Event for Armistice Day at Coliseum Announced

Twenty Aircraft Will Drop Flowers Into Stadium

Event Will Mark Tribute to Dead War Time Aces

An aerial salute by a squadron of twenty planes flying in formation over the Coliseum will be the American Legion's tribute on Armistice day, November 11, to World War aces who gave their lives in France, it was announced yesterday by Norman M. Lyon, former naval lieutenant and vice-chairman of the Legion committee on Armistice Day arrangements.

Taking off from the Aero Corporation airport, the planes will circle the Coliseum at an altitude of 2000 feet, then dip in salute and drop a shower of California flowers into the bowl. The squadron will comprise Army Reserve, Naval Reserve and National Guard planes, commanded, respectively, by Lieut. William R. Sweeley, Lieut. Eston B. Koger and Maj. John N. Jeffers. It will be augmented by a group of former war-time aviators directed by Dudley Steele and Paul Richter.

The Armistice Day Committee is headed by Van D. Hogan, past commander of the Legion in Los Angeles, and includes as vice-chairmen Homer Challaux, Commander L. B. Ard, U.S.N.; Maj. Bush Hanson, U.S.A.; George D. Lyon, U.S. M.C.; Lieut. N. M. Lyon, U.S.N., and Joseph Scott, attorney.

PANTAGES CASE PLEA PRESENTED

Attorney-General Asks for Hearing by Justices of Supreme Court

Justices of the Supreme Court were asked yesterday by the Attorney-General's office to hear the case of Alexander Pantages, theater man, convicted in Superior Court on a charge of having attacked Eunice Pringle, 17 years of age, dancer, in a downtown office building and later granted a new trial by Division One, District Court of Appeal.

The petition to the Supreme Court recites that the State believes the District Court of Appeal erred in its decision on the legal points on which the reversal of the Superior Court judgment was based.

"We believe that the granting of this petition is necessary in order to secure uniformity of decision and the settlement of important questions of law," the petition reads.

Arguments in support of the petition are the same as those presented in a petition to the Appellate Court for a rehearing. It is contended that the decision reverses well-established rules of law and will lead to confusion and to irrelevant inquiries in the trial of attack cases. It is denied that misconduct by the District Attorney and court errors prevented Pantages obtaining a fair trial, as was held by the court.

COUPE LEADS CAMPUS LIST

Coupes and roadsters are the types of cars preferred by students of the University of California at Los Angeles, according to figures disclosed in a survey yesterday. Final compilations showed a total of 3029 automobiles parked near the campus. Of this number 1076 were coupes, 866 roadsters, 764 sedans and 320 touring cars.

Fords were found to be the most prevalent make of car, with 1029 counted. Among the larger makes there were twenty-seven Packards, seven Pierce-Arrows and three Lincolns. Eleven Austins were counted.

Final tabulation showed an increase of 645 autos over last year's total.

EX-ACTRESS CALLS MATE 'VERY DRUNK'

Mrs. Whitaker Testifies Against Wealthy Man Who Seeks Divorce From Her

"Drunk, and very, very, drunk," were the descriptions yesterday given her husband by Mrs. Margaret P. Whitaker, former motion-picture actress, testifying at the trial of her separate-maintenance suit against Francis Whitaker, with which is being heard the husband's suit for divorce. Superior Judge Guerin is hearing the joined actions. Mrs. Whitaker asks $6000 a month, together with $35,000 counsel fees and $1000 court costs.

Whitaker, a retired capitalist, whose wealth is estimated by the wife at $3,000,000, accuses Mrs. Whitaker of infidelity with Cleon Francis Plato, her first cousin. Both husband and wife are contesting for the custody of their son, Thomas Van Rensselaer Whitaker, 7 years of age.

Mrs. Whitaker testified they were married March 16, 1920, and separated February 16, last, and that she is living in their home at 811 Bedford Drive, Beverly Hills. Her relations with her husband, she said, were "friendly—when he was sober." She said she had asked Whitaker to return to her, and that she is willing now for him to do so.

"Who taught you to drink?" asked Attorney William A. Barnhill, associated with Roger Marchetti, for the wife. Objections by Attorney W. I. Gilbert halted an answer.

"He made me drink for sociability's sake," she testified.

"During your entire married life, what was your husband's condition?" asked Barnhill.

"Drunk," said Mrs. Whitaker.

On one occasion, she said, Whitaker became intoxicated at home and fell, breaking his leg. At various times, she said, he struck her.

Attorney Gilbert asserted that Whitaker's drinking did not begin until after marital trouble started. Whitaker's cross-complaint asserts that Plato, the cousin, was taken into their household, and that the wife resisted attempts to order him out. Whitaker asserts that Mrs. Whitaker went away on numerous trips with Plato. The wife denies undue association.

Plato filed an answer in which he also denied improper conduct, and asserted that their relations were entirely platonic. The case will continue Monday.

AIR LINE PLANS DEVELOPMENTS

picked up anywhere and delivered anywhere."

A step in this direction has been made in the development of aviation systems, Coburn said. Up to now, he said, planes have gone from here to there, but operators have made no great endeavor toward providing a system that would serve the entire country. This situation is being remedied, he said, giving much credit to Postmaster-General Brown, who, he declared, is not only an aviation enthusiast, but a far-sighted friend of aviation.

Postmaster-General Brown, Second Assistant Postmaster-General Glover, in charge of air mail, and Assistant Secretary Young, in charge of aeronautics in the Department of Commerce, were fellow-passengers of Coburn on the plane which left Atlanta for Los Angeles with the inauguration of the service. They left the plane at Dallas. Misses Ruth Nichols and Eleanor Smith, flyers, made the cross-country trip.

Establishment of beacons and intermediate landing fields will be one of the next endeavors of the aviation officials. With these improvements night flying will be possible and the time between terminals cut from thirty-six hours to twenty hours, Coburn said.

Judge Annuls Annex Ballot

Because a contemplated "shoestring strip," part of territory to be annexed by the city of Hawthorne, was comparatively uninhabited, Superior Judge Gates yesterday sustained a motion to annul the proceedings, ratified in an election held a month ago.

The district to be annexed is known as Western City. The suit was filed by the Bodger Realty Company. Another election to annex another part of Western City to Gardena will be held the 12th inst.

LATEST TARZAN TALE INTRIGUES

New Edgar Rice Burroughs Novel Starts Monday

"Times" Serial Replete With Jungle Adventures

Story Seventh on Popular Ape King Character

"Tarzan and the Golden Lion!" That is the intriguing title of the new Tarzan novel by Edgar Rice Burroughs, which is to be published in The Times serially, beginning Monday. It is the story of allegiance between man and beast, which often is stronger than the tie between man and fellow-man. It is rich in plot and counter-plot and tells vividly what happens when knowledge of civilization is pitted against the keen instinct of the jungle.

The new tale is seventh in the series founded on the adventures of Tarzan, born of parents marooned on the African coast; and like most of the previous books it is replete with the lure of the wilderness of the Dark Continent. It is illustrated by Rex Maxon.

EARLY ADVENTURES

"Tarzan of the Apes," first of the series, told the birth of Tarzan and his growth to manhood among the apes. It ended with his return to the jungle after he had followed a shipwrecked girl to America and gained the impression she loved another.

"The Return of Tarzan" brought the king of the apes to the golden city of Opar, where, braving great peril, he obtained a fortune, enabling him to establish his claim to birthright as Lord Greystoke and to marry Jane Clayton.

"The Beast of Tarzan" opened two years later with Tarzan and Jane Clayton, now Lord and Lady Greystoke, living in the security of their English home, their happiness blessed by a year-old son. The son was kidnaped, and the trail led to Africa, where Tarzan recovered the boy, with the help of the jungle folk, and returned with him to England.

SON ENTERS STORY

In "The Son of Tarzan," the boy was revealed as a lad 12 years of age, carefully protected from the savage side of life. But the call of the wild rose within him and he went to Africa with Akut, the ape, who had appeared in vaudeville. In Africa the boy, like his father, was reared by the apes, but found love and married Miriam, a French girl, who had been his jungle companion.

The fifth story, "Tarzan and the Jewels of Opar," showed Tarzan on his huge estate in Africa. Facing financial ruin he returned to Opar and braved further dangers to restore the family fortune.

"Tarzan and the Lost Empire," now drawing to a close, reported the adventures of the Ape Man in a lost province of the Roman Empire. There he was compelled to fight in the gladiatorial arena, pitting his jungle strength against that of savage beasts.

O'BRIEN DENIED RETRIAL OF LANGDON NOTES SUIT

Coming as an aftermath to a lengthy legal squabble, a motion introduced before Superior Judge Blake yesterday by Thomas J. O'Brien, Leo M. Rosecrans and Otto J. Emme, asking for a new trial of their action against Harry Langdon, motion-picture actor, was denied. The plaintiffs then announced that they do not intend to carry the matter to a higher court.

The motion arose out of a recent trial in a civil department of Superior Court heard by Judge Blake, brought by Thomas J. O'Brien, charged that he had paid him $12,500. O'Brien charged that Langdon had failed to pay him $12,500.

The dispute concerned notes of Mrs. O'Brien, which Langdon later married.

In the civil court trial the case and O'Brien failed to collect the notes.

The plaintiffs were represented by B. R. Rountree, attorney

Police Report Conductor Says Man Commuter

Police attempts yesterday morning to confirm a report that Judge Joseph F. Crater, missing New York Supreme Court justice who disappeared from that city August 6, is in Los Angeles were balked when a telephone message from Chief of Polige Hodgkins of Newport Beach to the detective bureau at the Central Police Station was lost for more than four hours.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Elizabeth Ozgood of Balboa reported to Chief Hodgkins that she had recognized the missing jurist as one of the passengers on a Los Angeles-bound electric train. She told Hodgkins that she recognized the man from a newspaper photograph.

Chief Hodgkins telephoned the detective bureau at the Central Police Station shortly after 8 a.m. yesterday giving the car number in which the man was a passenger, riding with a young woman. Employees of the bureau last night said the message was not delivered to Lieut. W. C. Allen of the missing-persons detail until after noon, or two hours after the arrival of the train in Los Angeles.

Late yesterday evening Lieut. Allen said he had located the conductor of the electric train, F. N. Milborn of 6511 Lucille avenue, Bell, who told him the man thought to be Judge Crater is a regular commuter on his train and a resident of Newport Beach.

Plan now to take lessons in candy-making from the Liberty Candy Co., who also teach you personally, or by mail, chocolate dipping, cake ornamenting; how to prepare ice cream, drinks for soda fountains, and glace fruit. Candy-making supplies may be bought from them also. Their address is fourth floor Grant Bldg., 355 S. Broadway, TUcker 4156.

We'll wager you never knew you could make your cream of chicken soup ten times more delicious by the addition of Guasti Cooking Sherry or sauce a la Bercy, but you can and should and here is the recipe for you to use. Try it and see how perfect it is:

Cream of Chicken Soup

One quart chicken broth; one-fourth cupful butter, ½ cupful chopped onion, one-fourth cupful flour, celery and carrots; 3 cupfuls milk, one-fourth cupful Guasti Cooking Sherry or Sauce a La Bercy. Cook celery, onion and carrots in broth about fifteen minutes; mix flour, butter and little cold milk and heat the remainder of milk in a double boiler. Add all ingredients to the heated milk and cook about fifteen minutes longer. (Services 4.)

Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself.—Abraham Lincoln.

To measure butter without melting it, for cake making, etc., when one-half cupful is called for fill a cup half full of water and then add small pieces of butter until the cup is full.

Anyone would be attracted to the Fluff rugs made by the Hoffman Rug Works, out of your old carpets—so may I not urge you to get in touch with this splendid concern right away? Their address is 2914 W. Jefferson st. Phone number, EMpire 2048.

To cut a warm cake neatly and easily dip the knife in cold water before cutting it.

I am sure my readers are always interested in learning of better quality food products. If you will try the Ben-Hur Brand of Chili Powder for seasoning all Spanish dishes, you will find a much richer and better flavored seasoning, if you have never tried this brand before.

The chili pods which go into the manufacture of Ben-Hur Chili Powder are grown in Orange county, are dehydrated by the latest scientific method of dehydration, and the control of this new dehydration system is such that will allow the chilis being thoroughly washed before going into the dehydrator. This insures a clean, sanitary product, as the heat is under such perfect control in this new dehydrator that no moldy pods are produced as was the case in the old type of chili dry house where gas fires were burned below the trays of chilis which were tiered up in these dry houses and where the drafts of air coming in from the ventilators below were impossible to control, thus producing in some locations in the dry houses too low a temperature to insure the drying of the pods before they became moldy.

The manufacturers of Ben-Hur Food Products are constantly experimenting with all their products in order to produce a superior quality which will be recognized by the housewife who delights in serving the best.

Today Arthur W. Werner, the Custom Shirt Maker, is moving to his new location at 122 S. Spring, just a few steps away from his old store, so if you want some shirts made for your husband, or need some altering or repairing done to his old ones, you'll find him at the new address.

Doughnuts will not absorb fat if one-fourth teaspoonful or more of ground ginger is added when making them. The spice will not be noticed. A piece of ginger root put in the hot fat also helps.

To prevent cakes, pies and other pastry from burning on the bottom sprinkle the bottom of the oven with fine, dry salt. Or lay a piece of wire door screening cut to fit in the bottom of the oven under the pan.

What of your silver coffee and tea service—does it need replating or repairing? If so, do take it to the Peerless Platers, 239½ S. Spring, upstairs, where the prices are most infinitesimal and the workmanship of the very best. By the way, knives forks and tablespoons are replated for $3.50 a dozen; teaspoons cost but $2.50 for the same number.

Candlestick Salad—Peel a banana and cut it in half crosswise; roll in lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Fit the banana halves into holes in the centers of slices of pineapple and decorate the top of each with a cherry to represent the candle flame. Cut a green pepper in thin strips and place a curved strip at the side of the banana candle to represent the handle of the candlestick. Arrange on shredded lettuce or watercress and serve with French dressing on individual plates.

Most interesting news for my reader's today! You really must go up to the fourth floor of Schwabacher-Frey, 736 S. Broadway, and join the free instruction class in Plastico modeling clay and art craft decoration! The only cost, remember, is for the materials you use. With Xmas presents to be made this is a marvelous opportunity for you all, as they have many new and attractive designs to copy. You will be glad to know that the class is being conducted by Mable E. Smith of the "Bonnie Wee" Craft Studio.

Those beautiful sets of scissors shown at Steinen's Cutlery Shop, 210 W. Third st., will give the early Christmas shopper an opportunity to make a selection, for you see they make most acceptable gifts. Then while in this ever-so-interesting shop, you will find many other novelties both practical and ornamental.

Chocolate Cake — Cream butter (size of an egg,) adding gradually three-fourths cupful of sugar, then beat in one egg with a few grains of salt; add one-fourth cake of melted unsweetened chocolate and then add, alternately, one-half cupful of sour milk and one cupful of sifted flour; lastly stir in one teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in a little warm water. Pour into a square pan and bake in a moderate oven. A good uncooked frosting is made by beating into a can of condensed milk as much cocoa as it will take and sweetened with powdered sugar.

So often we are at a loss to know what to do with clothes we have grown tired of and articles we no longer have any use for. If such is the case here is the answer: Send all such items to the Children's Hospital Salvage Department at 712 Maple avenue, TUcker 1203. By such generosity on your part you will doubtless save the life of a small boy or girl.

To make sweet milk sour, for cooking purposes, add a teaspoon of strong vinegar to a cup of milk and set it in a warm place for a few minutes.

When cake is scorched on the top or bottom grate over it lightly with a nutmeg grater instead of using a knife. This leaves a smooth surface for frosting.

This is quite the most ideal time of the year to send your down quilt to be renovated, cleaned and recovered, so why don't you take this suggestion to heart and call up the Western Feather and Down Works, 1205 W. Washington st. (WEstmore 9654,) and let them call for your coverlet? This concern's prices are ever so small while their work is of the very best!

To make cake light and feathery add a teaspoonful of glycerine for each pound of flour when mixing. A salt spoonful of ground ginger mixed with the flour when making a cake will make it very light. A tablespoonful of lukewarm water added to eggs before mixing them in a cake will make it light and spongy.

High School Girl Tells of Being Mistreated by Trio After Abduction in Car

Selma Synenberg, 16-year-old pupil at the Los Angeles High School, yesterday reported to police that on the previous evening she was kidnaped, blindfolded and mistreated by three men.

The girl, who lives with her parents at 1118½ West Boulevard, stated that she was on her way to attend an evening function at the school when at West Boulevard and Edgewood Place a man stepped from behind a tree, put his hand over her mouth and blindfolded her.

She then was placed in an automobile where two other men and her kidnaper mistreated her, she reported. After being driven around the city for about two hours the girl was thrown on the campus of the Los Angeles High School and left there.

Because she was unable to give any description of the men or the automobile, police were baffled in their attempt to obtain clews.

HIS BLONDS PREFERRED NOT FADED

Wife Gets Divorce on Plea of Unfavorable Comparisons

Blonds were contrasted unfavorably to her, Mrs. Mildred Stephenson yesterday testified in winning a divorce from Raymond A. Stephenson, automobile salesman. She asserted that Stephenson had an annual income of $25,000, and that he was forced to give up a good position in Chicago three years ago because another woman's husband threatened to shoot him.

Upon coming to Los Angeles, her husband met a film extra girl, said Mrs. Stephenson, whom he described to some acquaintances as "a beautiful blond, not a washed, out blond like my wife."

Superior Judge Guerin granted Mrs. Stephenson a decree and approved a property settlement.

Manacled Flight of Angel Fails to Get Sanction

Plans of Jimmie Angel, veteran pilot, to fly his plane from San Francisco to Grand Central Air Terminal using only his legs and knees and with his arms and hands manacled, were given up yesterday at the request of officials of the Department of Commerce.

The Federal officials feared that Angel was not taking the necessary safety precautions by attempting to pilot his ship down the coast on Sunday afternoon, with a scheduled landing at 3:30 p.m. at the Glendale airport, and when informed of the proposed flight declined to approve a permit.

Angel planned his flight as a demonstration of the ease with which recently developed airplanes may be flown. He expected to have his arms manacled by Chief of Police Vollmer of Berkeley at the take-off of the nonstop flight. No special attachments were to be used, but metal seals were to be arranged on the manacles that could be easily broken in case of difficulty.

"Times" Film Shows Tragedy of British R-101

Fragments were still burning, and rescuers are shown removing the dead.

Many other interesting features make up the week's schedule, additional information concerning which can be had by calling REpublic 3171 and asking about Newsreel No. 83.

Pellet Vender Not Practicing, Jury Figures

Howard L. Musick, pill vender of 2236 Whittier Boulevard, was found not guilty of violating the State Medical Practice Act by a jury in Municipal Judge Sheldon's court yesterday. On the stand Musick said that he does not diagnose or prescribe for his patrons, but that he "sells pills" and has been doing so for fourteen years.

Patrons testified that they had been cured of illnesses ranging from tuberculosis of the spine to stomach and kidney trouble by his pills.

Policewoman Ross, Special Agent Byrne and Operative Jones of the State Medical Board said they visited Musick's "laboratory" and purchased pills for $1 a package after being told by him that they had stomach trouble.

Sato Defines Drunkenness

That was the effect of drunkenness as described in Municipal Judge Thompson's court yesterday by S. Sato, a Japanese, at the trial of his employer, T. Kiyota, proprietor of a store at 915 South San Pedro street. Kiyota was accused by S. Yoshida of striking him when he entered the store.

Sato said Yoshida was drunk and started the disturbance. Judge Thompson found Kiyota not guilty of disturbing Yoshida's peace.

NO LONGER will the office employee late to work be able to give as an excuse that it was necessary to wait to get his shoes shined.

Introduced in Los Angeles at the Title Insurance Building is the at-your-desk shoe-shining service. A push on a buzzer and in a few minutes a uniformed, fully equipped bootblack enters the room. No unnecessary bother is entailed. The busy employee continues his work and merely goes to the trouble of placing his foot on the shoe stand.

In a short time the job is over and the bootblack leaves. No additional charge is made for the convenient service considered a boon by employers. Plans have been made to install the system in other downtown office buildings.

Union Company Felicitated by Oil Executives

Representatives of the oil industry yesterday paused to pay their compliments to Union Oil Company of California on the attainment of the fortieth anniversary of its incorporation. Personal calls on the company's officials, floral baskets that completely filled the executive offices, telegrams and telephone messages conveyed the felicitations of the oil fraternity to its oldest member.

No formal ceremony was held by the Union company executives to commemorate the incorporation of the company at Santa Paula on October 17, 1890. However, the old days when the company's operations were confined to a small area around Santa Paula and gasoline was burned at its refinery to get rid of it because there was no market for it, were recalled in frequent chats with pioneer oil men to whom days of the '90's are still vivid memories.

Woman's Death Held Suicidal

While no outstanding reason was given for her act, a Coroner's jury yesterday afternoon declared the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Corsentino, 21 years of age, was suicidal.

The young woman, mother of two small children, shot herself through the head with a revolver while her husband, Robert Corsentino, 24, and a friend, Jack D. Larsen, 237 South Avenue 17, were in an adjoining room of the Corsentino home at 133 South Johnson street, last Wednesday.

Detective Lieutenant Ryan of the police homicide detail, stated that the two men, who since the death of Mrs. Corsentino have been held as material witnesses, will be released.

DELICATESSEN STORE AND STATION ROBBED

Two bandits entered the delicatessen store of Harry Short, 1278 South Western avenue, last night and held up the proprietor, took $40 from the cash register and made their escape. Two other men held up W. H. Harmon at his service station at 9021 South Normandie avenue, taking $15 and also helped themselves to enough gasoline to fill the tank of their car. They then drove rapidly away.

One Killed, One Dying in Freak Work Accidents

Freak industrial accidents yesterday cost the life of one man and resulted in possibly fatal injuries to another.

E. G. Badger, 25 years of age, of 14509 Gilmore avenue, Van Nuys, died in Valley Hospital there, after suffering a fractured skull in a dehydrating machine he was operating as an employee of a plant at Beesmer and Calvert streets. His sleeve snagged on a giant cam which yanked him into the mechanism.

Pat Telles, 20, 1605 East Third street, received a broken back in a mishap at a sack factory at 600 Alliso street. While ascending in a freight elevator he lost his balance and staggered backward in the path of a descending counterweight. He is in the Methodist Hospital in a critical condition.

Will Contest Attacks Divorce as Fraudulent

Asserting that Dr. Charles Lee Marlenee, Glendale optician, married a second wife after obtaining a fraudulent divorce from his first wife, Mrs. Stella Kate Marlenee, the latter filed a contest yesterday to his will which disposed of a $500,000 estate by giving most of it to Mrs. Phoebe Armstrong Marlenee.

Court Denies Rehearing in Sheffield Case

Division Two, District Court of Appeal, yesterday denied the State's petition for a rehearing in the case of Marco B. Sheffield, Negro, former police officer, granted a new trial on a charge of having accepted protection money.

Misconduct by the prosecution and court errors were given as the grounds for reversal of the trial court's judgment.

Protest Urged on Storm Drain

The Assessment Relief and Betterment Association of California announced yesterday it will keep its offices, 630-31 Hellman Building, open tomorrow until 9 p.m. to enable all protestants against the Jefferson street storm drain system, No. 4, to register. The association is fighting the improvement, charging that it is a needless expense which will cost each property owner in the district $225 per lot.

The list of protestants must be filed with the City Clerk by 10 a.m. Tuesday.

AVIATRIX DENIES PLANS FOR SPEED CROWN RACE

While Mrs. Keith Miller, holder of the east-to-west transcontinental air record for women, tested her ship yesterday in preparation for a take-off Monday to gain the speed crown for an eastward coast-to-coast flight, Elinor Smith, women's altitude champion, denied that she will leave this morning in an attempt to beat Mrs. Miller to New York in solo flight.

Instead Miss Smith will board an American Airways plane this morning and ride eastward as a passenger for a business engagement in New York next Monday evening. She said she will return here late next week and attempt a one-stop speed dash from United Airport to Long Island in a Lockheed-Vega monoplane, powered with a 425-horsepower Wasp engine, capable of cruising at 135 miles an hour. She expects to refuel at Wichita, Kan.

If successful in breaking the record, Mrs. Miller expects to set on her return in the smaller Eagle Rock Bullet monoplane, equipped with a 120-horsepower Wright engine. Miss Smith declared she will fly back again to shoot at the westward mark of 25h. 44m., set by Mrs. Miller last Thursday.

Miss Smith said she postponed this morning's take-off because of bad weather reports over her proposed course and because of a faulty compass on the Lockheed, owned by the Aviation Corporation.

Mrs. Miller will spend today and tomorrow testing her plane and sightseeing. She plans to lower the west-to-east record that Laura Ingalls, reported last night at Columbus, is attempting to set. She broke Miss Ingall's mark coming west by four hours and forty-three minutes.

DR. HAYES TODAY WEDS MISS BROWN

Five Sisters Will Attend Bride at Noon Ceremony in St. Brendan's Church

When Dr. Charles Hayes, Los Angeles physician, and Miss Edith Brown stand before the altar of St. Brendan's Church for their marriage at noon today, five of the bride's sisters will appear with her as her bridesmaids and a 3-year-old niece will serve as flower-girl.

The wedding is the culmination of a romance which started several years ago in St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Brown is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralston B. Brown, 2309 West Twenty-second street, and Dr. Hayes has been a resident of Los Angeles for the past year, having only recently graduated from the St. Louis University. Miss Brown is a graduate of the University of Nevada and a member of the Delta Delta Delta Sorority.

The sisters of the bride who will appear with her at the altar are the Misses Alys Ruth, Margaret and Helen Brown and Mrs. Peter B. Andrews (Annabelle Brown) with Mrs. M. A. Robinson, (Emily) Brown.) The flower girl will be Ann Elizabeth Robinson.

Following the wedding a reception will be given at the home of the bride's parents and after a honeymoon motor trip the couple will return to make their home in this city.

Hearing on the petition for a guardianship for Mrs. Laura Jane Kirk, wealthy widow, yesterday was continued by Superior Judge Hazlett until November 10 as a convenience to attorneys in the case.

Mrs. Kirk, through counsel, is resisting efforts of her son Norman to have a guardian appointed for her. The son contends that his mother is incompetent to handle her finances, and that the estate of $150,000 left her by her husband, John E. Kirk, inventor of harvesting machinery, has dwindled to $65,000.

Michigan Man Named President and Delegates End Convention With Dance and Excursions

Trips to the Fox motion-picture studios and an entertainment and dance last night kept the 2000 delegates of the Telephone Pioneers of America busy here yesterday, following their business meeting at the Biltmore in the morning when they elected Burch Foraker, president of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, as head of the organization for the coming year.

Today, following the association meeting at the Biltmore, the guests will be taken on sight-seeing trips. The final entertainment will be this evening with a fiesta, and closing dance. Tomorrow the visitors will take a trip to Catalina Island, ending the convention.

OTHER OFFICERS

Other officers named by the organization yesterday are: past president, J. S. McCulloh, New York; senior vice-president, F. H. Reid, Mountain State Telephone and Telegraph Company; vice-presidents, A. B. Elias, president Southern Bell Telephone Company; H. D. Pillsbury, president, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company; W. B. T. Belt, president, the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company; John O'Day, vice-president Wisconsin Telephone Company, and Miss Carolyn Martin, chief clerk with Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company. The executive committee is composed of B. A. Kaiser of the American Telephone and Telegraph, P. L. Thomson of the Western Electric Company for 1930, and 1931, C. F. Brisbin of New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, Frank H. Clark of New England Bell, and E. F. Carter, vice-president, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for 1931 and 1932.

LOS ANGELES PIONEER

One of the visitors at the convention yesterday was G. Q. Stewart, now of San Francisco, who, fifty years ago this month, started the telephone business in Los Angeles. He was then manager of the Western Union Telegraph and set up a little switchboard in a corner of his office in the Baker Block near the Plaza, and connected seven telephones to it. The Los Angeles telephone pioneers launched their enterprise without the formality of incorporating and without a franchise.

The first telephone wires were strung over the housetops by John W. Strawn, who did the manual work. He just stuck single strands of iron wire to the roofs, Mr. Stew-

Filipino's Death Laid to Motorist

An inquest into the death of Anncito Delarosa, Filipino informer for the police vice squad, who was found suffering from a fractured skull early Thursday at Third and Los Angeles streets, will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. Monday, the Coroner's office announced yesterday. Police believe the findings will support their own theory that the victim was struck by a hit-and-run motorist.

Laying unconscious in the street, Delrosa, known also as De la Cruz, was found by "Brother Tom" Liddecoat of the Midnight Mission. He died on the way to Georgia-street Receiving Hospital. Police at first suspected he had been slain by underworld enemies, but a post-mortem later revealed a fractured skull as the cause of death.

LECTURES APPLY TO INDIVIDUALS

Six lectures on "Fundamentals of Individual Progress" will be given in Bovard Auditorium on the 21st, 23rd, 28th and 30th inst., and November 4 and 6, under auspices of the University of Southern California and the Los Angeles Advertising Club, by Frank H. Skipper, director of personnel of the Pennzoil Company. He is to demonstrate the mechanics for ordering and controlling thinking and feeling in handling problems involved in the business of living and working in his first lecture.

Today's Bible Text

But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, with meekness and fear.—1 Peter iii:15.

HIS ALIBIS

Many a husband thinks that if his wife would keep out of his pockets, he could live within his income. He loses sight entirely of his own all-buys.

NO TRICK

Al Wilson, trick flyer, recently fell out of bed and sustained serious injuries. Which proves once more that it is not the falling, but the lighting, that hurts.

THE DOG STAR

Said that Skye-terriers are coming back. The stylish woman in these days wants to take her dog with her when she goes shopping in the family plane and the Skye-terrier seems to be the proper thing for the occasion.

STANDS BY HOOVER

Dwight Morrow tells those who have been suggesting him for Presidential timber that he is for Herbert Hoover and that he hopes and expects to behold the renomination and re-election of the big chief two years hence. There is no mistaking his earnestness in the matter.

KEEPS HIS HEAD

A successful ruler in South America may be one who does not lose his head. But it is our candid opinion that some of the statuary in the plazas of various southern republics will still find that their removable heads will come in handy in keeping up with modern history.

LONG WHISKERS, ETC.

There ought to be enough revolution in progress over the world to suit the most inflammatory Reds. And yet all they have to offer is short wheat and long whiskers. And Russia can hardly spare either. She is hungry and will need the wheat, and the winter is coming on and she will need the whiskers as a breast protector.

ROOM FOR LIONS

Sentimental souls are complaining that the lions and tigers in our zoos are cramped for space. It is pretty tough when a fat lion has been having the whole continent of Africa to range in to pen him up in a dinky squirrel cage in an American park. The average captive has just about room enough to turn around in, but may find trouble in stretching himself. All those who wish to provide more parking space for our lions might try writing to Ringling Brothers.

PROBLEM PUPILS

A professor investigates 125 "problem" students and as many "ideal" college youngsters. Problem pupils are those who have been disciplined four times or more during each of two consecutive semesters.

He finds that boys with plenty of spending money, coming from pampering surroundings, get into more trouble than those without it. Helps seem to hinder. They are not vitiating; they are merely distracting and enervating.

But 7.2 per cent of those who have never been disciplined come from the so-called elite neighborhoods. Sixty-eight per cent of those who have never been disciplined come from poorer communities.

If this be a fair cross-section of student life in general, the best ship that could come in is hardship. The youngsters that have to scratch to make it go in college seem the more highly favored.

Evidently having too many accessories is a handicap and not a help. Some of the well-meaning benefactors who go about the world trying to relieve it of poverty are stripping the spurs of ambition. Traveling light seems to have the largest possibilities in arriving at both the end of the trip—and culture.

Too much luggage is a drug on the climber up the steps of knowledge. The parent who tries to shield his offspring from getting the rain in his face may be his greatest enemy. Necessity seems to be the mother of a large brood of sturdy youngsters—among others education.

Having everything he wants may make Jack a bad boy. More than one genius has been starved out of mediocrity. The wolf at the door has chased many a sluggard up the hill of fame. A silver spoon feeds all too many softlings.

OUTRAGE OR ACCIDENT?

No effort should be spared to ascertain the exact source of the explosion which early yesterday morning wrecked the dress factory of Hyman Schulman on the fifth floor of the Garment Capitol Building, 217 East Eighth street, and injured approximately fifty persons, some of them seriously. If a crime, it was one of the worst perpetrated in Los Angeles in two decades and one demanding swift and effective punishment of the perpetrators. The investigation has not ruled out the possibility of accident, but there are many circumstances which demand more adequate explanation than has yet been forthcoming.

Schulman was an open-shop manufacturer. A strike against the open-shop garment factories of this city, organized and apparently financed from eastern cities, has been in process for several weeks, with the customary incidental violence. Workers have been threatened in their homes and some have declared that they were attacked here. But there was no strike directly against the Schulman shop, which was a dressmaking factory and not a cloak factory, the pending strike being specifically of cloakmakers. Schulman, however, had had labor trouble some six months ago, when he discharged all union members from his employment and replaced them with nonunion workers. Union officials point out that union shops were operating in the same building and that union members were among those injured.

The crime, if there was crime, may have been directed against Schulman personally, by some one who knew the ins and outs of his shop and his habit of first arrival, and laid a trap for him.

An alternative theory is that it was a Communist demonstration. Against this it may be urged that such a demonstration would be pointless. But Communist demonstrations are characteristically pointless, or almost so; anything which epitomizes the existing order, whether business or political, is considered a logical target for Communist attack. Communists believe that anything which brings misery to anyone outside their circle arouses discontent and so furthers the revolution they are trying to promote.

But if there is convincing evidence to support either theory, or indeed any theory, of the cause of this explosion, it has not been made public. Indeed, only guesses can be hazarded at this time as to the nature of the explosive.

Official opinion appears to lean toward gas, largely from the nature of the damage wrought, which indicates that the blast was of even violence all over the factory and had no particular center.

The gas theory does not rule out crime, of course; it merely makes a crime more difficult of detection, though by no means impossible. A long-unused gas check-valve opening into the Schulman establishment—which did not use gas in its operations—was found open, apparently turned by a wrench during the night. Sulphur fumigation of the factory, which would effectually conceal the odor of gas, had taken place the night before. The explosion apparently was caused by a spark from the knife-switch of the burglar alarm which Schulman himself always threw to disconnect it. If the explosion was the result of planning, it was planning of the most cunning and callous nature, in complete disregard of the consequences.

Fortunately no one met death outright and nearly all the injured are expected to recover. This was not due to any foresight on the part of the author of the outrage, if outrage it was, but purely to chance. The property damage is heavy, but of little consequence in comparison with the human injury.

The circumstances call for the most thorough investigation that can be made, the most rigid determination of all the facts that can be brought to light, and the most drastic punishment that can be inflicted if any person or persons are found criminally responsible.

A ROUND-UP OF REBELS

A great round-up of Nationalists who have been making trouble for Britain in Bombay and other cities of India is reported by the Associated Press. Nearly every Nationalist leader in Bombay was taken into custody and most of them sentenced to several months' imprisonment on charges of belonging to unlawful associations. Although the gaps caused by the arrests have been filled, including that of the president of the society, it is believed that the blow struck by the British authorities will dampen the ardor of the trouble makers.

It is said that radicals in this country have expressed sympathy with the rebelling tribes in India and in some cases have given them aid and comfort on the ground that Britain is a tyrannical ruler over the people and that it has no right to govern them anyway. Those who hold these views should be reminded of the manner in which British rule was established there. England had acquired considerable territorial possessions in India in the latter part of the seventeenth century and later, on the decay of the Mogul empire, she allied herself with the native princes in commercial and other ways. France disputed the British claims, set up others for herself and sent troops to hold them. The French were driven out after a long conflict, to the delight of the native princes.

British rule over India really began in March, 1862, when Lord Canning became the first viceroy, though a sort of protectorate had been established by the East India Company long previous to that time. Britain may have dealt arbitrarily at times with the people of India, and her rule may not have been of the gentlest, but American sympathy for those who have been rebelling against it of late is confined principally to those who do not approve of strong centralized government on any terms.

GETTING GOOD

Chicago is growing better every day. In the first nine months of this year there were but fifty-four bombings as against ninety-eight in the same months last year. Of attacks of racketeers on legitimate business there were but twenty defined cases this year. There were forty-five in the first nine months of last year. All this amounts to an approximately 50 per cent cleanup this year, which is certainly reporting progress. The city is trying to behave like a safety zone.

THE LEE SIDE O'LA

By Lee Shippey

IT MAY surprise you more or less to learn that radio has been a great benefit to hog ranchers.

Most of the edible garbage of Los Angeles goes to hog raisers. Remember that, you humane people, next time you start to throw some broken glass into the garbage pail. Of course, the garbage is searched and strained and all that. But fine particles of broken glass or other dangerous things may slip through, and some dumb —or grunty—beast may suffer.

Before the days of radio discarded phonograph needles were one of the great griefs of the hog men. All kinds of other indigestible matter, some of it valuable, was retrieved from the garbage, but the phonograph needles slipped right through. The result was that the scratchy needles we often used to think would be the death of us really became the death of hearty hogs, mysteriously cutting them down in their prime.

Casting Silver Before Swine

We feel a little apologetic about bringing up the subject of garbage in a column which is, we hope, the breakfast-table entertainment of thousands. But this really is interesting. Recently a friend wished to buy his wife some spoons to replace some lost from a set she treasured. He went to several jewelers, but could find no spoons to match. He was almost in despair, when a woman who knows all sorts of things suggested that they go to some Mexicans who were professional garbage sorters. They went, and the Mexicans brought forth a vast array of spoons. Among them they found the very spoons they wanted, probably the very ones which had been lost.

Enough spoons, forks and knives to stock a fair-sized hotel are thrown away in the dishwater or with peelings by careless Los Angeles maids and housewives every day

So this may not be such a bad subject to bring up at meal time, after all. It may save you a spoon when you clear up the dishes.

Champ Raisers of Nonfacial Alfalfa

While we're on subjects of interest to farmers, it may surprise some of our ex-Iowans to learn that hay ranks pretty close to oranges as an income producer in California. Nelson Crow of the Western Live-Stock Journal has just been in to tell us something about the great live-stock show we're going to have here soon, and he informs us that during the five-year period beginning with 1925 the hay crop of California averaged an annual revenue of more than $75,000,000. California is the great alfalfa producer of the country, and practically all of this hay is fed to live stock in California and adjoining Southwestern States.

That indicates the growth of the live-stock industry in California. Live stock and dairying combined, Crow says, yield more than $230,000,000 a year, or a little more than one-third of the total revenue of the State from agricultural sources.

Jed Dickson is an honored man
In Ourville, and no scandal can
Bedim his record sound and clear
(Though folks will gossip, even here.)
One feller said Jed robbed a bank
When he lived back in Yankteeyank.
We rail-rode him clean out the hills
Because—Jed always pays his bills.

Another feller came along
Who whispered: "Jed seems goin' strong
Out here, but back in Ioway
He's got at least four wives, they say."
Jake Hines, the grocer, passed around
The word to feather-tar that hound.
"We know Jed's square. Through all his ills,
Said Jake, "he's promptly paid his bills."

From his store teeth to his backbone.
The doctor, merchant, lawyer, all
Know who totes square and who totes small.
Though some who try to cut a dash
May find they're friendless when they crash,
Real friends rise up as staunch as hills
For men that always pay their bills.

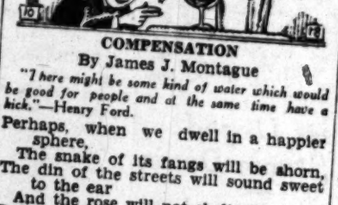
AND STILL RECORDS FALL

As exclusively forecast in The Times a week ago, the then Hearst record for self-exploitation in his own papers was not for long. In yesterday's Los Angeles Examiner, Hearst's local morning paper, the name Hearst appeared fifty-three times on one page, a new all-time record. On October 10 Hearst's name was printed forty-one times on a single page of the Examiner. This was regarded at the time as extraordinary, but subsequent developments showed that Hearst was then merely getting warmed up. If he is able to maintain his present rate of progress a solid page of Hearst's name with only a seasoning of exclamation points is a not remote possibility.



COMPENSATION

By James J. Montague

"I here might be some kind of water which would be good for people and at the same time have a kick."—Henry Ford.

Perhaps, when we dwell in a happier sphere,
The snake of its fangs will be shorn,
The din of the streets will sound sweet to the ear
And the rose will not shelter a thorn.
But here on this still rather imperfect earth
Delight has a short start on sorrow,
And if, for today, we are children of mirth,
We must look for a headache tomorrow.
And whether we happen to like it or not
We can't get a "kick" without paying the shot.

It is pleasant to float down a murmuring stream
Afar from all worry and care,
But just as you're wrapped in a beautiful dream
The mosquitoes discover you're there.
You are thrilled when your stocks soar away over par
And your hopes fondly follow their flight,
But it isn't so pleasant to mortgage your car
When they drop like a rock overnight.
And as long as you dwell on this old rolling earth
The thrills you receive cost you all they are worth.

The visions of love are alluring and sweet,
But the honeymoon soon has been spent,
And then you must hustle to buy things to eat
And to pay for the gas and the rent.
And never was liquor so deftly distilled
That, when it had spent its first force,
The magical spell that it wrought wasn't killed
By a nerve-racking fit of remorse.
Beware, when the weather is sunny and warm,
For beyond the horizon is rising a storm.

WHAT OTHERS THINK ABOUT IT

CENSUS AND SECRECY

[Detroit Free Press]

Atty-Gen. Mitchell has gently but firmly ruled that information gathered by census takers about individual residents of this country may be examined legally only by sworn employes of the census office. State officials who wish to obtain lists of illiterates living within their jurisdictions, are not entitled to access to this information. The women's bureau of the Department of Labor, which desires to make a special study in the city of Rochester, N. Y., will have to obtain elsewhere than from the census bureau the names, addresses and occupations of workers in that city. The law bars the census from giving out such data. And the law is right. Citizens tell the census takers a good deal about themselves that they may not care to have become public gossip. They are induced to do this by the knowledge that all census employees are required to take a lay Hippocratic oath not to divulge information obtained from others under the census act. Violation of this pledge to secrecy would be dishonorable on the part of the government, would be unfair to those about whom census information was divulged, whether this information had to do with their occupation, their illiteracy or lack of it, or anything else respecting them; and it would, finally, cause the government additional embarrassment when it came to take the next census.

NARROW ESCAPE

[Baltimore Sun]

It is reported from Cambridge that the Harvard authorities have refused to make exceptions to the copyrights on various Harvard songs so that Rudy Vallee might croon them on the radio, making "Fair Harvard" and "Up the Street" as popular as the Maine "Stein Song," as Rudy is said to have promised.

Let those who are tempted to think that Harvard is being up-stage pause and consider. Let them ask themselves what their first thought is when confronted with any reference to the University of Maine. If it isn't a mental picture of Rudy Vallee crooning and millions of hushed damsels swooning, then Harvard is wrong. But if it is true that Rudy Vallee has made the Maine tune into something to hum, Harvard is right to take no chances.

After all, the Cambridge institution has too much to live down as things are now.

STOP CRIME NEWS AT THE SOURCE

[San Francisco Chronicle]

The people of Portugal have become alarmed over the prevalence of crime and the Portuguese government has met the emergency by ordering the newspapers to minimize their reports. It appears to escape the attention of the Portuguese government, as it does the good people who would like to see a similar censorship in America, that the best way to minimize such reports is to suppress the criminals.

AMEN AND AMEN

[Lowell Courier-Citizen]

One had hoped that Hon. Ruth Bryan Owen was to be an improvement on the political acumen revealed by her lamented sire, but there is small warrant for believing that she is such in her demand for a Cabinet officer to have Federal jurisdiction over the home and child. May an all-wise God deliver us from any further Federal espionage and bully-ragging than we have now in matters of private and domestic conduct

DAYLIGHT SAVING?

BY WILLIAM HAMILTON CLINE

V

Daylight saving means ruin to summer indoor evening amusements in California.

Motion-picture theaters, which furnish the great diversional opportunity for everyone, everywhere, of a popular nature at a popular price, by long trial have found that the performance which begins about 7 o'clock in the evening is their profitable one. In summer, this comes just about dusk. The matinee in any case, and least of all in summer, is more or less a concession; the later night show is for the overflow and is run often at a loss. The 7 o'clock show is the one that keeps the house "out of the red." This does not hold so completely in winter, with its shorter daylight and cooler weather, but in summer it is a fact that cannot be disputed. Interfere with the sunset 7 o'clock performance, then, and you practically wreck the show business.

That's just what daylight saving will bring about, if adopted. Under daylight saving, the 7 o'clock show is necessarily set back to 8 o'clock; that means that it is out about 9:30 to 10 p.m.—and the second night show being moved back to that hour, isn't out till midnight. Which is too late in both cases for the vast majority of those who would attend, particularly the "family trade."

The great patronage of the earlier evening show, especially in the neighborhood and smaller community houses—the backbone of the business—is that of the family. The young folks go; they influence or take the older ones; parents prefer to take their children then and be home for early bedtime; the "supper show," coming after the evening meal and before the normal sleeping time, is made to order—by deep design—for this family trade. It is for this show that you see the long lines standing in front of the doors—lines seldom there for the later one, even downtown, and almost never for matinees. In fact, many of these so-called "local" houses do not run matinees; they do not pay expenses. The money comes in at the supper show—or not at all.

Put your 7 o'clock performance back to 8—as would have to be done—and you wreck it; also you kill anything that might be done with the late one. Eight is too late for an exit by normal bedtime for the youngsters. The second show is thus made too late for almost everyone—for, remember, you are supposed to retire an hour earlier than now, to obtain that "extra hour" promised you.

Why not run the first show at 6? For one thing, dinner is not over, and the theaters miss the after-supper trade. Being still broad daylight, with the sun high, the psychology is all wrong; if folks wish to attend by day, they go to a matinee by preference. Show business depends a lot upon psychological reactions; they must be considered; this is only one of them. Theaters, in the last analysis, are a luxury; you cannot make people patronize them when you wish it, as you might if running a bank or a grocery; they don't have to patronize you to live. They come and go as they wish, and all you can do about it is to conform to their desires—or quit.

The neighborhood and small-town movie places are the basis of film prosperity, where the real money is made, even by the producers. The big city downtown houses are tryout palaces and seldom if ever are they run at a high profit. Cut off the smaller theaters and the studios are sunk. In the places where daylight saving prevails, from 30 to 40 per cent of the smaller movie houses close while it is in effect, with their consequent unemployment. Many more cut out some of their shows and reduce employees and overhead accordingly. It is estimated that an average drop of about 40 per cent is due to this change of time arbitrarily in these regions, and not all the theaters can stand it, by any means. The same conditions will inevitably bring about the same results in California. Do you wish your neighborhood theater dark, with the resultant dulling effect on your vicinity? Do you wish to add about half of our theatrically employed to the idle every summer? Haven't we enough show folk "at liberty" now without swelling their ranks?

The studios which produce these pictures are the largest single employers in the State, when taken in connection with the theaters themselves. Every trade, division, sphere in the world is actively dependent upon the amusement industry and benefits from it; the ramifications are all through our productive life. These studios turn out about 85 per cent of the moving pictures made. Touch them in a vital spot, restrict their activities, and you put a dampening hand upon the whole commonwealth. No other one phase of the State's prosperity will be more adversely affected by daylight saving than will the amusement producing and exhibiting trade. It will cost studios heavily; a cost naturally which will be passed on to the exhibitors and thence to the public at large.

For instance—studios must wait before "shooting" till the sun has banished the high fog that is so gratifying to us in the summer mornings, but is fatal to them. Rising and calling crews an hour earlier than now will not chase this gloom away, but it will add to the overhead, for these crews will be idle. Then, quitting on their part at 4 o'clock cuts off an hour of the best of the day—and if they keep on, it is at overtime rates and greatly added expense. That's just one instance of what daylight saving means to them.

Much highly technical work can be done only in full sunlight, not the half light of early day. Go out on a "lot," even now, on a dull summer morn and see what is not going on; then imagine this condition enforced all summer by an extra hour earlier—and an hour lost in the afternoon—and you'll begin to understand why the whole motion-picture industry is so outspoken in condemning the scheme. And remember that its bread and butter, if not its prosperity, is one of the State's greatest assets; think deeply before you harm it needlessly.

Legitimate theaters went through a daylight-saving period in 1918 as a war measure—and never were the same afterward. Folks simply don't go to a night performance, especially in evening clothes, in broad daylight. Theaters of this nature in almost all northern and eastern cities close all summer; even New York boasted of only twelve open last summer, as against the scores usually in operation, and these pushed back their beginning hour till 9 p.m. Result—thousands of player folk walking the pavements seeking jobs; musicians and stage hands and "front of the house" likewise. We've had it hard enough for show folks here as things are; do we wish to see the situation like it is back East?

The entire professional amusement world is united as never before against the proposed daylight-saving measure for California. It knows by hard experience what it means. Studios, producers, theater owners, exhibitors, musicians, crews, operators—you'll hardly find one lined up for the plan. As one of California's foremost industries, one of its greatest productive assets, as one of its all too few night entertainment factors, would it not be well to give its position due consideration?

Once voted by the electorate of California, no change may be made in the daylight-saving law save by a similar vote of the people themselves; the Legislature, which five times has refused to put such a law on the statute books, will be unable to modify or repeal it; this is an initiative measure and subject only to the will of the votors at large. Remember that—once it is adopted, it stays, no matter what damage it does, till another initiative petition is circulated, signed and voted upon at a State election. Do we want daylight saving as part of our organic law, under such almost irrevocable conditions?

SILENT BELLS

BY JANE FREDERICKSON

Lovers of the music of ringing or tinkling bells are beginning to ask if we are not becoming a bell-less people. Where are the bells that in former years called worshipers to church? The bells that tolled for death or rung gayly for weddings or other happy occasions? Are they all drowned out by the noise of traffic signals which are anything but musical? Particularly in California have bells been used to signify the march of progress. The padres always left behind them as they marched northward, bells to call their converts to prayer.

We have plenty of belfries, beautiful architecturally, but as pathetic with their lack of bells as an empty cradle trimmed with Christmas toys. Why do we fill the empty arches with musical bells? Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, who originated and designed the El Camino Real bells, which are things of beauty along our highway, is one of those who particularly deplores the elimination of musical bells except in a very few places. "On Easter morning," she says, "there was almost no ringing of bells to herald the religious ceremony of Resurrection, nor at Christmas time did we hear them call out the joyous tidings of a Savior born. But on New Year's Eve what a mess of noises. I wonder if we fear to add the voice of the bell to the booming of the trombone, the wailing of the saxophone and the honk of the auto horn."

The booklet of the Better America Federation of California, in a recent issue in a plaint following a reference to "Communism's assault on religion," says regarding bells:

"Human affections gather to the sound of bells, whether they be the simple chimes of a friendly clock or a historic peal, which once served well for warning or welcome. A bell in Independence Hall is the symbol of a nation's deliverance. Bells on the waters guide and guard those who go down to the sea in ships; bells on land rejoice with human joy or toll accompaniment to human sorrow. Bells on the air of a quiet evening, or greeting the dawn of day can stir the heart with harmonies above and beyond their simple tunes."

Southern California has a few bells of which it can be proud. The Bible Institute chimes in downtown Los Angeles often cause the busy man or woman to halt and think of finer things than shopping or business. There are a few others, but pathetically few, when we think of the number of belfries that might have music to send on the noise-laden air. Dr. Clara B. Burdette has just returned from a vacation tour during which she found time to pick up fifty more bells to add to the famous carillon in her Pasadena home.

This should encourage other lovers of chiming bells in Southern California to do likewise.

CHEF WYMAN'S RECIPES

Every Friday at 2 o'clock Mrs. A. L. Wyman will conduct a free class and demonstration of good cookery in the lecture room of the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway.

LOBSTER BISQUE

One large size can of lobster, or one medium-sized fresh lobster, one cupful of bread crumbs, four cupfuls of milk, four cupfuls of water, one tablespoonful of flour, one-fourth cupful of butter, a seasoning of salt, white pepper, a few grains of cayenne pepper, and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of mace. If the canned lobster is used, remove the large pieces and cut them into cubes, put them aside, place the remainder of the lobster in a bowl, and pound it to a smooth paste with the butter. Soak the bread crumbs in the water, adding the flour and seasonings, place in a a saucepan, add the pounded lobster, and stir it constantly until it boils, then allow it to boil slowly for fifteen minutes, press through a sieve, add the milk and the lobster cubes. Return to the saucepan, and allow it to just come to a boil. Serve with squares of fried bread, and thin slices of lemon.

POTATO AND SPINACH CROQUETTES

Two tablespoonfuls of shortening, four tablespoonfuls of cooked spinach, three small cooked potatoes, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, a seasoning of salt and paprika, two hard-boiled eggs, one raw egg, bread crumbs, and pastry. Rub the spinach and potatoes through a sieve, saute the onion in the shortening, and when beginning to get tender, add the spinach and potatoes, and seasoning of salt and paprika, allow to heat through, then set aside until cool. Roll out a rich pie crust, cut it in small rounds, place a spoonful of the vegetable mixture on half the number of pastry rounds, place a slice of a hard-boiled egg on each, brush the edges with the well beaten raw egg, press another round over this, dip in egg and bread crumbs, place in the oven, and bake until the pastry has browned.

RICE SOUFFLE

Take four tablespoonfuls of rice, and put it through the fine grinder of your meat chopper, stir it to a smooth paste, with three teaspoonfuls of butter, and six tablespoonfuls of milk, then add one cupful and a half of rich milk to the mixture, place it in a saucepan and cook until the mixture is thick, add the well beaten yolks of four eggs and four tablespoonfuls of sugar, beat well and add the stiffly beaten whites of the four eggs. Place in an oiled baking dish, set in a pan of water and bake for thirty minutes. Serve at once.

ORANGE WAFFLES

Two eggs, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, one-half cupful of milk, one-half cupful of orange juice, one-half cupful of flour, one tablespoonful of butter. Beat the yolks of the eggs, add to them the sugar, and salt, sift the flour with the baking powder and add it alternately with the milk, and orange juice, to the egg mixture. Add the melted butter, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, and bake in a hot waffle iron. Serve with orange marmalade.

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, outfits for the new baby, sleeping, walking, teething, thumb sucking, ammoniacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil, orange juice, hives, worms, vomiting, refractory children, prune juice, lime water, rupture, styes and boils and cradle cap. Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

CAMP FIRE GIRL WANTS INFORMATION ABOUT BABIES

A Camp Fire girl writes to this department asking information about babies which will help her to earn an award. In answering her questions I feel that I must gently reprimand her for calling an appeal to anyone for the answers to questions, "earning" an award. It would seem to me that the purpose of "awards" in the Camp Fire organization is the encouragement of investigative study on the part of the girls themselves. The very word "award" implies compensation for personal effort.

Since baby care is an important part of the knowledge to be gained by Camp Fire girls, I believe that a diligent reading of this department daily, and a digging out of this information as it appears will be helpful to this inquirer.

It is easy for me to give this information, easy for the young student to understand and equally as easy for her to forget. If the knowledge were acquired through personal effort, it would stay with her. And now that I have delivered this little sermon, here is Miss C. F. G.'s letter:

"Will you please give me the following information? How much should a baby gain each week during the first six months of his life?

"What is the gain in height during the same period? What is the relation of weight to disease and vitality? Tell me three kinds of cries and what each means? I am a Camp Fire girl and have to know about these things to earn awards."

RATE OF GAIN IMPORTANT

A baby gains on the average (if well fed) five to six ounces weekly the first six months, or about one and one-half pounds monthly.

He gains about six inches in height during that period.

The relation to disease is fairly obvious. If the baby gains less than this average amount it is possible that he is undernourished and, therefore, always a legitimate prey to any disease germs which come his way. He must have enough nourishment to supply his body needs, food for cell building and restoration and for energy and heat.

If the baby gains far more than this average amount, he is overfed, and this condition carries penalties, too. It is wise to keep in mind what the average baby needs in the way of food for his age and weight at any time and neither exceed nor go under this amount.

There are three types of cry that are fairly typical. The cry for attention, which ends when the baby gets what he wants. This is a loud, demanding sort of yell. The angry cry, which is a red-faced, howl and continues until the state that has angered the baby (usually restraint of some sort) is ended. The sick cry which is a thin, pitiful wail and indicates suffering, discomfort and weakness.

WHEN THE SANDMAN COMES

by THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE DEER

When you're convinced it will not pay
To fight, 'tis time to run away.
—Black Pussy.

Jimmy Skunk was standing in the moonlight just outside Black Pussy's round doorway—her new doorway into the shed back of Farmer Brown's house. Jimmy Skunk was grinning. His nose told him that somewhere inside that shed was a saucer of milk; also, a plate of liver. Jimmy knew well enough that they were not put there for him. He guessed that they were put there for Black Pussy the Cat, and that either Black Pussy was not hungry, or else she was not at home. Jimmy poked his head inside and sniffed.

"That smells good," said Jimmy to himself. "That's just the dinner I am looking for. I think I'll go in and help myself. I won't wait to be invited."

So Jimmy went right in through the round doorway and simply followed his nose. His nose took him right straight to the plate with the liver on it. Jimmy fairly chuckled as he set his teeth in the first piece of liver. He didn't bother to even look around to see if Black Pussy was anywhere about. The truth is, he didn't care whether she was or not.

Now, Black Pussy was there. She was curled up in a basket with a soft cushion in it. It was her own special basket. It was only a few fee away from that plate of liver and saucer of milk. Black Pussy wasn't hungry. If she had been, there would have been no liver and milk there. Nevertheless, she felt that that liver and milk were hers. So, when she was awakened by a slight noise and discovered what she at first thought was another cat—a black-and-white cat—eating her liver she was filled with immediate and very great anger.

Black Pussy bounced out of her basket with her back arched her tail swollen, her eyes brazing with anger. She would teach this strange cat a lesson never to be forgotten! She started to growl way down as deep in her throat as she could. "Get out of here!" she growled, and dug her claws into the floor.

Black Pussy bounced out of her basket with her back arched, her tail swollen

At the sound of that growl, the strange cat paused in his eating and slowly lifted a great bushy tail. That great bushy tail spread out and gradually covered the stranger's back. Did you ever see a toy balloon collapse when a pin was stuck in it? Black Pussy collapsed in just the same way. Her back went down; her tail went down; all the hair that had been standing on end went down. She tried to slink away. She had recognized Jimmy Skunk.

Jimmy took two steps forward. Black Pussy bounded to the far corner of the shed. There she crouched, shivering with fear. Jimmy Skunk just gave one look at Black Pussy and then went on eating. When he had finished the liver, he drank the milk. Then he began to investigate the shed. He found Black Pussy's basket. It contained a most comfortable-looking bed. Jimmy decided to try it. He curled up in it and went to sleep.

As for Black Pussy, she saw her chance to get out. She was the most upset cat that ever lived. She made straight for the barn, and there she hid in the darkest corner she could find, while Jimmy Skunk peacefully slept in the bed that was her very own.

Rabbi Magnin Adds Voice for Power Bonds

Rabbi Magnin of B'nai B'rith Temple has issued the following statement indorsing the power bonds to be voted on November 4:

"I can unreservedly indorse the power bonds under which our citizens will vote November 4. It is a matter for civic pride to realize that not only have we the lowest rates for electric power of any large city in the country, but also have not called upon the taxpayers for a cent of money since the system got into full-scale operation in 1922.

"The bond money, if spent in our community, should help relieve the unemployment situation. The continued expansion of the system means the attraction of large industries and this means more pay rolls.

"We have a further reason for supporting the bonds in that we must keep faith with the government, which is building Boulder Dam on the assurance of the city that it will use a large amount of the power. A vote for the power bonds is a vote of confidence in our own municipal enterprise."

HISTORY COURSE OFFERED

An extension class on history will be organized November 6 by Prof. William P. Adams, of the history department of the University of California at Los Angeles, in cooperation with the extension division of the University of California. The class will meet in the Hill-street Building and the course of instruction will be decided by the class.

OF THE COMMUNITY CHEST

H. V. MICHENER SAYS:

"Each year I become more convinced that the handling of our contributions for charitable purposes can only be logically done through the operation of an agency such as the Community Chest. To have this job done once a year certainly is an economy and a satisfaction throughout the entire year.

"It is obvious this year that as individuals we have resting on our shoulders a larger obligation than heretofore. Those of us who can, must contribute more, in order to make up for those of us who at a time like the present, find it necessary to at least not increase our contribution of previous years."

On one occasion, Vaught was knocked to the floor and confined two weeks because of a blow to the kidney, he asserts. On another occasion she slugged him with a chair, she said.

"What's the use of you having a time-table if your rotten trains don't run to it?"

SIX QUALIFY IN TEST FOR POLICE HEAD

Successful Candidates Still Must Submit to Oral Examination

Six of the eleven applicants who seek to pass the civil service test for Chief of Police of Los Angeles, made grades high enough for them to take the oral test to be held Tuesday afternoon, the Los Angeles Civil Service Department announced yesterday. Among the six is Chief of Police Steckel, who holds the office under an emergency appointment.

Information on the grades of the candidates will not be given out until the oral test has been held and sifted under direction of the Civil Service Commission. The passing grade is 75 and those taking the oral must have at least a 50 written grade.

Others taking the oral include Captains Laurence Ammon and William H. Behrendt, Captain of Detectives E. R. Cato, Inspector of Detectives David A. Davidson and Detective-Lieutenant A. R. Kallmeyer.

The five who will not be called for the oral test include Captains C. A. Hodson, Howard I. Nicholson and Harry A. Hager, Detective D. McD. Jones, and George E. Friend, a private detective.

Reinstatement Opposed by Negro Group

Reinstatement to the police force, sought by Patrolman Luther Weyant, acquitted of the killing of William Teems, Negro, 17 years of age, during a raid on a dice game in the Central-avenue district on August 2, last, was opposed yesterday by a delegation of colored folk headed by Dr. H. C. Hudson, head of the local branch of the organization for the advancement of the colored race. They called on Commissioners Drake and Coe, who comprise the complaints committee of the Police Commission.

The delegation presented petitions setting forth that the youth was merely an onlooker at the game and was shot and killed by Weyant as he ran with others when the officers arrived. It was declared that at most the youth was guilty of a misdemeanor and there was no reason for the officer using his gun.

The committee will study the written testimony presented and report to the commission at its regular meeting.

EX-CONSTABLE FOUND GUILTY

Amend Convicted of Letting Prisoners Escape

State Had Attempted to Show Bond Forfeit Racket

Misappropriation-of-Funds Cases Dismissed

Judge Fricke fixed the 22nd inst. at 9:45 a.m. as the time for Amend to appear for judgment and sentence.

Amend originally was charged with six counts of permitting prisoners to escape, but the sixth count was dismissed by the court for lack of evidence, upon the motion of Lester Hardy, defense attorney.

One of the principal witnesses introduced by Ugene Blalock, deputy District Attorney, was R. P. Amend, a brother of the defendant and formerly a deputy constable in Inglewood township. He testified concerning the arrest of one of the complaining witnesses and his subsequent release on bail.

The indictment charges that Amend released numerous defendants arrested on felony charges, under bail, and then failed to prosecute the defendants or to account for the bail money he had received.

Amend already has been prosecuted on three occasions on charges of misappropriating county funds, but in one instance the jury failed to agree upon a verdict and the other two cases were dismissed for lack of evidence.

ACTRESS MAY FACE ALIENATION ACTION

RAMBEAU LOVE SUIT RE-ECHOES

Dispatch Says Wife Ready to Renew Fight on Actress for $100,000 Heart Balm

Marjorie Rambeau, stage actress, faces a renewal of a $100,000 alienation-of-affections suit brought against her by Mrs. Mabel Manton on the eve of her launching a new career in talking pictures for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Miss Rambeau is preparing now her first part in the talkies.

Reached yesterday at her apartment in Hollywood and told of dispatches from New York telling of the renewal of the suit, Miss Rambeau declared that she had not been served with any new papers and that she had not heard from her attorneys. She said she will leave the matter entirely with her lawyers.

At present, the dispatches stated, the suit is off calendar, but a motion made by Mrs. Manton's counsel to restore it for trial is scheduled for hearing this week. Miss Rambeau's attorneys have filed a petition requesting that the actress be permitted to give her testimony by deposition so she will not have to appear in court in New York. No decision has been reached on this motion, dispatches said.

There also was filed a letter purporting to come from Miss Rambeau in which she said she is without funds to make the journey east and besides that her mother is critically ill and cannot be left alone.

"I am amazed to hear the suit is to be tried again," Miss Rambeau asserted.

"It was my understanding that the case had long ago been settled for 6 cents. I have been advised not to talk too much until I hear from my attorneys so there is no more to say."

Her attorney, P. Berner of the firm of Ernst, Fox & Cain, said there had never been any sort of settlement and that a retrial of the suit in which a jury disagreed in February of this year depends on a decision now being awaited from a Supreme Court judge.

Mrs. Manton charges Miss Rambeau with the theft of the love of her husband, William Kevitt Manton, who was her stage manager. The case involves, the dispatches stated, Mrs. Manton's breaking into the actress's suite at the Hotel Endicott four years ago.

DOUG MACLEAN WRITING FARCE

Mary Philbin, Kerry, Slated for "Merry-Go-Round;" Warners Sign Players on Long-Term Contracts; Loretta Young Gets Lead in "Beau Ideal"

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

If you enjoy Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey on the screen, you will be glad to know that R.-K.-O. is planning the snappiest vehicle of their careers for the two comedians.

DOUGLAS MACLEAN

The fine comedy minds of Douglas MacLean and Al Boasberg are now being bent to the task of preparing this comedy, tentatively titled "Deuces Wild." In it the stars will appear as adventurers in a revolution held in a mythical kingdom. Ralph Spence is assisting on dialogue.

The comedies which MacLean used to write, produce and star in have never been excelled, and it is known that, despite his success as an actor, the writing end always appealed to him more than acting.

STROHEIM TO DIRECT "MERRY-GO-ROUND"

One of the most joyful pieces of news that has come to us in many a day is to the effect that Eric Von Stroheim will direct the talking version of "Merry - Go-Round," and what is more, probably will make it with the original cast, so far as the two principals are concerned.

MARY PHILBIN

"Nowhere can I find another actress so sensitively tuned to the role of the wistful little heroine of 'Merry-Go-Round' as is Mary Philbin," said the director, "and as for Norman Kerry, he, too, is type perfect and the ideal one for the male lead, handsome, dashing, good-naturedly sardonic and sophisticated."

There is, it is said, a little feeling on the part of Universal executives because of the circumstances surrounding Miss Philbin's leaving that organization, and, too, the feelings of one of those officials, Paul Kohner, may be colored by the breaking off of the romance between Miss Philbin and himself after their long engagement, but is is known that he is very generous in his attitude at present, and so, as we too think that Mary is the only person for the part, we are hoping that everything may be arranged as Von Stroheim wishes.

As is remembered, Von Stroheim wrote and directed a portion of "Merry-Go-Round" in its silent version, but left Universal before the picture was finished.

Regarding "Blind Husbands," on which Von Stroheim is at work, the director said yesterday that he hoped to make also a German version of the picture.

Loretta Young Chosen

It took R.-K.-O. a long time and a deal of looking around to settle on a young actress who officials felt was clever enough to portray the leading feminine role in "Beau Ideal."

LORETTA YOUNG

However, they found her yesterday, in the person of Loretta Young, formerly under contract to First National, and signed her to appear in the coveted part. Miss Young is said to have recently distinguished herself in "Kismet."

The two leading men are Ralph Forbes and Lester Vail. Herbert Brenon is directing.

Warners Sign Youngsters

Warner Brothers let us in on the fact yesterday that they expect within the next few months to sign a number of clever young actors and actresses for featured and leading roles in their pictures.

EVELYN KNAPP

They began yesterday by securing the names of Joan Blondell and Evelyn Knapp on long-term contracts. Both are originally from the stage.

The announcement also was made that Miss Blondell will play the leading feminine role in "Beauty and the Boss," a sequel to "Office Wife," which latter picture, you remember, is scoring over the country. Miss Blondell played one of the featured parts in "Office Wife."

It is likely that Miss Knapp will play the leading feminine role in the picture centering around a dirigible, and which will be directed by William Wellman.

Hope Hampton Wins Goal

Not for nothing has Hope Hampton been laboring these two years past at her operatic work.

She has achieved the goal of every singer's desire, having been signed by Covent Garden management, in London, to sing at that historic theater. She will sing "Manon," quite likely Mimi in "La Boheme," and possibly "Thais."

She is certain to sing "Thais" in Paris, where she is to appear at the Opera Comique. Paris, it is said, is clamoring for a youthful Thais, and Miss Hampton is considered most adequate to fill the bill in every way.

The singer also will appear at the La Scala in Milan, and in Rome. In the meantime Miss Hampton is leaving tomorrow night for Honolulu, for a vacation, accompanied by her husband, Jules Broulatour.

AUTOS TAKE DEATH TOLL IN COUNTY

Crash Kills Motorist and Cyclist Succumbs Later From Collision Injuries

Automobile collisions in the county yesterday and Thursday night killed one man outright and fatally injured another, according to Sheriff's office reports.

Riding his motorcycle at East Ninth and Record streets at noon yesterday, Sam Masman, 35 years of age, 1036 South Record street, crashed into a truck driven, deputies reported, by Paul W. Coffman, 5907 Heliotrope Drive, Maywood. He died several hours later in East Los Angeles Emergency Hospital. Coffman was not injured. Masman's body is at the J. A. Coleman mortuary, Belvedere Gardens, where an inquest will be conducted at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

W. R. O'Neal, 30, 733 Hawthorne street, Pomona, was killed instantly Thursday night when his automobile collided with a truck near his home. The body was taken to the Todd & Reeves mortuary, Pomona, where an inquest will be held at 1:30 p.m. Monday. The truck driver, Alva Gladden, of Riverside, escaped injury in the crash.

Attorney So Mad He Calls Visitor Skunk

All the persuasion and tact that Attorney Allan S. Lund might employ in the face of legal problems proved of no avail last night when he discovered an intruder who positively upset the routine of his domestic life at 6285 Rodgerton avenue, in the Hollywood Hills.

"Now you had better move on," he entreated in his best court voice.

"You know you have no business under that dresser—particularly when the dresser is in my upstairs bedroom.

"But I don't want any trouble with you and I will leave all doors and windows open for a leisurely exit and I promise I will not molest you—but please get out."

Two hours passed and the unbidden guest showed no signs of evacuating.

Hollywood police received a call and a short time after answering the call Detective Lieutenant L. D. Egan returned to report:

Four W.C.T.U. Officers Leave for Convention

Four high officers of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Southern California are en route to the jubilee convention of the Northern California members of the organization at Petaluma which opens Monday. The officers are Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler, president; Mrs. Anna Brown Hall, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Hattie C. Young, recording secretary, and Mrs. Bertha Brinker, treasurer.

They are traveling by automobile, and will attend a mass meeting of the organization tonight in Methodist-Episcopal Church at Santa Maria. Tomorrow morning and evening each will deliver an address at churches or mass meetings in San Luis Obispo county. On their return they will attend a mass meeting at Bakersfield Thursday night.

Prince George of England, opening the sixth annual exhibition of the Civil Service Arts held in London, said that civil servants were too often regarded by the public as a body of soulless bureaucrats.

Air-passenger service between Tokio, Japan, and Seoul, has cut the traveling time to ten hours from forty-eight required by railroad.

FOOTBALL HEROES DO THEIR BIT

But Joe E. Brown Stars in the Comedy of "Maybe It's Love"

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

As actors, the all-Americans are excellent football players. They—one of the selected teams—make their debut in "Maybe It's Love," which is showing at Warner's Hollywood Theater, and they do themselves credit in the gridiron scenes. They may also qualify as a glee club, though I have the faint suspicion that their voices are doubled.

Anyway, you may see Russ Saunders, Tom Moynihan, W. K. Schoonover, Bill Banker and others, besides Coach Howard Jones in the pigskin classic, which features Joe E. Brown, Joan Bennett and James Hall Thespianically. Incidentally, one must credit Jones, as coach, with speaking his lines with genuine authority.

"Maybe It's Love" will satisfy those who regard Joe Brown as a hilarious comedian, and who want to see the home team come up from behind and win. The score is 7 to 6 (unhappy reminder!) with only three minutes to go. It needs a touchdown, and, of course, Hall as the hero, is the boy to put the ball over the line. With the aid of the all-Americans he accomplished this but, at that, the game is an upset, because the challenging college achieved wonders in keeping the score so low against such stiff competition.

Everything that happens in "Maybe It's Love" hinges on the very poor record that Upton College has held in the football tourney. Things are so bad, in fact, that the president of the institution is in danger of being fired. He is given just one more season of football to redeem himself, and if his team doesn't win he is out.

Nan Sheffied, his daughter, played by Miss Bennett, therefore goes to the rescue, and Joe Brown is her inspiration. He suggests the idea that she spend the summer vacation vamping all the high-power athletes and getting them to come to Upton College. She sings to some of them, is rescued from drowning by one or two others, is saved from a bear by still another, with the net result that the scheme works out more than successfully. The Upton school has a team like none other, and finally even a certain Tommy Nelson (namely Hall,) football hero but scapegrace, signs up for a semester in defiance of the orders of his father, because he, too, is attracted by the heroine.

Comes the day before the game and the girl's wholesale vamping trickery is discovered. But after worrying her about her fickleness for a time, the team decides to forgive her.

All is not well yet, for the hero's father appears during the game and threatens to take his son out. He is prevented by Miss Bennett and Joe Brown, who are always resourceful in the treacherous moments. The pater and Brown are locked up together by the girl in a cellar.

It is pleasant to note that "Maybe It's Love" doesn't have to be taken seriously, and thanks to a finale of real humor, where the star comedian of the picture and the hero's father try to watch the finish of the game it won't be. Time after time they have to climb up on a shaky pile of boxes to look through an iron grating at the tense conflict, and each time that an exciting end run or forward pass is made, down go the boxes and with them Brown and Anders Randolf who plays the father. Randolf (whose death occurred just recently) is by the way a happy aide in this comedy episode. Brown is unquestionably uproarious, especially funny being his repeated crescendo shouting of "U-p-t-o-n."

Joan Bennett is the charmer of the picture, and because of the dainty attractiveness of her personality can almost make you believe that she would allure football heroes from all over the continent. Hall sings a song or two in this feature, as well as donning the headgear for the big game, and also making love to Miss Bennett. The story of "Maybe It's Love" is credited to Mark Canfield, and screen play and dialogue was devised by Joseph Jackson. William Wellman directed.

Short subjects on the bill are fairly interesting.

British Film Now on View at Filmarte

There is one climax in "Dark Red Roses," now at the Filmarte, which is a knockout for suspense and realism. Other than that, the English production follows the same slow tradition of its forerunners.

For scenic composition this picture is above Britain's average. The sets are all simple and artistic and surprisingly modern. They add much to the feeling of the whole. One must say, too, that no pains were spared to make this an outstanding musical accomplishment. In no way is it a musical picture in the accepted sense of the phrase, but it has a theme song which has been worked in numerous times to accentuate the drama of the action. The theme song is called "Dark Red Roses." But the principal attraction is a Russian ballet danced to the music of Moussorgsky which has as its principal no less than Mme. Lopokova of the Russian Ballet. Had the camera been properly focused on this episode, it would have been one of the nicest sequences filmed for any picture.

Some capable actors lend their talents and the result doesn't advance them materially. The most finished of the leading trio is Stewart Rome, who appears in the noble light of the ideal husband. It is Mr. Rome whose precise timing and directness are responsible for the punch of the climax.

Frances Doble does what she can with the role of his wife, wooed away from him for a spell by the 'cello-ing of one Anton. Anton is Hugh Eden and that's about all.

Contrary to the expected, this is one feature in which the purity of the British diction does not register. Inumerable scenes carry nothing more than an accent.

A travelogue of beauty and unusual interest is "The Bottom of the World," an expedition into the Georgian Islands down near Little America. The expedition was headed and is explained by Robert Cushman Murphy in the name of the American Museum of Natural History. He has been liberal with views of native animal life and his choice of "shots" is more than ordinarily entertaining.

Continuing with the activities of animal life, UFA presents a short feature entitled "Our Bosom Friends," a beautifully photographed series of pets and their other animal friends.

Stage Comedy Performed by Youths

"My Girl Friday" Opens Engagement Tomorrow at Vine Street

"Kongo," tropical melodrama, will bid farewell to the Vine-street Theater tonight and will be followed by "My Girl Friday," stage farce, tomorrow evening.

"My Girl Friday," which concerns the adventures of three chorus girls, is enacted by John T. Murray, in the leading role, Esther Muir and Nita Cavalier, in addition to Francis Morris, Edgar Reeves, Charles Giblyn, William Lawrence, Harold Kinney, Patsy Ann O'Neal, Gordon Demain, Harry Vejar and Bernice Belldon.

CHINESE TO OFFER NEW STAGE BILL

Novel Presentation Opens Monday Night; Directed by Seymour Felix

Monday night Grauman's Chinese Theater will present for the first time in connection with the Fox film, "The Big Trail," an elaborate prologue staged by Seymour Felix, former Ziegfeld director.

Among the attractions presented will be fifty girls in "A Mayfair Sensation" with Roscoe Taylor and Franklyn Record, a musical comedy and light opera players, and an augmented symphony orchestra of forty musicians.

Film Actresses Will Understudy Stage Players

Metropolitan Productions, Ltd., which opens its Los Angeles enterprise on the 27th inst., at the Mason Theater with the world premiere of Jane Murfin's new stage drama, "Women Who Take," has borrowed Roberta Robinson and Roberta Gale, featured film players, from Radio Pictures.

ROBERTA ROBINSON

Miss Robinson is understudy to Olive Tell and Frances Beranger, and Miss Gale is understudy to Kitty Kelly. They are rated as the most promising of the studio's younger players, and the dramatic experience they will obtain is expected to be of great value.

ROBERTA GALE

Miss Robinson, a New Jersey girl, and a blond of striking beauty and personality, deserted an operatic career for the films. Miss Gale was seen by studio officials in a dancing act in Florida, hailed as a "find," and signed to a long-term contract.

TWO STAGE STARS PLAY FILM ROLES

The story deals with a bored novelist who writes a cynical article based on her matrimonial experience. Her husband reads the story and arranges to meet the authoress. The wife sends her best friend, who falls in love with him and arranges a tryst in which he really is innocently involved.

The leading male roles in "A Lady Surrenders" are played by Conrad Nagel and Basil Rathbone. Others in the cast are Carmel Myers, Franklin Pangborn, Lena Malena and Vivian Oakland. John M. Stahl directed.

English Actors Predominate in 'Grumpy' Cast

Six of the nine important roles in Paramount's film, "Grumpy," which opens today at Bard's Eighth and Broadway Theater, are filled by players born in the British Isles. Two of the principals are native Americans and one was born in Hungary.

Cyril Maude, who is featured in the name role, was born in England. The other English players are Paul Cavanagh, Halliwell Hobbes, Luray Davis, Robert Bolder and Olaf Hytton, who was born in Glasgow, Scotland. Paul Lukas was born in Hungary.

Author Defines "Gold Digger"

Contrary to popular opinion, Waters believes that the gold digger of today is not an impossible creature, nor is she designing to a harmful degree. She is a masculine study of the average "nice girl," who gets all she can within the law, from any and every convenient male companion in order that she and those she loves may live.

French Consul to Attend Egan

With Henri Didot, consul, as guest of honor, and other prominent members of the local French colony in attendance, Andre Ferrier's players will open a week's engagement at the Egan Theater tonight. Performances are limited to seven nights only.

Although established for the past ten years in San Francisco, this will mark the local debut of the Ferrier troupe. If the idea wins sufficient local support, Ferrier will bring his company here annually, he asserts.

For the Egan Theater booking, Ferrier's players will appear in "Pour Avoir Adrienne," three-act farce by Louis Verneuil.

Double Program to Be Offered

A double feature program opens at Warner Brothers' Forum Theater tomorrow and will continue for three days. It includes "Isle of Escape," with Monte Blue, and "She's My Weakness," with Sue Carol.

Starting Wednesday, "Dixiana," the Technicolor spectacle, begins a four-day run.

VITAPHONE FILM PLAY WELL ACTED

Excellent Portrayals of "Sinners' Holiday" Cast Noted at Downtown

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

What goes on behind the flamboyant exteriors of the midway is disclosed in "Sinners' Holiday," at Warners' Downtown Theater. Adapted with creditable fidelity from a short-lived play by Marie Baumer — "Penny Arcade" — this melodrama in Vitaphone is notable for its atmospheric charges and for the high level of performance attained by a cast in stereotyped roles.

Except for an idyllic excursion to the sands by two love-smitten young ones, the whole of "Sinners' Holiday" occurs in carnivalia. Ma Delano dominates her little group of "grifters" and show people, managing her penny arcade with an iron hand and her children with a fleshy one. In time her favored son Harry shoots a hi-jacker named Mitch in self-defense; but Ma Delano, glancing with tears in her eyes after his retreating, handcuffed figure, yet regains enough composure to call for a new cash-drawer of pennies and a new deal. Business must go on; and these, after all, are the kind of coppers she knows most about.

Whoever James Cagney is, the talkies are richer for having discovered him. He plays Harry, the favored son, like nobody's business. Indeed, his is the best portrayal of its kind since Chester Morris sprang like a satyr into the dull routine of that early dialogue affair called "Alibi." Ma Delano is realized with old-fashioned earnestness by Lucille La Verne; although this very histrionism of hers sharpens the dramatic focus of her "big" scene with Cagney.

Two excellent interpretations are given by younger women—Joan Blondell, as Myrtle, a "come-on" for a photographer's studio, and Evalyn Knapp as the heroine. Both are palpably experienced in the work of delivering lines as if they knew why. Miss Knapp possesses winsomness; she looks a little as Helen Jerome Eddy used to.

Among the men, Warren Hymer registers with sullen effectiveness as Mitch, the hi-jacker; Noel Madison, Otto Hoffman and Purnell Pratt lose nothing by their presences, and even Grant Withers, that shaggy masculine hero, reads his speeches for once as though he were not afraid of committing himself.

Responsible for the adaptation was Harvey Thew; for the dialogue, George Rosener. John Adolfi directed better than he usually does; he is probably not to blame for the singularly flat, lifeless series of photographs which together go to make "Sinners' Holiday," regardless, worth the money.

Joe Frisco in the comedy entitled "The Happy Hottentots," the Universal-Times news reel, Lotti Loder in "Lonely Gigolo" and other varieties take up the balance of the program.

PREMIERE OF LATIN FILM GALA EVENT

BY SALVADOR BAGUEZ

With a gala premiere equal to any offered heretofore by this unique film house, the California International Theater last night presented Paramount's latest Spanish talkie, "El Dios del Mar," to a most enthusiastic gathering.

Translated from the screen play of George Abbott, who in turn adapted it from "The Sea God," by John Russell, it is a story filled with old-fashioned sea-going adventure and romance which should delight even the most exacting audience, coming, as it does, at a time when most all pictures have grown too sophisticated. In it are featured Rosita Moreno and Ramon Pereda.

For a legend so utterly dependent on action, its unfoldment is rather tiresome. Its director, E. D. Venturini, has perhaps followed too closely the direction of the English version, whose prime defect was its dilatory dialogue.

The male leading role of the story has nothing much to offer for an actor of the debonair type of Ramon Pereda. Although he goes about it capably and succeeds to a certain extent in making it interesting, it is obvious that he has been miscast. His command of speech is not up to his usual standard. Miss Moreno photographs beautifully and interprets her part of a music-hall entertainer with charm.

In the supporting cast, Julio Villarreal, former leading man of Virginia Fabregas, the great tragedienne from Mexico, makes his initial appearance before the camera, giving an excellent interpretation of as slick a villain as has been seen in some time.

Perhaps the highest honors for acting and characterization should go to Jose P. Pepet, who, although playing a small part, gives a vivid impersonation of a derelict old man. Manuel Arbo amuses with his occasional comedy. J. Carner Ribalta did the translation and Paco Moreno, father of Rosita, directed the dialogue.

Preceding the showing of the picture the members of the cast were introduced from the stage. Miss Moreno gained the most applause after dancing a jazz number. The balance of a varied program is made up of a dog comedy in Spanish and a newsreel.

Eva Tanguay to Appear Tonight

Eva Tanguay, who will appear tonight at the Shrine Auditorium in a recital of songs, is said to be still the same cyclonic personality as in other days.

Miss Tanguay will parade one of the most novel costume displays ever seen before the footlights, it is asserted. She will be assisted throughout the performance by a colored jazz band of fifteen pieces.

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When Tarzan refused the crown of Caesar, he lost no time but assembled five thousand warriors and started his march on Castrum Mare. The white plumes of the Wasiri nodded at his back as he led his army out of Castra Sanguinarius along the hot and dusty Via Mare. The Wasiri were chanting their battle songs.

But there was no battle. The effort of Fulvus Fupus to seize the throne proved futile when the people knew that the Emperor's nephew, Cassius Hasta, was at the gates with an army. Shouts of joy resounded through the city. The officer who was about to attack Lepus and von Harben ordered his men back.

Together Favonia, von Harben, Lepus and Gabula stepped from the deserted building. Approaching them, they saw the head of a column of marching men. "Look!" said Favonia, "their chief is garbed like a barbarian and white-plumed warriors follow him." "The white giant is Tarzan of the Apes!" cried von Harben.

Tarzan greeted the lost explorer affectionately. "Your father will be glad when I bring you back," he said. "You came here in search of me, Tarzan of the Apes?" demanded von Harben. "I seem to have arrived just in time," said the ape-man. "How can I thank you?" exclaimed von Harben. "Don't thank me," said the ape-man. "Thank little Nkima."

Charles G. Caltra Admits Oxnard Depot Robbery

Ventura Sheriff Tells of Confession Made

Ex-Convict's Two Brothers Both Under Arrest

VENTURA, Oct. 17.—With the confession early today that he was one of the two armed bandits who held up two station agents at the Oxnard Southern Pacific depot September 10, last, and escaped with unsigned pay-checks valued at $1250, and $5 in cash and a pistol, Charles G. Caltra, 29 years of age, alias Charles E. Wandesford, will be charged with robbery in a complaint tomorrow, according to the District Attorney's office. Caltra confessed to Sheriff Robert Clark, it is said, who yesterday admitted to authorities he cashed some of the stolen checks, by forging signatures to them, but denied he was one of the bandits, "came clean" this morning, confessing everything, Sheriff Clark said.

Federal authorities have the "case" out for Caltra's asserted part.

Two brothers of Caltra also have been arrested for investigation in connection with the robbery. Evan Caltra, Southern Pacific brakeman, of Los Angeles County Jail facilities filed there, accusing him of cashing one of the checks stolen in the depot robbery. Raymond Caltra, another brother, is in Glendale City Jail pending further investigation of his asserted attempts to destroy the pistol taken in the hold-up, which is being held as evidence.

Charles Caltra is an ex-convict from San Quentin State penitentiary, officers declare, having been paroled in 1926 after being sent to prison in 1923 on conviction of highway robbery in Fresno county. He is reported under several aliases on that first time, it was asserted.

Probation Given Erring Spouse in Girl Case

SANTA ANA, Oct. 17. — Mrs. Emma Kelch of Fullerton, did not stay the part of the injured wife when her niece, an unmarried girl of 17 years, gave birth to a child whose father, Nicolas Kelch was the father.

Childless herself, Mrs. Kelch took the child, became deeply attached to it and legally adopted it, as did her husband.

The finale of this strange drama was enacted today in Superior Judge George Scovel's court where Kelch made a plea for probation in connection with his offense against his wife's niece.

The lady and niece-mother sat together in court and saw Kelch sentenced, not for his sake, as they pointed out, but in order that he might take care of the baby and be with it.

Judge Scovel, noting the wife's concern for the baby and her decision of it, ordered Kelch to "treat them right" as a condition of probation. He also warned Kelch that the niece must stay out of the Kelch home, unless invited there by Mrs. Kelch, and that the husband must not communicate with the girl.

Kelch was notified also by the court that he must not carry out his recent threat to have the child reared in a public institution, but must keep it in his home.

Move Begun to Organize Post

MONTEREY PARK, Oct. 17.—An active campaign has been launched to organize an American Legion post in the Monterey Park-Garvey district, to be known as the Monterey Park post. The first meeting of the ex-service men will be held early in November. At present veterans are eligible for membership, it is said.

Monterey Park and Wilmington now in the district of the Leonard Strain Post, formation of a new post will not greatly affect the older organization, it was said.

At the head of the campaign for the new post are Judge F. P. Gualano and J. J. MacGill, prominent in Legion and U. V. R. circles. Members are needed for the charter list.

WINEVILLE TO GET DRY NAME

Prerprohibition Cognomen Changed by Government to Mira Loma

WINEVILLE, Oct. 17.—Wineville will drop its preprohibition name November 1 for one reminiscent of the early Spanish days in California, Mira Loma. The new name means view of the hills.

Notice of the change in name was received from Washington today by Charles E. Faulhaber, postmaster here. The change was made when old and new residents alike petitioned to have the name, given the town in the early days when the district was famous for wine-making, dropped, and the Spanish name substituted.

YOUNG'S DRY STAND QUESTIONED

Senator Edwards Points to Democratic Gubernatorial Aspirant's Aid to Al Smith

ORANGE, Oct. 17. — Citing the previous record of the Democratic candidate for Governor, Senator N. T. Edwards, in an address before the Villa Park-Olive Farm Center last night, questioned the consistency of Milton K. Young in championing the dry cause in California.

"If Mr. Young had not ardently supported Al Smith in the last Presidential campaign, his present stand would be gallantly taken," said Edwards. "But now, as Democratic nominee for Governor of California, we discover that he has had a change of heart and is now trying to run on a dry platform."

Pointing out that Mayor James Rolph, the Republican nominee, supported Herbert Hoover in the Presidential campaign, Edwards cautioned his listeners not to be deceived by false issues and urged that the State's Republicans "stick together as a party."

"I am convinced that Mayor Rolph is earnestly trying his best to unite the north and south on State problems," he said. "He plainly stated to officials of the Imperial Irrigation District that he stands ready to give all assistance within his power to the Boulder Dam project."

The major portion of Edwards's talk was devoted to a review of his recent aerial trip to the Boulder Dam site with a group of State, county and city officials, headed by Mayor Rolph.

County Hospital Inmates Enjoy Illicit Venison

SANTA ANA, Oct. 17. — A rare treat of venison was enjoyed by patients and attaches of the Orange County Hospital yesterday. They dined on a deer that cost $200.

At least that was the amount of the joint fine paid by James F. Brashear of Bell and Leo Reyes of Escondido, in Justice David L. McCharles's court at Tustin for having a spiked buck in their possession in violation of the State game laws. Deputy Sheriff Robert E. Reed, who arrested the pair at Irvine ranch, took the animal to the hospital by order of the court.

Two other hunters, Robert J. Wiley and T. A. Thomas, were arrested at Irvine ranch for trespassing and appeared for trial before Justice McCharles today.

Several hundred W.C.T.U. workers from all over San Fernando Valley participated in the gathering.

PESO EDICT CAUSES GRIEF

Enforcement of Mexican Presidential Ukase Against Importation of Coin Bothers Calexico Stores

CALEXICO, Oct. 17.—Enforcement of the Presidential edict which forbids the importation of Mexican silver pesos into Mexico, has created a serious problem for American merchants here who receive large quantities of this money through local trade channels.

Following a discussion of the question at the meeting of Calexico Chamber of Commerce, it was disclosed that business men who daily receive large quantities of pesos to be deposited in banks for exchange, are having them turned back at the line. Mexican banks are reluctant to accept the silver because they do not know how long the Mexican ban will remain in effect.

As a result, thousands of dollars worth of silver is being held in Calexico here while the owners seek a solution to the puzzle.

The Mexican regulation, which forbids silver coins into Mexico in violation of the edict, is subject to confiscation. Business men here who have occasion to cross the line frequently learned of the new regulation, were allowed to bring their pesos back to the United States without penalty.

The situation is made more serious by the fact that the exchange rate on pesos is now around 42 or 43 cents while merchants here are still operating under an old agreement whereby they allow 45 cents in trade. As a result Mexican shoppers below the line are bringing in large quantities of silver because it is worth more in trade here than at the banks in their own country.

However, the local merchants have the power to correct this angle of the situation, and while no agreement was reached today, it was indicated that if the exchange value of Mexican silver does not go higher, the merchandise-exchange value at American stores will be lowered.

BIBLICAL PHRASE EXEMPLIFIED

"Last Shall Be First" Seen in Line-up for Rooms at Glendale Y.M.C.A. When Men of Unusual Name Cause Misunderstanding in Precedence

GLENDALE, Oct. 17.—Rex C. Kelley, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., got all tangled up today when he started to assign rooms to the youths who lined up at his desk to register for places in the Y. dormitory.

"Who is first here?" asked Kelley, and a voice away down at the far end of the line piped up, "I am."

"No," said the first man in the line, "I'm last."

Kelley puzzled over what seemed to be a simple matter and stood by his guns, that the first man in the line was first and the last man was really last. But the two units in the line also stood pat, and it was not until after an argument that at times threatened to become as acrimonious as any discussion in a Y.M.C.A. building may become that Kelley finally got it straightened out.

The first man in the line was named Eugene Last, and the other fellow away at the tail end of the procession admitted that his name was C. D. Furst.

BEE STING BLINDS DRIVER

Operator of Pacific Greyhound Stage Stops Vehicle Just in Time, Then Loses Consciousness

SAN CLEMENTE, Oct. 17.—The sting of a bee almost caused a serious wreck on the Coast Highway in this city yesterday. The presence of mind of the driver, Bernard Peet, saved a crash.

As Peet drove a northbound Pacific Greyhound stage toward this city a bee stung him on the neck. He at first thought nothing of it, but soon he became weak and his vision was blurred. Realizing that it was not safe to continue he stopped the bus, and as he stepped to the ground he became unconscious. The next thing that he remembered he was coming to in the hospital here.

Dr. Garnet B. Grant, hospital surgeon, said that the bee sting hit a nerve to the eyes causing Peet to slowly lose his sight.

INDIANS WIN IN HAGGLING OVER ROAD

Riverside Supervisors Capitulate to Santa Rosa Tribe on Easement Price

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 17. — End of the controversy between the Board of Supervisors and the Santa Rosa Indians over the value of a right of way for the Pines-to-Palms Highway over the red men's reservation at Van Deventer Flats east of Keen Camp, was believed in sight today, as the board formally capitulated to a demand of $4000.

In a letter mailed to the Indian Commissioner at Washington, in whose hands the matter now rests, the board intimated it had surrendered to the Indians' price out of hope that the right of way may be granted in time to prevent delay on the project, the prison camp crews being within a month's work of the reservation.

The Indians originally asked $8000 for the easement and the county countered with an offer of $1200. The county solons have had visions of having the matter tied up for months in the government red tape of protests and departmental approvals while the prison crews would be forced to remain idle.

Because the reservation reaches virtually across the valley down which the Pines-to-Palms Highway is being built, the county could not go around it, excepting at a cost of between $25,000 to $50,000, A. C. Pulmor, County Engineer, informed the Supervisors. The Indians were aware of this and held out for their price, after cutting it in half from the original figure.

Redlands Plans Handbills Ban by Ordinance

REDLANDS, Oct. 17. — Two ordinances of great importance to all property owners in the city are being prepared by City Attorney Walter Hartzell at the request of the Council. One will be an ordinance to prevent the distribution of handbills within the city limits, and the other will be to force the venting of all gas stoves and heaters in the city.

At the same time, the Council has requested Hartzell to drop preparation of an ordinance which would prevent the use of wooden shingles in any future dwelling. It was learned the uniform-building code contains a section which requires the use of fireproof shingles in the apartment-house zone and the Council felt this would answer the need.

The ordinance against distributing handbills, when passed, will be strictly enforced. It will except newspapers which are entered as second-class mail. It will also prevent the placing of advertising and handbills in automobiles.

The ordinance which would require venting of all gas stoves would save a number of lives each year, according to Councilman Theodore Krumm. He says that a survey shows that not one-fourth of the gas stoves in use in the city are vented and that every one should be.

ENGINEER FILES SUIT AGAINST CITRUS MEN

UPLAND, Oct. 17.—Upland Mutual Groves, Inc., affiliated with the Mutual Orange Distributors, is named as defendant in a suit on file today in Superior Court in which R. J. Nemechek, Los Angeles structural engineer, asks $5000 said to be due him for plans and specifications for a packing-plant recently built in Ontario. Nemechek asserts he was requested to provide the plans and specifications, which he did, and in addition, made several trips to the packing-plant during course of construction, for inspection. The complaint said Nemechek has received none of the pay promised him for his work.

Grape Shipping Still Curtailed

ONTARIO, Oct. 17. — Grape growers of the district will be urged to continue curtailed shipments for a few more days unless instructions to the contrary are received from the Federal Grape Control Board, Herman Meyers, representing the control board in this district, announced today.

A cut in grape shipments was ordered for the first three or four days of the week, and the market showed such a satisfactory reaction a continued curtailment will prove beneficial, the grape officials said.

The curtailment depends considerably on the weather, according to Meyers. If weather conditions are favorable the grapes may be left on the vines with safety for a short while.

This week's curtailment of shipments ranged from 25 to 50 per cent.

ELKS' LODGE LIMITS LIST OF MEMBERSHIP

HUNTINGTON PARK, Oct. 17.—Huntington Park Elks' lodge has passed a resolution to limit the membership of the order to 2500 members, each to be active. It is stated by the lodge's officers that it is a better plan to have this number of active members, than a greater number, some unactive. This limit membership arrangement does not apply to the Antlers' lodge, which is sponsored by the Elks. When the limit is reached the initiation fee is to be raised to $50. The Elks plan at the end of three years to begin negotiations for the erection of a new clubhouse, as this will be very much needed to provide quarters for the large membership.

STORAGE DAM'S BONDS BOUGHT

Irvine Ranch and Two Water Companies Sell Issue

First National Banks of Orange, Santa Ana, Buy

Deal Provides $400,000 for Santiago Creek Project

SANTA ANA, Oct. 17.—Paving the way for construction of a huge storage dam on Santiago Creek above the Orange County Park, bond issues totaling $400,000 yesterday were sold by officials of the John T. Carpenter Water Company of El Modena, and the Serrano Water Company of Villa Park, which are associated jointly with the Irvine company in construction of the dam.

Each irrigation district voted a bond issue of $200,000 some time ago to provide its share of the cost of building the dam on a site near the "fourth crossing."

The bonds were purchased jointly by the First National Bank of Santa Ana and the First National Bank of Orange at par bids.

Willard Smith, head of the Serrano Company, declared that a good price was obtained for the irrigation bonds due to the fact that they are different from most development bonds because they are backed by the security of an organized district.

He said that the sale of the two issues clears the way for awarding the contract for the dam shortly after January 1, 1931. It is expected to have the dam finished in time to impound the flow from winter storms during the 1931-32 season.

The project is being financed under a joint agreement with the Irvine company, which provides that the water companies are each to pay one-quarter of the cost, and the Irvine company the remaining half.

In return the water companies each receive a quarter of the stored water while Irvine receives half. The normal summer flow of the stream, however, is to be retained by the water concerns.

Al Kempkey, San Francisco engineer, who was recently engaged to prepare plans for the dam, is now at work at the dam site making diamond drillings and exploring the bed rock preparatory to drawing up construction plans. He is being assisted by Roy Browning, engineer for the Irvine company.

Ontario Given Details on Its Tree-Planting

ONTARIO, Oct. 17.—Having completed an intensive survey of the city in a preliminary move toward an extensive tree-planting program to continue over a three-year period, the tree committee of the city planning commission today made first announcement of types of trees best adapted to certain portions of the city.

Shade tree development on residential streets will be the first step in the program, according to Mrs. B. F. Warmer, chairman of the tree committee.

The committee is heartily opposed to removal of any trees except those that must be taken out to permit building operations, and those which are diseased.

Vine avenue, south of the railroad tracks should have palm and pepper trees, the committee decided. Laurel avenue, north of Tenth street is best fitted for camphor trees; and Princeton street should have the liquid amber, as there are several of that type already growing on Princeton.

More camphor trees will be added east of Columbia avenue, the committee reported.

On Fourth street, east of Euclid avenue, camphor trees will be planted, and peppers will be placed on First avenue and on Seventh street east of Euclid avenue.

Palm trees will be planted along A street, which was recently widened and a number of trees removed.

Miss Allen's home is at Burbank, but while teaching school she stays at 490 North Euclid avenue, here. Both cars were wrecked in the crash, but Miss Allen was the only one seriously injured.

VAN NUYS, Oct. 17.—Charles D. Withers, Van Nuys High School graduate and now a student at the University of California at Westwood, has been promoted to the rank of major in the senior R.O.T.C. unit.

He will have charge of the Third Battalion at the university.

JUDGE NEELY INJURED IN CRASH, DIES

Professor Emeritus of Pomona College Expires in Hospital at Selma

CLAREMONT, Oct. 17.—Word of the death of Judge Charles G. Neely following his injury in an auto accident near Selma Tuesday, was received by members of his family here today. Judge Neely through his work in Southern California in educational institutions was well known and revered by a large body of Southern Californians.

He was injured when a tire blew out on an automobile in which he was riding. He suffered three broken ribs and shock. Complications set in at the Selma Hospital and he died late last night. Judge Neely was 75 years of age at the time of his death.

The aged educator was en route to his home at Claremont after a visit with his daughter, Mrs. Lowell Pratt, at Selma, when the accident occurred.

In addition to his daughter at Selma, Judge Neely leaves his widow and three other daughters, Mrs. Payne, Mrs. Charlotte Neely of Berkeley, and Mrs. Allan J. Carter of Evanston, Ill.

The Neelys came to California in 1910, going to Pomona. Two years later they moved to Claremont, where he became a member of the Pomona College faculty in the capacity of professor of constitutional history and international law. Prior to coming to Southern California he served three terms as circuit judge at Evanston, Ill. He held his faculty position here from 1912 to 1928, when he was retired by the college.

During his years of teaching he also taught at University of California at Berkeley and University of California summer sessions. He was second vice-president of the Citizens' National Bank at the time of his death.

Date for the funeral will not be set until word is received from his daughter in Evanston.

'NERVIEST MAN' HELD IN CELL

Police Say He Burglarized Pasadena's Pesthouse

Then Said to Have Returned There and Slept on Bed

Officer Rudely Awakens Him; Jail Prisoners Objects

PASADENA, Oct. 17.—Asserted to have burglarized the city's "pesthouse," and later to have returned to the scene of the crime and drunk himself to sleep on one of the beds in the institution, William Haas of 959 South Raymond avenue is wearing the "nerviest-man" title today.

When rudely awakened by Police Sergeant Joseph Rodman, Haas declared that his courage in the face of possible disease germs and police officers should entitle him to a medal. Rodman, however, led his prisoner to a jail cell. When other prisoners heard that Haas had come direct from a bed in the contagious-disease hospital, they made serious objections to his presence, but were assured that no smallpox victim has occupied the institution in many years.

Haas's arrest resulted from a "tip" furnished by Frank E. Surber, city rat-catcher, who heard loud snoring in an upper room of the pesthouse while he was "shadowing" rodents on the first floor.

Detective Lieutenants Robert O'Rourke and Clair Corbin report that the suspect's loot consisted of an ice box, two chairs, a dresser, a table and surgical instruments. The articles were recovered at a local junk yard, the proprietor of which identified Haas.

The detectives believe that Haas used some of the proceeds to purchase wine tonic, and that he was "getting back his strength" for another furniture foray when awakened.

Death Due to Accident, Says Inquest Jury

YUCAIPA, Oct. 17. — The Coroner's jury making an investigation into the death of Ted Ritson, who died under an overturned automobile in a deep arroyo near the King Laboratories, today turned in a verdict of accidental death. The jury had spent two days in investigating, and while not pleased with some of the testimony, decided to give a verdict.

There was the testimony of C. C. Gray that caused some bewilderment. In the first place, Gray was ordered to the inquest and did not appear. It was necessary to send officers after him. He said that Ritson was driving the automobile when it plunged over the cliff, but officers say they found a shoe under one of the pedals in the car, wedged tight, and that it was Gray's shoe.

Gray explained why he and Ritson were on the road at 4 o'clock in the morning. They had come over from San Jacinto, he said, to buy about fifteen boxes of apples.

The automobile belonged to Gray and it was a total wreck.

Man Sought in Stabbing Case

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 17.—Police today were searching for Jesus Valdibia for questioning in connection with the stabbing of Joe Garcia, 21 years of age, last night in an East Haley-street cafe. Police detail investigating the stabbing declared it the third stabbing in the cafe within a month.

Garcia was taken to St. Francis Hospital suffering from a wound under his right shoulder and a cut on his hand.

SEVEN HOUSES SOLD IN NEW SCHOOL SITE

ALHAMBRA, Oct. 17.—Through the sale yesterday at public auction of seven houses, the Board of Education has taken further important steps in plans for the new Emery Park grammar school which is to be erected on West Commonwealth avenue between Orange and Meridian avenues. The dwellings sold occupy the proposed school site and will be moved away at once by the buyers. The sale netted the school district $9013.40, more than fifty bidders taking part in the auction. Two houses remain on the property. One will probably be condemned and the other will be used for a caretaker's home.

BEAN GROWERS GET CASH

Checks Aggregating $80,000 Mailed to Lima Producers of Santa Barbara County Association

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 17.—Checks aggregating $80,000 are in the mails today for the lima-bean growers of the Goleta section and other districts which are affiliated with the Santa Barbara County Lima Bean Growers' Association.

They represent a payment of 4 cents a pound on the gross weight of limas for September delivery, less 10 per cent to cover the cost of weight loss which the beans will suffer in cleaning. The actual cleaning charge will run around 6½ cents, the difference between that and the reduction eventually returning to the grower.

This 10 per cent reduction comes out of the early payments, all later payments being on cleaned weight, according to W. E. Lingard, association secretary, who mailed out the $80,000 payment today.

The bean harvest is now practically over, only a slight portion of the crop remaining in the field.

This portion comprises the crop which was sown late because of foggy weather, and it has not dried out sufficiently to thresh successfully.

Bean prices generally tend downward. Prices in September were quoted at $9.75 and the opening price for the 1930 crop in October was $9.10 and that has now dropped to $8.50. Baby lima prices have gone as low as $6.50. It is said that individuals not in the association are selling lower, either because they do not expect to get a better price, or for other reasons.

Shipments of association beans have been going out steadily, five carloads having already been shipped this week, including a carload which will leave the Goleta bean house tomorrow.
